Medical Anthropology and Global Health Concentration Diagram

I. Block I - Introductory Courses:
   1. Anth 001: Intro to Archaeology OR Anth 005: Great Transformations
   2. Anth 002: Intro to Cultural Anthropology OR Anth 004: The Modern World and its Cultural Background
   3. Anth 003: Intro to Human Evolution

II. Block II – Fundamentals and Methods: ANTH 238, plus any two approved ‘Fundamentals and Methods’ Courses
   4. ANTH 238: Intro to Medical Anthropology
   5. ____________________________
   6. ____________________________

III. Block III - Perspectives on Global Health and Disease: ANTH 273, plus any three approved ‘Perspectives’ Courses
   7. ANTH 273: Globalization and Health
   8. ____________________________
   9. ____________________________
   10. ____________________________

IV. Block IV- General Electives: Four courses; no more than two from any outside department. All non-anth courses must be approved by the department advisor.
   11. ____________________________
   12. ____________________________
   13. ____________________________
   14. ____________________________

Block II Fundamentals and Methods Courses emphasize research techniques in cultural anthropology, science and technology issues, cultural models and health, and/or globalization and culture.
Sample courses:
1. ANTH 238 Introduction to Medical Anthropology
2. ANTH 518 Research Methods in Sociocultural Anthropology
3. ANTH 260 Cultures of Science and Technology

Block III Perspectives courses emphasize anthropological perspectives on health, medicine, and society, including cross-cultural approaches to health and illness, urban poverty and violence, pharmaceuticals and global health, psychology and culture, health and urban communities, arts in healing, fat and society, food and culture, med anth use of alcohol, or a course on the anthropology of a specific region, such as Africa. Students can also take a course from the Human Biology concentration, including human evolution, forensic anthropology, or reproductive biology.
Sample Courses:
1. ANTH 273 Globalization and Health
2. ANTH 447 Human Reproductive Ecology
3. ANTH 441 Cross Cultural Approaches to Health and Illness
4. ANTH 190 Introduction to Africa

Contact the Undergraduate Coordinator for more information about other courses that count for these requirements.