

The Greg and Susan Walker Endowment
For Student Research in Earth & Environmental Science

CALL FOR PROPOSALS

The Greg and Susan Walker Endowment was established in 2006 to provide resources to enable students in programs of Earth and Environmental Science at the University of Pennsylvania to pursue independent research projects as part of their undergraduate and graduate curricula.

Funds will be awarded from endowment interest in response to research proposals submitted by students.

Funds may be requested to cover the cost of travel to research sites; subsistence while at research sites; equipment and materials to support research at those sites, or in laboratories at the University of Pennsylvania; and/or other requirements of the proposed research. Proposals may be submitted by research groups of 2 or more students. Most awards will be in the range of $500-$1500. Proposals outside that range will be considered.

Proposals will be considered as they are submitted, ordinarily at the beginning of each academic term. Proposals will be reviewed, and funding decisions reached, by a committee of faculty and staff convened by the Department of Earth & Environmental Science.

Proposals should be limited to 4 pages, and must include the following components:

1. COVER PAGE:

Name and contact information of student(s) submitting the proposal.

Amount requested.

Brief (300 words) ABSTRACT

A well documented history of prior study of that problem, by the student and other investigators.

An assessment of the range of anticipated outcomes of the research.

An assessment (by the student investigator) of the potential importance of the work proposed.

An itemized budget

3. If a proposal to do this work has been submitted to another student-support program at Penn (e.g. the Vagelos Fund), please attach a copy of that proposal.

4. Please send the proposal to:
