

Deserted Road

You can almost hear the silence pooled beneath the dawn bird calls in this photo by Jackie Nicole Rivera, C'09.

The scene is a mangrove forest in Miami. Jackie, a fine arts major who concentrates in photography and graphic design, goes there often when she's home. The practice of photography, she says, "allows you to notice and explore facets of existence that often go unappreciated. You begin to find yourself in the images that you collect."
