

SSSOG A TRIPLE DEDICATION.

I. TO THE PUBLIC.

* In things indiff'rent Reafon bids us chufe,

" Whether the whim's a monkey or a mufe."

CHURCHILL:

WORTHY PATRONS,

andready

4-46

WERE I to addrefs you in the accuftomed declamatory ftrain which has long been adopted as the univerfal language of dedications, viz. FLATTERY, I fhould not only merit your contempt, for thus endeavouring to impofe upon your underftandings, but also render myself ridiculoufly confpicuous, by a feeble attempt to perform that, for which, as well by nature as long eftablished habit, I am totally difqualified.

On the other hand, I should esteem myself equally meriting your censure, as being guilty of a flagrant species of ingratitude, were I to omit availing myself of so favourable an opportunity

A 3

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.har Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

3

vi DEDICATION.

portunity as now prefents itfelf of expressing the respect and veneration I entertain for you, resulting from the very extensive and ample encouragement with which you have crowned my indefatigable exertions to obtain your patronage, by largely contributing to the diffusion of science and rational entertainment, on such moderate terms as were heretofore unknown.

Permit me to indulge the pleafing hope, that when I affert my mind is deeply impreffed with the most grateful fense of the obligation, I shall be honoured with credit. If this opinion be well founded, to enlarge on the subject were superfluous—if otherwife, the strongest arguments, the most splendid and forcible language could convey, would not ensure conviction; I therefore defist, fully persuaded that the most satisfactory demonstration I can possibly exhibit of the sincerity of this declaration, will be, an inviolable adherence to that uniform line of conduct

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.har tized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google at University of Penns main, Google-digitized Generated at Un Public Domain,

DEDICATION.

vit

conduct which has already fecured your approbation to a degree eminent as unprecedented, and which is indeed daily rendered more evident, by a progreffive increafe in the number and extent of your commands; trufting, that fo long as you find my practice invariably correspondent to those professions fo frequently exhibited to your notice (from which to deviate would render me unworthy your protection) you will, in defiance of all malignant opposition, firmly perfevere in the liberal fupport of him whose primary ambition it is, and during life shall be, to diffinguish himself as,

WORTHY PATRONS,

Your much obliged,

Ever grateful,

And devoted humble fervant,

Chifwell-Street, October 1791.

SONTDA 31

JAMES LACKINGTON.

A 4

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124

DEDICATION.

Viii

2. To that part of the numerous body of BOOKSELLERS of Great Britain and Ireland, whose conduct JUSTLY claims the additional title of RESPECTABLE;

Whofe candour and liberality he has in numerous inftances experienced, and feels a fenfible pleafure in thus publicly acknowledging.

And laftly (though not least in Fame)

3. To those fordid and malevolent BOOK-SELLERS, whether they resplendent dwell in stately mansfions, or in wretched huts of dark and grovelling obscurity;

-" I'll give every one a fmart lash in my way."-

To whofe affiduous and unwearied labours to injure his reputation with their brethren and the public, he is in a confiderable degree indebted for the confidence reposed in him, and the fuccess he has been honoured with, productive of his present prosperity,

THESE MEMOIRS

are, with all due difcrimination of the refpective merits of each, Infcribed by

AA

THE AUTHOR.

Digitized by Google

田田原用品店用

" To print, or not to print ?- that is the queffion :

- " Whether 'tis better in a trunk to bury
- " The quirks and crochets of outrageous fancy,
- " Or fend a well-wrote copy to the prefs,

themes Instanted

" And, by difclofing, end them ?-

" For who would bear th' impatient thirst of fame,

- " The pride of confcious merit, and 'bove all,
- " The tedious importunity of friends-

" To groan and fweat under a load of wit?

" The Critics do make cowards of us all." JAGO.

CUSTOM, it has been repeatedly observed by many of my worthy (and fome perhaps unworthy) predeceffors in authorship, has rendered a preface almost indispensibly neceffary; while others again have as frequently remarked, that " custom is the law of fools." Those confiderations induced me to hestitate whether I should usher my performance into the world with a preface, and thus hazard

Digitized by Google

Original from UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN

xii

hazard being claffed with the adherents to that law, or by omitting it, escape the opprobrium, for " who shall decide when doctors difagree ?" Now though I would not take upon me to decide in every point in which. doctors difagree, yet after giving the prefent fubject that mature confideration which fo important a concern required, I thought myfelf fully competent to decide, if not to general fatisfaction, at least fo as fully to fatisfy one particular perfon, for whom I profefs to have a very great regard, though perhaps few are to be found who would be equally condefcending to him; who that perfon is I do not with publicly to declare, as (being a very modest man) it might offend him, I shall only fay, the more you read the memoirs contained in the following pages, the better you will become acquainted with him. I ground my decifion on these arguments : I concluded, as most of my brethren of the quill do of their labours, that my per-xi

performance poffeffed fo much intrinfic merit, as would occafion it to be univerfally admired by all good judges, as a prodigious effort of human genius, and that this approbation must naturally excite the envy of fome authors, who had not met with that high applause they deemed themselves entitled to, and incline them to fearch for imperfections in my work, and though I was perfuaded of the impoffibility of their finding any, yet being thus foiled, they might catch at the want of a preface, and conftrue that into an omiffion, fo that in order to difarm them, I refolved to have one, efpecially as those who deem prefaces unneceffary may, if they choofe, decline reading it, whilft those on the other fide of the question, if there was none, might be difappointed, and have caufe for complaint; but to be ferious (if I can).

Almost every author on producing the effusions of his pen (and his brain if he has any)

XII

any) thinks it prudent to introduce himfelf by a kind of Prologue, as it may be called, stating his reasons with due precision for intruding himfelf on his readers (whether true or otherwife, is not always material to enquire) bespeaking their candour towards his weakneffes and imperfections (which by the bye, few authors are fo fenfible of their readers) and not unfrequently as endeavouring to foothe those GOLIAHS in literature, ycleped critics, (with whom not many little Davids are found hardy enough to contend) hoping thus to coax them into good humour; or, perhaps, if his vanity preponderates, he throws the gauntlet of defiance, with a view of terrifying them either to hold their peace, or to do justice to those mighty abilities be is confident he poffeffes in a degree eminently fuperior to most of his brethren.

For my own part, I difclaim adopting either of these modes: convinced, that in the

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 inia on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.har http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Generated at University of Pennsylvania on Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://

Digitized by Google

the first cafe, every reader, whatever the author may plead, will, (and indeed ought) to judge for himfelf; and with regard to professed critics, were I fo disposed (which I am not) neither my natural or acquired abilities enable me to bully those who must be very ill qualified for their task, if they were thus to be intimidated from declaring their real fentiments; and, on the other hand, to affect a degree of humility, and by flattery to aim at warping their minds, is, in my opinion, paying them a very bad compliment,

So much for others-now for myfelf :

Never should I have ventured to appear in this habit before the public, had not the following motives urged me thereto :

Many friends have frequently expressed a defire of obtaining from myself such particulars as they could rely on, of my passage through life, and many enemies (for such I have in common with other men, from the

xii

hazard being claffed with the adherents to that law, or by omitting it, efcape the opprobrium, for " who shall decide when doctors difagree ?" Now though I would not take upon me to decide in every point in which doctors difagree, yet after giving the prefent fubject that mature confideration which fo important a concern required, I thought myfelf fully competent to decide, if not to general fatisfaction, at least fo as fully to fatisfy one particular perfon, for whom I profels to have a very great regard, though perhaps few are to be found who would be equally condefcending to him; who that perfon is I do not with publicly to declare, as (being a very modest man) it might offend him, I shall only fay, the more you read the memoirs contained in the following pages, the better you will become acquainted with him. I ground my decifion on these arguments : I concluded, as most of my brethren of the quill do of their labours, that my per-performance poffeffed fo much intrinfic merit, as would occasion it to be universally admired by all good judges, as a prodigious effort of human genius, and that this approbation must naturally excite the envy of fome authors, who had not met with that high applaufe they deemed themfelves entitled to, and incline them to fearch for imperfections in my work, and though I was perfuaded of the impoffibility of their finding any, yet being thus foiled, they might catch at the want of a preface, and conftrue that into an omiffion, fo that in order to difarm them, I refolved to have one, efpecially as those who deem prefaces unneceffary may, if they choose, decline reading it, whilft those on the other fide of the question, if there was none, might be difappointed, and have caufe for complaint; but to be ferious (if I can).

Digitized by Google

Original from UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN

Almost every author on producing the effusions of his pen (and his brain if he has any)

xii

any) thinks it prudent to introduce himfelf by a kind of Prologue, as it may be called, stating his reasons with due precision for intruding himfelf on his readers (whether true or otherwife, is not always material to enquire) bespeaking their candour towards his weakneffes and imperfections (which by the bye, few authors are fo fenfible of as their readers) and not unfrequently endeavouring to foothe those GOLIAHS in literature, ycleped critics, (with whom not many little Davids are found hardy enough to contend) hoping thus to coax them into good humour; or, perhaps, if his vanity preponderates, he throws the gauntlet of defiance, with a view of terrifying them either to hold their peace, or to do justice to those mighty abilities he is confident he poffeffes in a degree eminently fuperior to most of his brethren.

For my own part, I difclaim adopting either of these modes: convinced, that in the

Digitized by Google

xiii

the first case, every reader, whatever the author may plead, will, (and indeed ought) to judge for himself; and with regard to professed critics, were I so disposed (which I am not) neither my natural or acquired abilities enable me to bully those who must be very ill qualified for their task, if they were thus to be intimidated from declaring their real sentiments; and, on the other hand, to affect a degree of humility, and by flattery to aim at warping their minds, is, in my opinion, paying them a very bad compliment.

So much for others-now for myfelf :

Never should I have ventured to appear in this habit before the public, had not the following motives urged me thereto :

Many friends have frequently expressed a defire of obtaining from myself such particulars as they could rely on, of my passage through life, and many enemies (for such I have in common with other men, from the

Digitized by Google

2

xiv

the monarch down to the poor cobler) have been industrious in propagating whatever reports they thought would best tend to impede my farther progress; among the rest, the editors of a periodical publication now on the decline (whether defervedly or not, let others determine) thought proper to exhibit me as they have done many much more eminent and distinguished characters, in a literary portrait, containing a few outlines it is true, but with some features which they must have known to be false.

After having been repeatedly threatened by a very particular friend and others, that if I declined drawing up a narrative, they were determined to do it for me, the first mentioned gentleman prevailed on me (as the most likely mode to bring it to a period) to devote now and then a spare hour in minuting down some of the most material occurrences of my life, and to fend them to him in an epistolary form, intending to digest the

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.har Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

the whole into a regular narrative for publication; that gentleman, however, on perufal, was of opinion, that it would be additionally acceptable to the curious part of the public, if exhibited to them in the plain and fimple manner in which thefe letters were written, as thus tending to difplay fuch traits and features of a fomewhat original character, and give a more perfect idea of " I, great I, the little hero of each tale," than any other mode that could have been adopted; efpecially, as many intelligent perfons were confident I could not write at all, while others kindly attributed to me what I never wrote,

" Then think, " That he who thus is forc'd to fpeak,

" Unlefs commanded, would have dy'd in filence".

If among the multitude of memoirs under which the prefs has groaned, and with which it still continues to be tortured, the following sheets should afford some degree of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.hav tized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Generated at University of Penns Public Domain, Google-digitized

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124

PREFACE,

XVI

of entertainment, as a relaxation from more grave and folid fludies, to an inquifitive and candid reader (thofe of an oppofite defcription are not to be pleafed with the ableft performance) and he fhould deem it not the worft, nor the moft expensive among the numerous tribe, I shall efteem myself amply rewarded; had I, however, been disposed to be more attentive to entertainment, and lefs to veracity, I might, to many, have rendered it much more agreeable, though lefs fatisfactory to myself, as I believe the observation long fince made to be just, that few books are so ill written, but that fomething may be gleaned from their perusal.

Should the infignificance of my life induce any perfon better qualified to prefent the world with bis, big with interefting events, my difpofing of feveral large editions of that performance will afford me more folid fatisfaction as a bookfeller, than any fuccefs or emolument which can poffibly arife

Ch

xvii

arife from this, my first, and most probably last, essay as an author.

If unfortunately any of my kind readers fhould find the book fo borrid dull and ftupid, that they cannot get through it, or if they do, and wifh not to travel the fame road again, I here declare my perfect readinefs to fupply them with abundance of books, much more learned, much more entertaining, much more witty, much more — whatever they pleafe, they never fhall want books while L. is able to affift them; and whether they prefer one of his writing, or that of any other author, he protefts he will not be in the fmalleft degree offended : let every author make the fame declaration if he can.

Should my memoirs be attended with no other benefit to fociety, they will at leaft tend to fhew what may be effected by a perfevering habit of induftry, and an upright confcientious demeanour in trade towards the public, and probably infpire fome one, of perhaps fuperior a abilities,

xviii PREFACE.

abilities, with a laudable ambition, to emerge from obfcurity, by a proper application of those talents with which Providence has favoured him, to his own credit and emolument, as well as the benefit of the community. To fuch an one I ever have, and ever shall with every possible fucces, as it has uniformly been my opinion, that whatever is thus acquired, is more honourable to the parties than the possession of wealth obtained without any intrinsic merit or exertion, and which is too frequently confumed with rapidity in the pursuit of vice and diffipation.

One word to my old friends the bookfellers under number three of my dedication. This publication it is to be expected will tend to excite fome degree of mirth in them. Confcious that I have often been the caufe (however unintentional on my part) of exciting lefs pleafing fenfations in them, I will readily allow them full fcope; however, according to the well known adage, "Let " them

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 inia on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.har http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Generated at University of Pennsylvania on Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://

" them laugh who win," I hope they will indulge me in the fame propenfity of laughing, if not at them, at leaft with them.

As a proof of my friendly difpofition, I fhall here add a piece of advice, which I do not hefitate to pronounce will, if attended to, entitle them to promotion in my firft clafs of bookfellers, and eventually prove more beneficial than a conftant perfeverance in the mode of conduct they have hitherto purfued; and those who have children will, I hope, fee the propriety of inculcating the fame doctrine to them for their future benefit : and as I flatter myself my advice will prove equally productive of benefit to great numbers of the community at large as to bookfellers. It is this:

If they observe any person by industry and application endeavouring to obtain an honest livelihood in that line for which his talents or disposition have qualified him, never to attempt, by dark inuendoes, fly hints, and a 2 false

Digitized by Google

XVI

of entertainment, as a relaxation from more grave and folid ftudies, to an inquifitive and candid reader (those of an opposite description are not to be pleased with the ablest performance) and he should deem it not the worst, nor the most expensive among the numerous tribe, I shall esteem myself amply rewarded; had I, however, been disposed to be more attentive to entertainment, and less to veracity, I might, to many, have rendered it much more agreeable, though less fatisfactory to myself, as I believe the observation long fince made to be just, that few books are so ill written, but that something may be gleaned from their perusal.

Should the infignificance of my life induce any perfon better qualified to prefent the world with bis, big with interesting events, my disposing of several large editions of that performance will afford me more folid fatisfaction as a bookfeller, than any success or emolument which can possibly arise

Ch

xvii

arife from this, my first, and most probably last, effay as an author.

If unfortunately any of my kind readers fhould find the book fo borrid dull and ftupid, that they cannot get through it, or if they do, and wifh not to travel the fame road again, I here declare my perfect readinefs to fupply them with abundance of books, much more learned, much more entertaining, much more witty, much more — whatever they pleafe, they never fhall want books while L. is able to affift them; and whether they prefer one of his writing, or that of any other author, he protefts he will not be in the fmalleft degree offended : let every author make the fame declaration if he can.

Should my memoirs be attended with no other benefit to fociety, they will at leaft tend to fhew what may be effected by a perfevering habit of industry, and an upright confcientious demeanour in trade towards the public, and probably infpire fome one, of perhaps fuperior a abilities,

xviii PREFACE.

abilities, with a laudable ambition, to emerge from obfcurity, by a proper application of thofe talents with which Providence has favoured him, to his own credit and emolument, as well as the benefit of the community. To fuch an one I ever have, and ever fhall with every poffible fuccefs, as it has uniformly been my opinion, that whatever is thus acquired, is more honourable to the parties than the poffefiion of wealth obtained without any intrinfic merit or exertion, and which is too frequently confumed with rapidity in the purfuit of vice and diffipation.

One word to my old friends the bookfellers under number three of my dedication. This publication it is to be expected will tend to excite fome degree of mirth in them. Confcious that I have often been the caufe (however unintentional on my part) of exciting lefs pleafing fenfations in them, I will readily allow them full fcope; however, according to the well known adage, "Let " them

xix

" them laugh who win," I hope they will indulge me in the fame propenfity of laughing, if not at them, at least with them.

As a proof of my friendly difpofition, I fhall here add a piece of advice, which I do not hefitate to pronounce will, if attended to, entitle them to promotion in my firft clafs of bookfellers, and eventually prove more beneficial than a conftant perfeverance in the mode of conduct they have hitherto purfued; and those who have children will, I hope, fee the propriety of inculcating the fame doctrine to them for their future benefit : and as I flatter myself my advice will prove equally productive of benefit to great numbers of the community at large as to bookfellers. It is this:

If they observe any perfor by industry and application endeavouring to obtain an honest livelihood in that line for which his talents or disposition have qualified him, never to attempt, by dark inuendoes, fly hints, and a 2 false

/ https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.hav Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

XX

falfe afperfions, to injure him, as, if he happens to be a man of a becoming fpirit, fuch conduct will only tend to increafe his exertions, and render him ftill more cautious to obtain a good character; in fo doing their weapons will recoil on themfelves, and they will have the mortification to fee him flourifh, whilft they become objects of contempt in the eyes of the public, and will of courfe be avoided by them.

But I forget myfelf, from debating whether a preface was really neceffary or not. If I proceed thus, I shall produce one as long as my book, as indeed fome of my feniors in authorship have done before me, though not altogether confistent with propriety.

I will therefore conclude with a wifh that my readers may enjoy the feaft with the fame good humour with which I have prepared it; they will meet with fome folid though not much coarfe food, and the major part, I hope, light.

light and eafy of digeftion; those with keen appetites will partake of each difh, while others more delicate may felect fuch difhes as are more light, and better adapted to their palates; they are all genuine British fare, one difh of French constitution ragout excepted. But left they should be at a loss to know what the entertainment confifts of, I beg leave to inform them that it contains forty-fix dishes of various fizes, which (if they calculate the expence of their admission tickets) they will find does not amount to three balfpence per difh; and what I hope they will confider as immenfely valuable (in compliance with the precedent of a modern author, eminent in the culinary fcience,) a firiking likeness of their Cook into the bargain.

I have also prepared a bill of fare; turn over this leaf, and you will find it. Ladies and Gentlemen, pray be feated; you are heartily welcome, and much good may it do you.

a 3

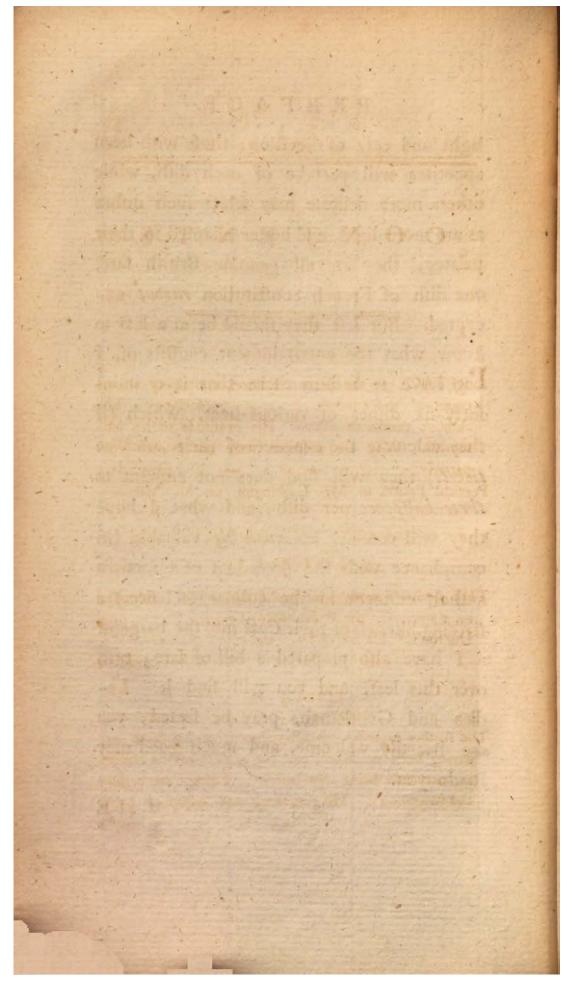

273

THE

xxi

Digitized by Google

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124

CONTENTS.

LETTER I.

THE Author's motives for publishing his life. Remarks on a portrait in the "Scandalous Chronicle." On John Dunton's "life and errors," and errors of others.

page 49

LETTER II.

The Author expresses his aftonishment at his birth not having been predicted, and the neglect of the adepts in not calculating his nativity. Eulogy on taylors and shoemakers. His genealogy and auspicious birth. 24 Censure

CONTENTS.

xxiv

Cenfure of his and other bad fathers. Dies unregreted by his children. Encomium on his mother. page 55

LETTER III.

Our hero's juvenile exploits. Becomes agent to an eminent pie merchant. More ingenious exploits. Elopes. Is by his father initiated into the gentle craft. page 63

LETTER IV.

A horrid fpectre appears. Rendered harmless by the valour of our hero. His opinion of supernatural appearances. Story of a black and a white devil. Its confequences prove fatal. A house haunted. The ghost bastinadoed, and publicly exhibited. Another house haunted, and the ghost discovered. A ghost fond of poultry, detected. Sagacious remarks on the subject. An hospital haunted. — page 68

LETTER V.

The CAT let out of the bag. Mr. Higley's ghoft. Our hero transformed into a vender of almanacks. Is bound apprentice to a fhoemaker. Character of the family. Remarks on dull inanimate preachers. page 83

LETTER

LETTER VI.

Farther particulars of the family. Contents of their *li*brary. One of the family converted to methodifm. Converts another. Controverfies enfue. Our hero learns to read. Is born again. Becomes one of the flock, ______ page 91

LETTER VII,

The methodifts often ruin the peace of mind of many very innocent people. Methodiftical conviction a dreadful ftate. Should only take place in rafcals. A terrible inftance of a real guilty confcience attended with fuicide. The methodifts are unhappy. Their prophecy of the end of the world on a certain day. Another alarm by the comet's tail. Fanatics have in every age found their account in fuch predictions. Mrs. Norton's deed of gift to Reilly the preacher fet afide, page 101

LETTER VIII.

Our hero's rigid application to the fludy of divinity. Becomes an able and zealous controvertift. Is debarred from attending a methodiffical fermon. Makes a dangerous leap. Efcapes with his life. — page 111

LETTER IX.

Death of his mafter hastened by his fons turning methodists. Charitable conclusion thereon. Gives full fcope too

CONTENTS.

xxvi

to methodifm. Some particulars of the practices of Mr. Wefley's fociety. Prayer meetings. Love feafts. Private meetings. — — — page 177

LETTER X.

Watch nights. Claffes. Bands. An old buck tempted by the devil and bis maid. Select bands. Tickets. page 125

LETTER XI.

The fubject of methodifm continued. Our hero fuddenly becomes a backflider. An election for members of parliament. His freedom purchafed. Riot. Diffipation. Remorfe. Vifits Wellington and Briftol. Returns to Taunton. Our hero enamoured. Accompanied by his fair one to Bridgewater, to Uxbridge. Leaves her. Arrives at Briftol. Purfued by parifh officers. Efcapes. _____ page 134

LETTER XII.

Story of an amorous gentleman and a blundering oftler. Strange flory of Mr. Balwin. His death. Story of praying a perfon to death. Fortune-teller foretold a perfon's death. Of trifling with the lives of our fellowcreatures. _____ page 143

LETTER

inia on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.or

LETTER XIII.

Our hero forms a friendship. Mode of life pursued by the friends. His first visit to a theatre. Ned Shuter was a methodist. Mr. Whitsield advised people to attend Shuter's benefit. Inspired by the muse. Composes songs before he could write. The friends become affiduous students. Our hero relapses into methodism. His friend displeafed; is however with his brother and sister converted. Story of a methodist parrot. Goddy-mighty's little mutton. page 153

LETTER XIV.

The brother, fifter, and our hero form an un on. Purfue their ftudies vigoroufly. Their curious library. Our hero's lucubrations nearly attended with fatal confequences. His great talents for controverfy. page 169

LETTER XV.

Our hero reads and admires the ftoics, &c. The philofophical difpolition he acquired by ftudying them. Lived on bread and tea. Travels with his friend to Bridgewater, who there obtains work. Our hero goes to Taunton, Exeter, Kingfbridge. Meets with a kind mafter. Obtains great applause for his work. Teaches himfelf to write. His chaplain. Epigram on a methodist preacher. Lives gay. Becomes poor. Leaves Kingfbridge.

CONTENTS.

bridge. Goes to Exeter, Bridgewater, Briftol. Very droll ftory of Mr. Whitefield. _____ page 175

LETTER XVI.

His amours. In love with a dairy-maid. Their fpiritual courtfhip. Lofes her for a time. Attaches himfelf to another holy fifter. They differ. — page 187

LETTER XVII.

The correspondence with the fair dairy-maid renewed. She arrives at Briftol. They visit the temple of Hymen. Begin the world with a halfpenny, love, and contentment. page 193

LETTER XVIII.

Our hero and his bride confined with fickness. He foon recovers. She continues long ill. His anxiety on the occafion. Their repeated journey to Taunton and back again. He fets out for and arrives at London, - page 199

LETTER XIX.

He is introduced to the methodifts. Shoked at the depraved mode of life in the metropolis. His confolation. Mrs. L. arrives in town. She obtains work. Anecdote of an honeft falefman. Our hero's grandfather dies. A large legacy. He goes to receive it. Loofes part of it in returning. Commits a faux pas. _____ page 205

LETTER

XXVIII

LETTER XX.

A mental feaft preferable to a corporeal one proved by incontrovertible arguments. Our hero turns bookfeller. His motive, for fo doing. Catalogue of his private library. exposed for fale with fome other choice books. Filled with vanity. Curious resolutions. page 214

LETTER XXI.

Succeis attends our bookfeller. Stock enlarged by a loan. Inftances of frugality. Rapid increase of flock. Removes to Chifwell Street. Farewel to gentle craft. Scruples of confcience in a bookfeller ! Learned differtation on bargain-hunters, illustrated with cases in point. Pawnbrokers fell things not pawned. Attacked by a fevere illnes. Mrs. L. taken ill. Her death, and character. Our hero recovers. _____ page 221

LETTER XXII.

Curious anecdotes of very spiritual ladies. - page 229

LETTER XXIII.

Obfervations on carnality and fpirituality. Anecdotes of feveral carnal preachers. Of a lady both carnally and fpiritually minded, and her hufband. Of the prolific methodifts at Wellington, and near Oxford. A young lady first converted, and then debauched. — page 236

LETTER

XXX

LETTER XXIV.

Detail of occurrences during the fickness of our hero. Is robbed by nurses and neglected by them. His life faved by the care of his fifters. His property, by the kindness of friends. The humane attention paid to his late wife by Miss Turton. Her fickness in confequence. Recovers. Particulars of her and her family. Her filial pity. Industry-Fondness for books. Our hero obtains this valuable prize. page 244

LETTER XXV.

Reflections on late events and prefent happinefs. Reads an author, who infpires him with new ideas, and occafions a change in his fyftem. Metaphyfics engage his attention. Quits the fociety of methodifts. Abstinence taught by their preachers. Their own practice the reverfe. Milk-woman drove mad. A bookfeller has his hair dreffed on Saturday night, and fleeps all night in his elbow chair. John Biggs a perfect man, his hand-bill. page 251

LETTER XXVI.

The alarm raifed among methodifts. Their pious anxiety for his fpiritual welfare. A taylor ftrips to preach. A comfortable quotation from Mr. Hill. Our hero treats them with contempt and ridicule. They confign him to deftruction. Dean Swift's curious ludicrous verfes on a ferious fubject. page 261

LETTER

LETTER XXVII.

The author's general opinion of the Methodifts favourable. Many hypocrites among them. Reflections on their conduct towards condemned criminals. Cautions againft dealing with those exposing pious fhop-bills. A pious dealer in rumps, burs, and sheep's heads. Another in tripe, and cow-heels. A third, a rat-killer. A pious common councilman. A methodist ties the legs of his cocks to prevent their breaking the Sabbath by treading the hens on Sundays. page 269

LETTER XXVIII.

Death of Mr. Wefley. His funeral. The contention among his pious biographers. His annual income. Difregard of wealth. Extensive charity. Learning and abilities. Remarks on his "primitive physic." Dangerous tendancy of that work. Dom Pernety's wonderful receipts. Mr. Wefley ruled defpotically. His decease likely to prove injurious to methodism. Swedenborgians an increasing fect. The Counters of Huntingdon's death another loss to methodism. page 278

LETTER XXIX.

Strictures on Mr. Wefley's preachers. Extreme ignorance of many of them. Suited to that of their hearers. Fatal effects of their enthuliafm. A woman deprived of her fenfes. Her fervant killed by fafting. One eats afs's fleih for confcience' fake. A preacher fets the devil's houfe on fire. Preaches, but is violently expelled his

xxxii

his portable pulpit. Numbers qualifying themfelves in Moorfields for preachers. Some fucceed to profefforships in Bethlem college. Apple and iron-merchants transformed into preachers. Methodist conference. Mr. Wesley appoints the circuits for all his preachers. How they are maintained. Their Wages, &c. Poem on them. page 292

LETTER XXX.

Account of an extraordinary pamphlet. Quotations from it. Anecdotes of Mr. Wefley and his preachers, difcovering their hypocrify. Large fums collected for Kingfwood fchool, never applied to that ufe. Methodift converfion ridiculed. Mr. Wefley's character. An epicure. A deift. Collected fome hundred thousand pounds a year. Two extraordinary letters by Mr. Wefley. page 304

LETTER XXXI.

Our hero's narrative refumed. Mrs. L.'s attachment and attention to the bufinefs. He enters into partnership. Confiderably increase their stock. Publish a catalogue, which is laughed at by some, damned by others. The partners feparate on terms of friendship, which continued till Mr. D.'s death. Character of him. page 326

LETTER XXXII

Inconveniences attending tradefmen giving credit. Refolution formed to fell very cheap, and for ready money

xxxiii

thereby. The various difficulties encountered page 335

LETTER XXXIII.

The author's fale of books confiderably increases. A difficulty not foreseen. Many, though willing to buy, fcrupulous of felling, from a mistaken idea. Covetous dealers. Liberal dealers. The author's plan for purchasing libraries. page 341

LETTER XXXIV.

A practice of bookfellers deftroying great numbers of books. The author refolves to adopt a mode for *preferving*them. Enmity created thereby. The happy confequences to him, the public, and bookfellers. page 346

LETTER XXXV.

Remarks on purchafing manufcripts. Bookfellers liberality. Inftances of it. Authors form great expectations: Remarkable anecdotes. Authors publifhing and felling their own productions never anfwers. Bookfellers often hurt the fale of books. — page 353

LETTER XXXVI.

A vaft increase of customers. Attended with proportionable expences. Enumeration of immensely large purchases made. Author intimidated, resolves to disconb continue continue fuch purchafes. A torrent of bufinefs occafions him to alter that refolution, and perfevere in purchafing largely. Attended with great fuccefs. The improbability of meeting with a rival. page 361

xxxiv

LETTER XXXVII.

How our author acquired a fufficient knowledge of the value of books. Further account of his fludies. No pretender to erudition. His attention to theatrical entertainments. Translations of the claffics. To novels. To natural philosophy. A rational affembly. Eulogy on one of its members. Reflections on the difadvantages of want of education, and other fubjects. page 367

LETTER XXXVIII.

Obfervations on the knowledge of the world. The manner of the author's acquiring that knowledge. A bookfeller's fhop an excellent fchool. Defcant on the variety of taftes in purchafing of books. Sale of books much affected by the ftate of politics. Farmers read. Exceedingly encreafed of late years. Book clubs. Sunday fchools. If enlightening the lower orders will make them happier. — page 379

LETTER XXXIX.

The progrefs of the author's expences proportioned to his encreafe of income. Kind obfervations made thereon. The different modes of accounting for his profperity. The

CONTENTS:

The real caufe. Reflections on the miferable lives and unhappy end of fome opulent tradefmen. Address to covetous tradefmen. Annual profits of the author. page 392

LETTER XL.

The author's mode of flating his profits and expences. Hints and infinuations for him to decline bufinefs. His reasons for not doing it. His attention to poor relations. Proofs that his mode of felling has not been injurious, but beneficial to the trade. page 401

LETTER XLI.

The author's travels. Remarks on marvellous travellers. Scarcity of valuable books in various parts of Great Britain. London the grand emporium. Industry and ingenuity of the bookfellers of Ireland. Account of a remarkable crow's neft at Newcaftle. Of a young lady born deaf and dumb. The Brank, a remedy for foolds, defcribed, with a cut. Proper Remarks. page 411

LETTER XLII.

fourney to Tatanton, Wellington, &c. The suffer a Difafters in travelling from Darlington to Durham. Philofophical reflections thereon, and on the careleffnels of drivers of flages. A lady killed. An unlucky flip of page 424 the pen. the explohan of poweler mille.

super very old friends in difficult. An affecting forme

b 2

LETTER

Original from

UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN

antorre form.

XXXV

xxxvi

LETTER XLIII.

LETTER XLIV.

Panegyric on WOMEN. More handfome women feen in Scotland, among the higher claffes than elfewhere. Not fo with the inferior ranks. Curious mode of washing linen, Maid fervants in Edinburgh and London contrasted. — page 449

LETTER XLV.

Journey to Taunton, Wellington, &c. The author's vifits to his old mafters. Meets with abundance of old acquaintance whom he had never before feen. Is kindly received by the more refpectable inhabitants. Behaviour of fome petty gentry, real gentlemen act differently. A remarkable prediction. Another by an adept in palmiftry. Narrowly efcapes being killed by the explofion of powder mills. Unexpectedly meets with two very old friends in diftrefs. An affecting fcene. Symmonds's Symmonds's Barrow, near Wellington, brought by the devil in his leathern apron. Others in his glove. page 456

LETTER XLVI.

Remarks on watering places. Abfurd practices of many invalids attending them. Different modes of fpending time. Powerful effect produced on horfes. Excellent academies for fervants. Vifit to Weymouth. Finds their Majefties there. Account of Mr. Hughes, manager of the theatre. The amphitheatre near Dorchefter. Camps. Fortifications. Barrows. Stonehenge. Encomium on Mr. Keenan. A prayer. page 471

b 3

PREFACE

xxxvii

Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124
Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

AND THE STATION OF Carrie X

Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124
Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

PREFACE

TO THE SECOND EDITION.

- " 'Tis nothing new, I'm fure you know,
- " For those who write, their works to show ;
- " And if they're prais'd, and render'd vain,
- " "Tis ten to one they write again :
- " And then they read it o'er with care,
- " Correcting here, and adding there,"

Mrs. SAVAGE.

THE former edition of my Memoirs was no fooner published, than my old envious friends, mentioned in the third class of my dedication, found out that it was "d—n'd ftuff! d—n'd low!" the production of a cobler, and only fit to amuse that honourable fraternity, or to line their garrets and ftalls: and many gentlemen, who are my customers, have informed me, that when they asked for them at several shops, they received

b 4

Digitized by Google

PREFACE TO THE

xl

ved for an anfwer, that they had already too much wafte paper, and would not increase it by keeping Lackington's Memoirs: and fome kindly added, " You need not be in a haste to purchase, as in the course of the Chriftmas holidays, Mr. Birch in Cornhill will wrap up all his mince-pies with them, and diffribute them through the town for the public good." But the rapid fale of this Life foon caufed them to alter their ftories : and I was very much furprifed to hear that feveral of those gentlemen, who had fcarce done exclaiming, " Vile trafh! beneath all criticism !" &c. began to praise the compofition; and on looking into the English Review, I found that the editors had filled feven pages in reviewing those Memoirs, and had bestowed much praise on the author. I was then ready to conclude, that their generous and manly impartiality had, in a miraculous manner, effected the conversion of others. But I was foon convinced, that mean-

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.har tized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Generated at University of Penns Public Domain, Google-digitized

SECOND EDITION. xli

meannefs can never be exchanged for generofity; and that those that had been "unclean were unclean still;" or, as Churchhill fays,

- " That envy, which was woven in the frame
- " At first, will to the last remain the fame.
- " Reafon may drown, may die, but envy's rage,
- " Improves with time, and gathers ftrength from age."

It feems that feveral of those liberal-minded men, being prodigiously mortified at the encreasing fale of my Life, applied to different authors in order to get one of them to father my book: but those authors, either from principle, or from knowing that my manuscript was kept in my shop for the inspection of the public, or for some other motive, refused to adopt the poor bantling: and not only so, but laughed at, and exposed the mean contrivance, to the very great disappointment of those kind and honest-bearted friends of mine,

That

1xii PREFACE TO THE

That I might not be juftly charged with ingratitude, I take this opportunity of thanking my friends, cuftomers, and the public, for their candid reception of my volume; the fale of which, and the encomiums I have received on the fubject, both by letter and otherwife, have far exceeded my most fanguine and felf-flattering expectations; I very fensibly feel the obligation. Their generofity has overwhelmed me, I am overpaid, and remain their debtor,

" A truce with jefting; what I here impart

" Is the warm overflowings of a grateful heart ;

" Come good, come bad, while life or mem'ry laft,

" My mind shall treasure up your favours past."

But, left I fhould be over vain, I muft at the fame time declare, that I have received fcurrilous abufive letters from feveral of Mr. Wefley's people, merely becaufe I have expofed their ridiculous principles and abfurd practices; but more particularly, for having pulled

SECOND EDITION. 1xiii

Pulled off the hypocritical veil from fome of those fanctified deceivers which are among them.

The numerous letters of approbation which I have received from rational intelligent gentlemen, convinces me that I have not wronged the cause of manly and rational christianity, nor was it ever my intention so to do.

I here also prefent my compliments and fincere thanks to my impartial friends, under the fecond class of my dedication, for the friendly disposition they have shewn, in freely distributing my Memoirs among their customers, and they may be affured, that I will not let ship any opportunity of making them proper returns for all their favours.

I cannot conclude this Preface without faying fomething about this fecond edition.

When I put the first edition to the prefs, I really intended to print but a small number; fo that when I was prevailed on, by fome fome of my friends, to print double the number which I at first proposed, I had not the least idea of ever being able to fell the whole; and of course had not any intention of printing a fecond edition. But the rapid fale of the work, and the many letters which I am continually receiving from Gentlemen, in various parts of Great Britain and Ireland, who are pleased to honour me with their approbation and thanks, encouraged me to read the whole over with more attention, to correct fuch typographical errors as had escaped my observation, and to improve the language in numberless places.

Ixiv PREFACE TO THE

In executing this plan, I perceived that I had omitted to introduce many things which would have been an improvement to the work; and while inferting them, others occurred to my memory, fo that most parts of the work is now very much enlarged. But although these additions have greatly increased the expences of printing and paper, yet I have not added any thing to the price.

To

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.har main, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Generated at Ur Public Domain,

SECOND EDITION. lxv

To fuch as afk why thefe additions had not been printed feperately, to the end that fuch as purchased the first edition, might have had them without purchasing the whole work over again? I answer, had it been practical, I would have done that; but those additions being fo many, and fo various, rendered that method ridiculous, as every one who will take the trouble to compare the two editions, must readily acknowledge; nor can the purchafers of the former edition complain with refpect to the price, it being equal in fize to most new publications which are fold at Six Shillings. And although fome may think that the prefixed head is of no value, I can affure them, that I am of a very different opinion, at least of the original; and I have the pleafure to add, that a very great number of my customers have been highly pleafed to have fo ftriking a likenefs of their old bookfeller. Nor am I the first bookseller who has published his head ;

xlvi PREFACE, &c.

head; Mr. Nicolfon (commonly called Maps,) bookfeller at Cambridge, two years fince, had his head finely engraven; it is a good likenefs, and is fold at 10s. 6d. Francis Kirkman, partner with Richard Hend (laft century) prefixed his portrait to a book, entitled "The Wits, or Sport upon Sport." This Francis Kirkman alfo publifhed Memoirs of his own Life, and probably led the way to John Dunton. See Granger's Biographical Hiftory of England, vol. iv.

I could make many other apologies-

Digitized by Google

A.A.

VERSES

Occafioned by reading

The LIFE of Mr. JAMES LACKINGTON.

Addreffed to the ingenious AUTHOR.

By his UNKNOWN FRIEND.

SINCE your Pen, Friend Unknown, fuch improvement conveys,

"Tis but juffice to you that this Tribute repays; For when in the Bofom mild Gratitude burns, "Tis a pleafing relief which the Feeling returns: For as dear as the Light to the thoughts of the Blind, Is the Pen, or the Voice, that enlightens the Mind; And the more, as from Nature and Genius untaught Your various adventures and humour are brought, Which difplay all the farce of the Methodift Plan, The fhame of Religion, of Reafon, and Man; While no Libertine Motives their Secrets difpenfe, But Propriety joins hand-in-hand with good Senfe,

Digitized by Google

Oh!

Ixviii VERSES ADDRESSED TO THE AUTHOR.

Oh! with thee, could the Crowd view each fanctified fcene, Where the Hypocrite oft wears Simplicity's mien ; Where youth, fecond-childhood, and weaknefs of Sex, Are objects they ever prefer to perplex; Like thee, they'd contemn, or indignantly leave, Whom Folly, and Knav'ry, combine to deceive; And whofe Newgate-Conversions blafphemoufly paint The Wretch most deprav'd, the most excellent Saint. Go on; and difcover each latent defign, And your rivals expose, who 'gainft Learning combine : O'er fuch craft shall fair conduct, like thine, still prevail, And an envy'd fuccefs lay them low in the Scale. But as Time is too fhort all your fteps to retrace, Let your LIFE fpeak the reft, and fucceed in their place : How Books mend the manners; and now fo abound, Where Rudenefs and Ignorance lately were found. But plain Truth, for itfelf, it must still be confest, Is the faithfulleft advocate-therefore the beft : So I rife from the Feaft with a fatisfied mind, That the fame every Tafte, and each Temper, may find, Still, to drop all comparison, Mental's the fare, That needs only good-tafte to invite us to fhare ; Entertainment and Knowledge, the objects in view; Then receive, as the Donor, the Praife that is due. C. H---S.

BURY ST. EDMUND'S.

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 use#pd-google nia on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / h http://www.hathitrust.org/access Pennsylvania University of Penns n, Google-digitized Generated at Un Public Domain,

L I F · E

OF

7. LACKINGTON,

BOOKSELLER.

LETTER I.

" Others with wifhful eyes on Glory look,

" When they have got their picture toward a book,

" Or pompous title, like a gaudy Sign

" Meant to betray dull fots to wretched wine,

" If at his title L--- had dropt his quill,

" L- might have past for a great genius still :

" But L-, alas! (excufe him if you can)

" Is now a Scribbler, who was once a man.

Young's Love of Fame.

DEAR FRIEND,

YOU have often requested me to devote what few leifure moments I could fpare, in minuting down fome of the principal occurrences of my life, with a view, fooner or later, of exhibiting the account

B

Ixviii VERSES ADDRESSED TO THE AUTHOR.

Oh! with thee, could the Crowd view each fanctified fcene, Where the Hypocrite oft wears Simplicity's mien ; Where youth, fecond-childhood, and weaknefs of Sex, Are objects they ever prefer to perplex ; Like thee, they'd contemn, or indignantly leave, Whom Folly, and Knav'ry, combine to deceive; And whofe Newgate-Conversions blafphemoully paint The Wretch most deprav'd, the most excellent Saint. Go on; and difcover each latent defign, And your rivals expose, who 'gainft Learning combine : O'er fuch craft shall fair conduct, like thine, still prevail, And an envy'd fuccefs lay them low in the Scale. But as Time is too fhort all your fteps to retrace, Let your LIFE fpeak the reft, and fucceed in their place : How Books mend the manners; and now fo abound, Where Rudenefs and Ignorance lately were found. But plain Truth, for itfelf, it must still be confest, Is the faithfulleft advocate-therefore the beft : So I rife from the Feaft with a fatisfied mind, That the fame every Tafte, and each Temper, may find. Still, to drop all comparison, Mental's the fare, That needs only good-tafte to invite us to fhare ; Entertainment and Knowledge, the objects in view; Then receive, as the Donor, the Praife that is due.

BURY ST. EDMUND'S.

Digitized by Google

C. H----S.

THE ## LIFE

OF

J. LACKINGTON,

BOOKSELLER.

LETTER I.

" Others with withful eyes on Glory look,

" When they have got their picture toward a book,

" Or pompous title, like a gaudy Sign

" Meant to betray dull fots to wretched wine,

" If at his title L---- had dropt his quill,

" L- might have past for a great genius still :

" But L____, alas! (excufe him if you can)

" Is now a Scribbler, who was once a man.

Young's Love of Fame.

DEAR FRIEND,

YOU have often requefted me to devote what few leifure moments I could fpare, in minuting down fome of the principal occurrences of my life, with a view, fooner or later, of exhibiting the account to the public eye; who, as you were pleafed to fay, could not but be fomewhat curious to learn fome well-authenticated particulars of a man, well known to have rifen from an obfcure origin to a degree of notice, and to a participation of the favor of the Public, in a particular line of bufinefs, I may without vanity fay, hitherto unprecedented. This will appear more confpicuous if you confider, that I was not only poor, but laboured under every other difadvantage.

B

count

Ever willing to pay a becoming deference to the judgment of a perfon of your acknowledged merits, and whom I have the felicity of numbering among my firmeft friends, yet being lefs anxious to appear as an adventurer among the numerous tribe of authors, than to continue a confiderable vender of the produce of their labours, I have continually delayed complying with your kind wifhes.— By the bye, does the publication of a Catalogue of Books entitle the compiler to the name of Author? If it does, many Bookfellers fellers have long had a claim to that diffinction, by the annual publication of their Catalogues, and myfelf, as author of a very voluminous one every fix months. The reafon for my afking this queftion is, I laft year obferved, that a certain bookfeller publifhed his firft Catalogue with this introduction:——" As this is the firft Catalogue ever the AUTHOR made, and is done in great hafte, he hopes inaccuracies will be treated with lenity."

51

But to return from this digreffion. I fhould probably have fill delayed compiling my narrative, if the editors of a certain periodical publication, who monthly labor to be witty, had not deemed me of fufficient confequence to introduce into their work, what they are pleafed to call a Portrait of me ! and though it was by them intended as a caricatura, yet I am perfuaded it will appear to those who best know me, as a daubing more characteristic of the heavy brush of a manufacturer of figns, than the delicate pencil of a true portrait-painter; and on that B 2 account account I should most certainly have confidered it as unworthy notice, had they not daubed me with false features. This at once determined my wavering refolution, and I am now fully refolved to minute down fuch particulars of my paffage through life, as, though not adorned with an elegance of ftile, will, I affure you, poffefs what to you, I flatter myfelf, will be a greater recommendation, viz. a ftrict adherence to truth. And though no doubt you will meet with fome occurrences in which you may find caule for cenfure, yet I hope others will prefent themfelves, which your candour will induce you to commend. Should you be able to afford the whole a patient perufal, and think the account meriting the public eye, I fhall cheerfully fubmit to your decifion, convinced that you will not,

52

" With mean complacence e'er betray your truft,

" Nor be fo civil as to prove unjuft."

John Dunton, a brother Bibliopole, long fince exhibited a whole volume of dulnefs, which he called his "Life and errors." The latter latter term I believe might be a very proper appendage to the title page of the innumerable lives which have been, and which will be publifhed: For what man will dare to fay of himfelf, his life has not been loaded with errors? That mine has been fuch, I readily acknowledge; and fhould this narrative be publifhed, many perhaps may deem that act another (poffibly the greateft) error. To those I fhall only observe, that "to err is human, to forgive divine."

As an additional ftimulus, I can affure you as an abfolute fact, that feveral gentlemen have at different periods (one very lately) intimated to me their intentions of engaging in the tafk, if I any longer declined it.

Of my first-mentioned kind Biographers I shall take my leave, with a couplet, many years fince written by an eminent poet, and not inapplicable to the present case.

" Let B— charge low Grub-Street on my quill, " And write whate'er he pleafe, except MX WILL.

B 3

And

Digitized by Google

54

And of you, for the prefent, after informing you, my next fhall contain a faithful account of particulars relative to the early part of my life, with affuring you that I am,

Dear Friend,

Your ever obliged.

LETTER

LETTER II.

" Why fhould my birth keep down my mounting Spirit ?

" Are not all creatures fubject unto time;

" To time, who doth abufe the world,

" And fills it full of hotch-podge baftardy ?

" There's legions now of beggars on the Earth,

" That their original did fpring from Kings ;

" And many monarchs now, whofe fathers were

" The riff-raff of their age; for time and fortune

" Wears out a noble train to beggary ;

* And from the dunghill millions do advance

" To ftate; and mark, in this admiring world

" This is the courfe, which in the name of fate

" Is feen as often as it whirls about ;

" The river Thames that by our door doth run,

" His first beginning is but fmall and shallow,

" Yet keeping on his courfe grows to a fea.

SHAKESPEAR'S Cromwell.

55

DEAR FRIEND,

IN my laft I hinted that I fhould confine myfelf to a plain narrative of facts, unembellifhed with the meretricious aid of lofty figures, or reprefentations of things which never had exiftence, but in the brain of the author. I fhall therefore not trouble you with a hiftory of predictions which foretold the future greatnefs of your B 4 humble humble fervant, nor with a minute account of the afpects of the planets at the very aufpicious and important crifis when first I inhaled the air of this buffling orb; for, extraordinary as it may appear, it has never yet occurred to me, that any of the adepts in the aftrological fcience have made a calculation of my nativity; 'tis probable this high honor is by the planets defined to adorn the fublime lucubrations of the very ingenious Mr. SIBLEY, in the next edition of his flup-endous work ! And here, for the honor of the craft let me remark, that this most fublime genius, has with myfelf, to boaft (and who would not boaft of their genealogy in having a prince for their anceftor ?) in being a Son of the renowned PRINCE CRISPIN.

56

A volume has been written with the title of "The Honor of the Taylors; or the Hiftory of Sir JOHN HAWKWOOD." But were any learned writer to undertake— The honor of the Shoemakers, or the Hiftory of —, how infignificant a figure would the

Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

57

the poor Taylors make, when compared with the honorable craft !

" Coblers from Crifpin boaft their Public Spirit,

" And all are upright downright men of merit."

Should I live to fee as many editions of my Memoirs published, as there have been of the Pilgrim's Progress, I may be induced to present the world with a Folio on that important subject.

But to begin-

Were I inclined to pride myfelf in genealogical defcent, I might here boaft that the family were originally fettled at White Lackington, in Somerfetfhire, which obtained its name from one of my famous anceftors, and give you a long detail of their grandeur, &c. but having as little leifure as inclination to boaft of what if true would add nothing to my merits, I fhall for the prefent only fay, that I was born at Wellington in Somerfetfhire, on the 31ft of Auguft, (old ftyle) 1746. My father George Lackington, was a Journeyman neyman Shoemaker, who had incurred the difpleafure of my grandfather for marrying my mother, whofe maiden name was Joan Trott. She was the daughter of a poor weaver in Wellington; a good honeft man, whofe end was remarkable, though not very fortunate; in the road between Taunton and Wellington, he was found drowned in a ditch, where the water fcarcely covered his face: He was, 'tis conjectured,

This happened fome years before the marriage of my Father and Mother.

- Drunk when he died."

My grandfather George Lackington had been a Gentleman Farmer at Langford, a village two miles from Wellington, and acquired a pretty confiderable property. But my father's mother dying when my father was but about thirteen years of age, my grandfather, who had two daughters, bound my father apprentice to a Mr. Hordly, a mafter fhoemaker in Wellington, with an intention of fetting him up in that bufinefs at the expiration piration of his time. But my father worked a year or two as a journeyman, and then difpleafed his father by marrying a woman without a fhilling, of a mean family, and who fupported herfelf by fpinning of wool into yarn, fo that my mother was delivered of your friend and humble fervant, her firftborn, and hope of the family, in my grandmother Trott's poor cottage; and that good old woman carried me privately to church, unknown to my father who was (nominally) a Quaker, that being the religion of his anceftors.

59

About the year 1750, my father having three or four children, and my mother proving an excellent wife, my grandfather's refentment had nearly fubfided, fo that he fupplied him with money to open a fhop for bimfelf. But that which was intended to be of very great fervice to him and his family, eventually proved extremely unfortunate to himfelf and them; for as foon as he found he was more at eafe in his circumftances, he contracted a fatal habit of drinking, and of courfe

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 inia on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.har http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Pennsylvania University of Penns n, Google-digitized Generated at Un Public Domain,

60

courfe his bufinefs was neglected; fo that after feveral fruitlefs attempts of my grandfather to keep him in trade, he was, partly by a very large family, but more by his habitual drunkennefs, reduced to his old ftate of a journeyman fhoemaker : Yet fo infatuated was he with the love of liquor, that the endearing ties of hufband and father could not reftrain him : by which baneful habit himfelf and family were involved in the extremeft poverty.

" To mortal men great loads allotted be;

" But of all packs, no pack like poverty."

HERRICK.

DRYDEN.

So that neither myfelf, my Brothers, or Sifters are indebted to a Father fcarcely for any thing that can endear his memory, or caufe us to reflect on him with pleafure.

" Children, the blind effects of love and chance

" Bear from their birth the impreffion of a Slave.

My father and mother might have faid with Middleton,

" How adverfe runs the deftiny of fome creatures!

" Some only can get riches and no children,

- " We only can get children and no riches;
- " Then 'tis the prudent part to check our will,

" And, till our ftate rife, make our blood ftand ftill.

But

61

But to our mother we are indebted for every thing. "She was a woman take her for all in all, I fhall not look upon her like again." Never did I know or hear of a woman who worked and lived fo hard as fhe did to fupport Eleven children: and were I to relate the particulars, it would not gain credit. I fhall only obferve, that for many years together, fhe worked generally nineteen or twenty hours out of every twenty-four; even when very near her time, fometimes at one hour fhe was feen walking backwards and forwards by her Spinning-wheel, and her midwife fent for the next.

Out of love to her family fhe totally abftained from every kind of Liquor, water excepted, her food was chiefly broth, (little better than water and oatmeal) turnips, potatoes, cabbage, carrots, &c. her children fared fomething better, but not much, as you may well fuppofe. When I reflect on the aftonifhing hardfhips and fufferings of fo worthy a woman, and her helplefs infants, I find myfelf ready to curfe the hufband and father that that could thus involve them in fuch a deplorable fcene of mifery and diffrefs. It is dreadful to add, that his habitual drunkennefs fhortened his days nearly one half, and that about twenty years fince he died, unregretted by his own children; nay more, while nature fhed tears over his grave, reafon was thankful that the caufe of their poverty and mifery was taken out of the way. Read this, ye inhuman parents, and fhudder ! Was a law made to banifh all fuch fathers, would it not be a juft, nay even a mild law?

62

Here, fir, permit me to drop fo gloomy a fubject, and again fubfcribe myfelf

Yours, &c.

LETTER

Digitized by Google

63

LETTER III.

" Some venial frailties you may well forgive." FRANCIS'S Horace.

DEAR FRIEND,

AS I was the eldeft, and my father for the first few years a careful hard-working man, I fared fomething better than my brothers and fifters. I was put for two or three years to a day-fchool kept by an old woman; and well remember how proud I used to be to fee feveral ancient dames lift up their hands and eyes with aftonishment, while I repeated by memory feveral chapters out of the New Teftament, concluding me from this fpecimen to be a prodigy of Science. But my career of learning was foon at an end, when my mother became fo poor that the could not afford the mighty fum of two-pence per week for my fchooling. Befides I was obliged to fupply the place of a nurfe to feveral of my brothers. and fifters. The confequence of which was,

64

was, that what little I had learned was prefently forgot; inftead of learning to read, &c. it very early became my chief delight to excel in all kinds of boyifh mifchiefs; and I foon arrived to be the captain and leader of all the boys in the neighbourhood, fo that if any old woman's lanthorn was kicked out of her hand, or drawn up a fignpoft, or if any thing was faftened to her tail, or if her door was nailed up, I was fure to be accufed as the author, whether I really were fo or not.

But one of my tricks had nearly proved fatal to me. I had obferved that yawning was infectious; and with a determination to have fome fport, I collected feveral boys together one market-day evening, and inftructed them to go amongft the butchers; whither I accompanied them. We placed ourfelves at proper diftances, and at a fignal given, all began to yawn as wide as we could: which immediately had the defired effect; the whole butcher row was fet a yawning; on which I and my companions burft burft out into a hearty laugh, and took to our heels. The trick pleafed us fo well, that two or three weeks after, we attempted to renew it. But one of the butchers, who was half drunk, perceiving our intention, fnatched up his cleaver and threw it at me, which knocked off my hat without doing me any harm.

Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

I was about ten years of age, when a man began to cry apple-pies about the ftreets, I took great notice of his methods of felling his pies, and thought I could do it much better than him. I communicated to a neighbouring baker my thoughts on the fubject in fuch a manner as gave him a very good opinion of my abilities for a pie-merchant, and he prevailed on my father to let me live with him. My manner of crying pies, and my activity in felling them, foon made me the favorite of all fuch as purchased halfpenny apple-pies, and halfpenny plumb-puddings, fo that in a few weeks the old pie-merchant fhut up his shop. I lived with this Baker about twelve or fifteen months, in which time I fold fuch large

Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

Digitized by Google

Original from UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN

65

66

large quantities of pies, puddings, cakes, &c. that he often declared to his friends, in my hearing, that I had been the means of extricating him from the embarraffing circumftances in which he was known to be involved prior to my entering his fervice.

During the time I continued with this Baker, many complaints were repeatedly made against me for the childish follies I had been guilty of, fuch as throwing fnowballs, frightening people by flinging ferpents and crackers into their houfes, &c. I alfo happened one day to overturn my mafter's fon, a child about four years old, whom I had been driving in a wheel-barrow. Dreading the confequences, I immediately flew from my mafter's houfe, and (it being evening) went to a glazier's, and procured a parcel of broken glass; I also provided myfelf with a pocketful of peas; and thus equipped made fine diversion for myself and my unlucky companions, by going to a number of houfes, one after another, difcharging a handful of peas at the windows, and throw-

Digitized by Google

ing

67

ing down another handful of glafs in the ftreet at the fame inftant, which made fuch a noife as very much frightened many people, who had no doubt of their windows being broken into a thoufand pieces. This adventure, together with throwing the child out of the wheel-barrow, produced fuch a clamour against me amongst the old women, that I would not return to my mafter, and not knowing what elfe to do, I went home to my father, who, you may eafily conceive could not afford to keep me idle, fo I was foon fet down by his fide to learn his own trade; and I continued with him feveral years, working when he worked, and while he was keeping Saint Monday, I was with boys of my own age fighting, cudgel-playing, wreftling, &c. &c. Wellington, where

I am, ai ban ton blues of , ale

Dear Friend,

Train 18 02.

and washing sugar belles Yours, &c. mond

C 2 LETTER

LETTER IV.

- " Who gather round, and wonder at the tale
- " Of horrid apparition, tall and ghaftly,
- " That walks at dead of night, or takes his fland,
- " O'er fome new-open'd grave : and (ftrange to tell !)

" Evanishes at crowing of the cock."

BLAIR's Grave.

DEAR FRIEND,

68

I Must not forget an odd adventure that happened when I was about twelve years of age, as it tends to shew in part my dauntless disposition, which discovered itself on many occasions in the very early part of my life.

I had one day walked with my father to Holywell lake, a village two miles from Wellington, where meeting with fome good ale, he could not find in his heart to part from it until late at night. When we were returning home by the way of Rockwell-Green, (commonly called Rogue Green, from a gang of robbers and houfe-breakers who formerly lived there) having juft paffed the bridge, bridge, we were met by feveral men and women, who appeared to be very much frightened, being in great agitation. They informed us that they were returning back to Rogue-Green, in order to fleep there that night, having been prevented from going home to Wellington by a dreadful Apparition, which they had all feen in the hollow way, about a quarter of a mile diftant; adding, that a perfon having been murdered there formerly, the ghoft had walked ever fince ; that they had never before paid much attention to the well-known report; but now they were obliged to credit it, having had ocular demonstration. My father had drank too large a quantity of ale to be much afraid of any thing, and I (who could not let flip fuch an opportunity of fhewing my courage) feconded matters for the poor terrified people to return with us; and as I offered to lead the van, they were prevailed on to make the attempt once more; but faid, that it was rather prefumptuous, and hoped that no dreadful confequence would C 3 enfue

69

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 hild on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.hau http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Pennsylvania on Generated at University of Penns Public Domain, Google-digitized

70

enfue, as all the company, they trufted were honeft-hearted, and intended no harm to any perfon: they moreover added, that "God certainly was above the Devil." I then advanced, and kept before the company about fifty yards,

" Whiftling aloud to bear my courage up."

But when we had walked about a quarter of a mile, I faw at fome diftance before us in the hedge, the dreadful apparition that had fo terrified our company. Here it is ! (faid I) " Lord have mercy upon us !" replied fome of the company, making a full ftop; and would have gone back, but fhame prevented them. I still kept my distance before, and called out to them to follow me, affuring them that I was determined to fee what it was. They then fell one behind another, and advanced in fingle files. As I proceeded I too was feized with a timid apprehension, but durst not own it; still keeping on before, although I perceived my hair to heave my hat from my head, and my teeth teeth to chatter in my mouth. In fact I was greatly agitated at what I faw; the object much refembled the human figure as to shape, but the fize was prodigious. However I had promifed to fee what it was, and for that purpose I obstinately ventured on about thirty yards from the place where I first had fight of it. I then perceived that it was only a very fhort tree, whole limbs had been newly cut off, the doing of which had made it much refemble a giant. I then-called to the company, and informed them, with a hearty laugh, that they had been frightened at the flump of a tree.

This ftory caufed excellent diversion for a long time afterwards in Wellington, and I was mentioned as an hero.

The pleafure and fatisfaction I received from the difcovery, and the honour I acquired for the courage I poffeffed in making it, has, I believe, had much influence on me ever after; as I cannot recollect that in any

C<sub>4</sub>

one

71

70

enfue, as all the company, they trufted were honeft-hearted, and intended no harm to any perfon: they moreover added, that "God certainly was above the Devil." I then advanced, and kept before the company about fifty yards,

" Whiftling aloud to bear my courage up."

But when we had walked about a quarter of a mile, I faw at fome diftance before us in the hedge, the dreadful apparition that had fo terrified our company. Here it is ! (faid " Lord have mercy upon us !" replied I) fome of the company, making a full ftop; and would have gone back, but fhame prevented them. I ftill kept my diftance before, and called out to them to follow me, affuring them that I was determined to fee what it was. They then fell one behind another, and advanced in fingle files. As I proceeded I too was feized with a timid apprehenfion, but durft not own it; fill keeping on before, although I perceived my hair to heave my hat from my head, and my teeth

I

tl

li

of

gı

in

th

21 lon

W2

fron

for

Das

ever

teeth to chatter in my mouth. In fact I was greatly agitated at what I faw; the object much refembled the human figure as to shape, but the fize was prodigious. However I had promifed to fee what it was, and for that purpose I obstinately ventured on about thirty yards from the place where I first had fight of it. I then perceived that it was only a very fhort tree, whole limbs had been newly cut off, the doing of which had made it much refemble a giant. I then-called to the company, and informed them, with a hearty laugh, that they had been frightened at the flump of a tree.

This ftory caufed excellent diversion for a long time afterwards in Wellington, and I was mentioned as an hero.

The pleafure and fatisfaction I received from the difcovery, and the honour I acquired for the courage I poffeffed in making it, has, I believe, had much influence on me ever after ; as I cannot recollect that in any C 4

one

71

one inftance I have ever observed the least fear of apparitions, spirits, &c. fince.

" What education did at first receive,

72

" Our ripen'd age confirms us to believe."

POMFRET.

Not that I have always fleadily difbelieved what has been related of fuch appearances, a few accounts of which feem fo well authenticated, as at leaft to make me doubt whether there might not exift in the fcale of beings fome of a more aerial fubftance than mankind, who may poffefs both the inclination and the power of affuming our fhape, and may perhaps take as much delight in teazing the human fpecies, as too many of our fpecies do in teazing and even tormenting thofe of the brute creation.

" Some aftral forms I must invoke by pray'r ;

" Fram'd all of pureft atoms of the air :

" In airy chariots they together ride,

" And fip the dew, as thro' the clouds they glide ;

" Vain fpirits, You, that fhunning heav'n's high noon,

" Swarm here beneath the concave of the moon,

" Hence to the tafk affign'd you here below !

" Upon the ocean make loud tempefts blow ;

" Into

" Into the wombs of hollow clouds repair,

- " And crash out thunder from the bladder'd air;
- " From pointed fun-beams take the mifts they drew,
- " And featter them again in pearly dew :
- " And of the bigger drops they drain below,
- " Some mould in hail, and others fift in fnow."

DRYDEN.

While I am on this fubject, I cannot refift the temptation of relating a truly ridiculous affair that happened about this time at Taunton.

In the workhoufe belonging to the parifh of St. James, there lived a young woman who was an idiot. This poor creature had a great averfion to fleeping in a bed, and at bed-time would often run away to a field in the neighbourhood called the Priory, where fhe flept in the cowfheds.

In order to break her of this bad cuftom, two men agreed to try if they could not frighten her out of it. And one night, when they knew that fhe was there, they took a white fheet with them, and coming to the place, one of the men concealed himfelf felf to fee the event, while the other wrapped himfelt up in the fheet, and walked backwards and forwards close before the cowfhed in which the was laid. It was fome time before Molly paid any attention to the apparition; but at last up she got. " Aha! (faid fhe) a white devil!" and by her manner of expreffing herfelf fhe thought it was very ftrange to fee a white devil. And foon after she exclaimed, " A black devil, too ! a black devil, too !" With that the man who had the fheet on, looked over his fhoulder, and faw (or imagined he faw) a perfon all over black behind him; the fight of which made him take to his heels. Molly then clapped her hands as fast as fhe could, crying out at the fame time, " Run, black devil, and catch white devil! Run, black devil, and catch white devil !" and was highly diverted. But this proved a ferious adventure to the white devil, as he expired within a few minutes after he had reached his own house; and from that time poor Molly was left alone to fleep in peace.

74

About

Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

75

About ten years after the above affair, at Wivelfcombe, nine miles from Taunton, a gentleman farmer's houfe was alarmed every night between twelve and one o'clock. The chamber doors were thrown open, the bedclothes pulled off the beds, and the kitchen furniture thrown with violence about the kitchen, to the great terror of the family, infomuch that the fervants gave their mafter and miftrefs warning to leave their places, and fome of them actually quitted their fervice. This dreadful affair had lafted about fix weeks, when a young gentleman who was there on a vifit, being in bed one night, at the ufual hour he heard his chamber door thrown open, and a very odd noife about his room. He was at first frightened, but the noife continuing a long time, he became calm, and laid ftill, revolving in his mind what he had beft do. When on a fudden he heard the fpirit creep under his bed, which was immediately lifted up, &c. This convinced him that there was fome fubstance in the spirit; on which he leaped uot out of bed, fecured the door, and with his oaken staff belaboured the ghost under the bed as hard as he could, until he heard a female voice imploring mercy. On that he opened his chamber door, and called aloud for a light. The family all got up as fast as poffible, and came to his room. He then informed them that he had got the fpirit under the bed; on hearing which, most of them were terribly frightened, and would have run off faster than they came, but he affured them, they had nothing to fear: then out he dragged the half-murdered fpirit from its fcene of action. But how great was their furprife and fhame, when they difcovered that this tormenting devil was no other than one of their fervant girls about fixteen years of age, who had been confined to her bed feveral months by illnefs.

76

This ghoft was no fooner laid, than two others alarmed the neighbourhood; one of which for a long time fhook a houfe every night, and terribly diftreffed the family; at length length they all refolved one night to go over the whole houfe in a body, and fee what it was that fo agitated the building. They examined every room, but in vain, as no caufe could be difcovered. So they very ferioufly as well as unanimoufly concluded, that it muft be the devil.

But about a fortnight after this, one of the family being out late in the garden, faw a great boy get in at the window of an old house next door (part of which was in ruins) and foon after the house began to shake as usual, on which the family went out of their own habitation, and entered the old house where the boy was seen to get in ; yet for a long time they could not discover any perfon, and were just turning to come out again, when one of the company observed the boy fuspended above their heads, striding over the end of a large beam that ran across both houses.

It was then apparent that the violent agitation of the adjoining house was occasioned by

78

by nothing more than his leaping up and down on the unfupported end of this beam.

Another apparition had for a long time ftolen many geefe, turkeys, &c. and altho' it had been feen by many, yet nobody would venture to go near it, until at length one perfon a little wifer than the reft of his neighbours, feeing the famous apparition all over white stealing his fowls, was determined to be fully fatisfied what kind of fpirit it could be that had fo great a predilection for poultry. He accordingly went round the yard, and as the apparition was coming over the wall, he knocked it down. This terrible ghoft then proved to be a neighbouring woman, who had put on her fhroud, in order to deter any perfons fhould they by chance fee her, from coming near her. Thus, though the had for a long time fuccefsfully practifed this ingenious way of procuring poultry, the old fox was caught at laft. The liten apparent white the re-

this the stand hand hand the self of This

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 inia on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.har http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Pennsylvania on Generated at University of Penns Public Domain, Google-digitized

This is fo prolific a fubject, that I could fill many pages with relations of dreadful fpectres, which for a while have reigned with tyrannic fway over weak minds, and at length when calm Reafon was fuffered to affume its power, have been difcovered to be no more objects of terror than those I have here noticed. But doubtless many fuch inftances must have occurred to you.

It has indeed often aftonished me, that in this enlightened age, there should yet remain numbers, not in the country only, but even in the metropolis, who fuffer themfelves to be made miferable by vain fears of preternatural occurrences, which generally owe their origin to the knavery of fome illdifpofed perfon, who has a finister purpofe to answer thereby, or to the foolish defire of alarming the minds of weak people : a practice fometimes (though intended as fun) productive of very ferious confequences. Now and then, indeed, thefe terrors are owing to accidental and ridiculous caufes. As an instance, inftance, I fhall give you the account of a terrible alarm which fome years fince took place in an Hofpital of this city, as related to me by a gentleman, who at the time refided in the houfe, for the purpofe of completing his medical education, and on whofe veracity I can confidently rely.

80

For feveral nights fucceffively a noife had been heard in the lower part of the building, like the continual tapping against a window, which led the night nurfes wifely to conclude it must certainly be occasioned by the Spirit of one of the bodies deposited in the dead-houfe endeavouring to efcape; the found feeming to proceed from that particular quarter. The dread of these fagacious ladies at laft became fuch, as totally to prevent their going from ward to ward to do their duty, and determined my friend to attempt to lay this perturbed fpirit ; which however he apprehended would more fpeedily, as well as effectually be performed by the affiftance of a good cudgel, than by exorcifms; he therefore inftead of confulting the Chaplain, gave

gave orders the next night as foon as the ufual dreadful found was heard, to give him notice. This you may fuppofe they did not negle& doing, though at the fame time they were flocked at his temerity, and apprehenfive for the confequences. Imprefied with an idea of the alarm being occasioned by fome fervant or patient in the house, he immediately fallied forth, with a candle in one hand, and a good tough twig in the other, accompained by two of the men fervants of the Hospital, accoutred in the same manner, refolved that if detected, the party should meet with an ample reward. The deadhoufe was paffed; the noife continued; though it evidently proceeded from a window at fome diftance in the area. When the cavalcade came near the icene of action, the window fuddenly and violently broke, without any thing being feen. This my friend confeffed, for a moment occasioned his making a halt; but as nothing visible had efcaped through the area, it occurred to him fomething might have made an entrance that way;

D

81

Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

82

way; accordingly he proceeded to the internal part of the building, and on opening the door, the apparition immediately not only appeared, but difappeared, and that fo inftantaneoufly as not to afford time to apply the remedy intended. And what think you, was this dreadful fpirit? That you may exercife your ingenuity at gueffing, I will here conclude with,

Dear Friend,

Yours, &c.

LETTER

Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

into bails and and a slitter man

LETTER V.

" ------ Were thy education ne'er fo mean,

" Having thy limbs, a thouland fair courfes

" Offer themfelves to thy election.

BEN JOHNSON'S Every Man in his Humour.

83

" Laugh if you are wife."

MARTIAL.

DEAR FRIEND,

A CAT.—An odd beginning of a Letter, by the bye—but here highly important and proper, as tending to relieve you from the anxious thoughts which (no doubt) muft have filled your mind on the fubject of the concluding part of my former letter. I muft give you one laughable inftance more, which lately happened. Mr. Higley, the bookfeller famous for felling odd volumes or broken fets of books, lived next door to a public-houfe in Ruffell-court, Drury-lane ; this public-houfe was feparated from his habitation only by a flight wainfcot partition, through which Mr. Higley caufed

D 2

an

84

an hole to be cut, and a flider put over it, fo that when he wanted any beer, he always drew back the flider and had it handed to him through this convenient aperture.

The night after Mr. Higley's death, which happened a few months fince, the man who was left to take care of the corps, about twelve o'clock hearing the landlord and his family going up flairs to their beds, on a fudden drew back the flider and halloo'd through the hole, " Bring me a pint of This order the landlord and his beer." family heard, and were terribly alarmed, as v they really thought it had proceeded from the ghoft of their neighbour Higley; the poor maid let fall the warming-pan, which came tumbling down the ftairs; the landlady being within the reach of her hufband's legs, caught fast hold of them, which in his fright he miftook for poor Higley. But the man burfting into a hearty laugh, reftored the fpirits of our hoft and his family.

Having

/ https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.hav Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

85

Having now, I dare fay, had enough of Gbosteffes, I will proceed with my narration.

During the time that I lived with the Baker, my name became fo celebrated for felling a large number of pies, puddings, &c. that for feveral years following, application was made to my father, for him to permit me to fell Almanacks a few market days before and after Christmas. In this employ I took great delight, the country people being highly pleafed with me, and purchasing a great number of my Almanacks, which excited envy in the itinerant venders of Moore, Wing, Poor Robin, &c. to fuch a degree, that my father often expressed his anxiety left they fhould fome way or other do me a mischief. But I had not the least concern, for poffeffing a light pair of heels, I always kept at a proper diftance.

O, my friend, little did I imagine at that time, that I should ever excite the same poor mean spirit in many of the booksellers of London and other places ! but,

D 3

Digitized by Google

se Enroy

86

" Envy at last crawls forth, from hell's dire throng, " Of all the direfull'ft ! her black locks hung long, " Attir'd with curling ferpents ; her pale fkin " Was almost drop'd from her sharp bones within, " And at her breaft fluck vipers, which did prey " Upon her panting heart both night and day, " Sucking black blood from thence : which to repair, " Both day and night they left fresh poisons there. " Her garments were deep-flain'd with human gore, " And torn by her own hands, in which fhe bore " A knotted whip and bowl, which to the brim, " Did green gall, and the juice of wormwood fwim ; " With which when fhe was drunk, fhe furious grew, " And lash'd herfelf : thus from th' accurfed crew, " Envy, the worft of fiends, herfelf prefents, " Envy, good only when the herfelf torments."

COWLEY.

" ---- The true condition of Envy is,

" Dolor alience felicitatis; to have

" Our eyes continually fix'd upon another

" Man's profperity, that is, his chief happinefs,

" And to grieve at that."

I was fourteen years and a half old when I went with my father to work at Taunton, feven miles from Wellington. We had been there about a fortnight, when my father informed our mafter, George Bowden, that he would would return to Wellington again. Mr. Bowden was then pleafed to inform my father that he had taken a liking to me, and propofed taking me apprentice; I feconded Mr. Bowden's motion (having a better profpect in continuing with Mr. Bowden than in returning to Wellington with my father) as he offered to take me without any premium, and to find me in every thing. My father accepted his offer, and I was immediately bound apprentice for feven years to Mr. George and Mrs. Mary Bowden, as honeft and worthy a couple as ever carried on a trade.

" Religious, punctual, frugal, and fo forth ;

" Their word would pais for more than they were worth."

POPE.

" For

They carefully attended to their fhop fix days in the week, and on the feventh went with their family twice to an anabaptift meeting; where little attention was paid to fpeculative doctrines; but where found morality was conftantly inculcated.

D4

Sill' SA

87

" For modes of faith let gracelefs zealots fight, " His can't be wrong whofe life is in the right."

88

But in this, as in many other places of worfhip, it was performed in a dull fpiritlefs manner; fo that the excellent morality taught there was not fo much attended to as it would have been had it been enforced, or re-enforced by the captivating powers of oratory.

I well remember, that although I conftantly attended this place, it was a year or two before I took the leaft notice of the fermon, which was read; nor had I any idea that I had the leaft concern in what the minifter was (as 'tis called) preaching about. For,

" Who a cold, dull, lifelefs drawling keeps,

" One half his audience laughs, whilft t'other fleeps.

" Sermons, like plays, fome pleafe us at the ear,

" But never will a ferious reading bear ;

" Some in the clofet edify enough,

" That from the pulpit feem'd but forry fluff.

"Tis

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 inia on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.hai http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Pennsylvania on University of Penns n, Google-digitized Generated at Ur Public Domain,

- " 'Tis thus there are who by ill reading fpoil
- " Young's pointed fenfe, or Atterbury's ftyle !
- " While others, by the force of eloquence,
- " Make that feem fine, which fcarce is common fenfe.
- " But fome will preach without the leaft pretence
- " To virtue, learning, art, or eloquence.
- " Why not ? you cry : they plainly fee, no doubt-
- " A prieft may grow right reverend without."

Art of Preaching.

I am,

Dear Friend,

Yours, &c.

Digitized by Google

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124

Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.har Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

LETTER

LETTER VI.

" Youth is the flock whence grafted fuperflition

" Shoots with unbounded vigor."

MILLER's Mahomet.

" ----- All muft lament that he's under fuch banners,

" As evil community fpoils our good manners."

SIMPKIN.

DEAR FRIEND,

90

AT the time that I was bound apprentice, my mafter had two fons, the eldeft about feventeen years old, the youngeft fourteen. The eldeft had juft been baptized, and introduced as a member of the arianiftical dipping community where my mafter and his family attended. The boy was a very fober induftrious youth, and gave his father and mother much pleafure. The youngeft was alfo a good lad. Thus every thing continued well for fome time after I had been added to the family. Both of the boys had very good natural parts, and had learned learned to read, write, keep accounts, &c. But they had been at fchools where no variety of books had been introduced, fo that all they had read was the Bible. My mafter's whole library confifted of a school-fize Bible, Watts's Pfalms and Hymns, Foot's Tract on Baptism, Culpepper's Herbal, the History of the Gentle Craft, an old imperfect volume of Receipts in Phylic, Surgery, &c. and the Ready Reckoner. The ideas of the family were as circumferibed as their library. My mafter called attention to bufinefs and working hard, " minding the main chance." On Sundays all went to meeting ; my Mafter on that day faid a fhort grace before dinner, and the boys read a few chapters in the Bible, took a walk for an hour or two, then read a chapter or two more.

" What right, what true, what fit we justly call,

" And this was all our care-for this is all."

We then fupped, and went early to bed, perfectly fatisfied with having done their duty;

91 *

92

duty; and each having a quiet confcience, foon fell into the arms of

" Nature's foft nurfe ! fweet fleep."

I cannot here omit mentioning a very fingular cuftom of my mafter's: Every morning, at all feafons of the year, and in all weathers, he rofe about three o'clock, took a walk by the river-fide round Frenchware-fields, ftopt at an alehoufe that was early open to drink half a pint of ale, came back before fix o'clock, then called up his people to work, and went to bed again about feven.

Thus was the good man's family jogging eafily and quietly on, no one doubting but he fhould go to heaven when he died, and every one hoping it would be a good while firft.

" A man fhould be religious, not fuperflitious."

But, alas! the dreadful crifis was at hand that put an end to the happiness and peace of this little family. I had been an apprentice about about twelve or fifteen months, when my mafter's eldeft fon George happened to go and hear a fermon by one of Mr. Wefley's preachers, who had left the plough-tail to preach the pure and unadulterated Gofpel of Chrift. By this fermon the fallow ground of poor George's heart was ploughed up, he was now perfuaded that the innocent and good life he had led would only fink him deeper into hell: in fhort he found out that he had never been converted, and of courfe was in a ftate of damnation, without benefit of Clergy. But he did not long continue in this damnable ftate, but foon became one of " The fanctified band, " Who all holy mysteries well understand."

SIMPKIN.

He perfuaded himfelf that he had paffed through the New Birth, and was quite fure that his name was registered in the Book of Life, and (to the great grief of his parents) he was in reality become a new creature.

" Twas

94

" 'Twas methodiftic grace that made him tofs and tumble, "Which in his entrails did like jollup rumble." Ovid's Epift. Burlefqued,

George had no fooner made things fure for himfelf, than he began to extend his concern to his father, mother, brother, and me; and very kindly gave us to understand, that he was fure we were in a very deplorable state, " without hope, and without God in the world," being under the curfe of the Law. In the long winter nights, as we fat at work together, he proved (in his way) that every man had original fin enough to damn a thousand fouls; and a deal was faid on that fubject : Quotations were made from fome deep author who had afferted, that there were " infants in hell but a fpan long ;" and that " hell was paved with infant fculls" As to Morality, George affured us it &c. was of no avail; that as for good works, they were only fplendid fins ; and that in the beft good work that any creature could perform, there was fin enough to fink the doer to the nethermost hell; that it was faith alone alone that did every thing, without a grain of morality; but that no man could have one particle of this myfterious faith, before he was juftified; and that juflification was a fudden operation on the foul, by which the moft execrable wretch that ever lived might inftantaneoufly be affured of all his fins being pardoned; that his body from that very moment became the living temple of the Holy Ghoft; that he had fellowfhip with the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit; and, that Spirit was to be their conftant and infallible guide:

- " Whate'er men fpeak by this new light,
- " Still they were fure to be in the right.
- " This dark-lanthorn of the Spirit,
- " Which none fee by but those that bear it;
- " A light that falls down from on high,
- " For fpiritual trades to cozen by;
- " An ignis fatuus, that bewitches
- " And leads men into pools and ditches,
- " This light infpires and plays upon
- " The noife of Saint, like bagpipe drone,
- " And fpeaks through hollow empty foul,
- " As through a trunk, or whifpering hole,
- " Such language as no mortal ear
- " But fpiritu'l eaves-droppers can hear."

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 ania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.har http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Pennsylvania on University of Penns n, Google-digitized Generated at Un Public Domain,

My

96

My mafter very feldom heard any of thefe converfations, but my good mistrefs would fit down for hours together, with her Bible in her lap, from which fhe would read fuch fcriptures as proved the neceffity of living a good life, performing good works, &c. fhe alfo did her beft to confute the tenets of Original fin, Imputed righteoufnefs, doctrine of the Trinity, &c. &c. Unfortunately the good woman had no great talents for controverfy; however, George had a very tenacious memory, and employed all his thoughts on thefe fubjects, fo that John his younger brother, and I alfo (two competent judges no doubt) thought that he had the beft of the arguments on thefe edifying fubjects, and about five months after George's conversion, John went to hear those only true Ambaffadors from Heaven,

- " Who ftroll and teach from town to town
- " The good old Caufe : which fome believe
- " 'To be the devil that tempted Eve
- "With knowledge, and do ftill invite
- " The world to mifchief with new light."

BUTLER.

Thefe

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google GMT Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 Generated at University of Penns Public Domain, Google-digitized

Digitized by Google

'Thefe devil-dodgers happened to be fo very powerful (that is very noify,) that they foon fent John home, crying out, he fhould be damn'd ! he fhould be damn'd for ever !

But John foon got out of the damnable flate, and affured us that all his fins were forgiven, merely by believing that he had paffed from death into life, and had union and communion with God. He now became as merry as before he had been forrowful, and fung in Mr. Wefley's ftrain,

- " Not a doubt shall arife
- " To darken the fkies,
- " Nor hide for a moment my God from my Eyes."

John fung to me, and faid to me a deal in this wonderful ftrain, of which I did not comprehend one fyllable.

" ----- His words were loofe

" As heaps of fand, and fcatter'd wide from fenfe.

- " So high he mounted in his airy throne,
- ** That when the wind had got into his head,
- " It turn'd his brains to frenzy.

E

But

97

/ https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.hav Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

96

My mafter very feldom heard any of thefe conversations, but my good mistrefs would fit down for hours together, with her Bible in her lap, from which fhe would read fuch fcriptures as proved the neceffity of living a good life, performing good works, &c. fhe alfo did her beft to confute the tenets of Original fin, Imputed righteoufnefs, doctrine of the Trinity, &c. &c. Unfortunately the good woman had no great talents for controverfy; however, George had a very tenacious memory, and employed all his thoughts on thefe fubjects, fo that John his younger brother, and I alfo (two competent judges no doubt) thought that he had the beft of the arguments on thefe edifying fubjects, and about five months after George's conversion, John went to hear those only true Ambaffadors from Heaven,

- " Who firoll and teach from town to town
- " The good old Caufe : which fome believe
- " 'To be the devil that tempted Eve
- "With knowledge, and do ftill invite
- " The world to mifchief with new light."

BUTLER.

Thefe

Digitized by Google

Thefe devil-dodgers happened to be fo very powerful (that is very noify,) that they foon fent John home, crying out, he fhould be damn'd ! he fhould be damn'd for ever !

But John foon got out of the damnable flate, and affured us that all his fins were forgiven, merely by believing that he had paffed from death into life, and had union and communion with God. He now became as merry as before he had been forrowful, and fung in Mr. Wefley's ftrain,

- " Not a doubt shall arife
- " To darken the fkies,
- " Nor hide for a moment my God from my Eyes."

John fung to me, and faid to me a deal in this wonderful ftrain, of which I did not comprehend one fyllable.

" ----- His words were loofe

" As heaps of fand, and fcatter'd wide from fenfe.

- " So high he mounted in his airy throne,
- " That when the wind had got into his head,
- " It turn'd his brains to frenzy.

E

But

97

98

But these extraordinary accounts and discourfes, together with the controverfies between the mother and the fons, made me think they knew many matters of which I was totally ignorant. This created in me a defire for knowledge, that I might know who was right and who was wrong. But to my great mortification, I could not read. I knew moft of the letters, and a few eafy words, and I fet about learning with all my might. My miftrefs would fometimes inftruct me; and having three halfpence per week allowed me by my mother, this money I gave to John (my mafter's youngeft fon) and for every threehalfpence he taught me to fpell one hour; this was done in the dark, as we were not allowed a candle after we were fent up ftairs to bed.

I foon made a little progrefs in reading; in the mean time I alfo went to the Methodift meeting. There, as " enthufiafm is the child of melancholy," I caught the infection. The first that I heard was one Thomas Bryant,

99

Bryant, known in Taunton by the name of the damnation preacher; (he had just left off cobbling foles of another kind.) His fermon frightened me most terribly. I foon after went to hear an old Scotchman, and he affured his congregation, that they would be damn'd, and double damn'd, and treble damn'd, and damn'd for ever, if they died without what he called faith.

This marvellous doctrine and noify rant and enthufiafm foon worked on my paffions, and made me believe myfelf to be really in the damnable condition that they reprefented; and in this miferable flate I continued for about a month, being all that time unable to work myfelf up to the proper key.

At laft, by finging and repeating enthufiaftic amorous hymns, and ignorantly applying particular texts of fcripture, I got my imagination to the proper pitch, and thus was I born again in an inftant, became a very great favourite of heaven, had angels to attend all my fteps, and was as E 2 familiar

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.har Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

familiar with the Father, Son, and Holy Ghoft, as any old woman in Mr. Wefley's connection; which, by the bye, is faying a great deal.

I am,

100

Dear Sir,

Yours.

Original from

UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN

LETTER ......

Digitized by Google

Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124
Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

LETTER VII.

" No fleep, no peace, no reft

" Their wand'ring and afflicted minds poffefs'd;

- " Upon their fouls and eyes
- " Hell and eternal horror lies,
- " Unufual fhapes and images,
- " Dark pictures and refemblances

" Of things to come, and of the worlds below,

- " O'er their diftemper'd fancies go :
- " Sometimes they curfe, fometimes they pray unto " The gods above, the gods beneath;
- " No fleep, but waking now was fifter unto death.

BP. SPRAT.

IOI

DEAR FRIEND,

T is perhaps worth remarking, that what the methodifts call conviction of fin, being awakened, &c. is often a moft dreadful ftate, and has the very fame effect on fuch as have lived a very innocent life as it has upon the moft notorious offenders; this conviction (as they call it) is brought about by the preachers heaping all the curfes in the Bible on the heads of the moft virtuous as well as moft vicious; for, fay they, he who keepeth E 3 the

102

the whole law and offendeth but in one point, is as much in a flate of damnation, as he that hath broken every one of the commandments, or committed robbery, murder, &c. fo that they pour out every awful denunciation found in the Bible, and many not found there, against all who have not the methodistical faith: this they call shaking the people over the mouth of hell.

Thus are many who before poffeffed " confciences void of offence towards God and mankind" tricked out of their peace of mind, by the ignorant application of texts of fcripture. Their fears being once fo dreadfully alarmed, they often become infupportable to themfelves and all around them; many in this ftate have put a period to their existence, others run mad, &c.

If the above terror of conficence was only to take place in knaves and rafcals, there would be no reafon for blaming the methodifts on that head; " the wretch deferves the hell he feels." A terrible inftance of this kind kind happened near London-bridge about two years fince: A perfon in a lucrative branch of bufinefs had put unbounded confidence in his head fhopman, and well rewarded him for his fupposed faithfulnefs. One morning, this man not coming down ftairs fo foon as ufual, the fervant maid went up to call him, and found him hanging up to the bed-post; she had the prefence of mind to cut him down, but he being nearly dead, it was fome days before he perfectly recovered. On his mafter coming to town he was informed what had happened to his favorite fhopman; he heard the relation with the utmost aftonishment, and took great pains to difcover the caufe of fo fatal a refolution, but to no purpofe. However he endeavoured to reconcile this unhappy man to life, was very tender towards him, and gave him more encouragement than ever; but the more the mafter did to encourage and make him happy, the more the poor wretch appeared to be dejected; in this unhappy flate. of mind he lived about fix months, when

103

E4

/ https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.har Public Domain. Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

one

one morning not appearing at his ufual time, the fervant maid went to fee if he was well, and found him very weak in bed ; a day or two after, his mafter came to town, and being told of his fituation, went up to fee him, and finding him in bed, and apparently very ill, proposed fending for a physician, but the poor devil refused to take any thing, and rejected every affistance, faying his time was nearly come. Soon after this the fervant informed her mafter that he would not have the bed made, and that fhe had just observed fome blood on one corner of the fheet. The master then went up stairs again, and by lifting up the bed-clothes found that he had stabbed himfelf in feveral places, and that in this flate he had lain three or four days, and on the furgeon's appearance, he refused to have the wounds inspected, and the furgeon being of opinion that is was too late to render him any kind of fervice, they let him lie ftill. The mafter foon after this preffed him much to know the mysterious cause of fo much mifery, and fo unnatural an end. The dying

Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.3901503935412/ Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

105

dying wretch exclaimed, " a wounded confcience, who can bear." The mafter then endeavoured to comfort him, and affured him, that his confcience ought not to wound him, "I know you (continued he) to be a good man, and the beft of fervants." Hold ! hold ! exclaimed the wretch, your words are daggers to my foul! I am a villain, I have robbed you of hundreds, and have long fuffered the tortures of the damned for being thus aconcealed villain, every act of kindness shewn to me by you has been long like vultures tearing my vitals. Go, fir, leave me, the fight of you caufes me to fuffer excruciating tortures; he then fhrunk under the bed-clothes, and the fame night expired in a state of mind unhappy beyond all defcription.

Terrible as the above relation is, I affure you that I have not heightened it : when an ungrateful villain is punifhed by his own reflections, we acknowledge it to be but juft. In Morton's Hiftory of apparitions are feveral fhocking ftories of perfons, who by their abandoned abandoned practices, brought on themfelves all the horrors of a guilty confcience.

" O treacherous confeience; while fhe feems to fleep

" On rofe and myrtle, lull'd with fyren fong;

" While fhe feems nodding o'er her charge to drop

" On headlong appetite the flacken'd rein,

" And gives up to licence unrecall'd,

" Unmarked ; fee from behind her fecret fland,

". The fly informer minutes every fault,

" And her dread diary with horror fills.

" A watchful foe ! the formidable fpy,

" Lift'ning, o'erhears the whifpers of our camp :

" Our dawning purpofes of heart explores

" And steals our embryos of iniquity.

" As all rapacious ufurers conceal,

" Their doomfday-book from all confuming heirs,

" Thus with indulgence most fevere fhe treats,

" Writes down our whole hiftory, which death fhall read,

" In ev'ry pale delinquent's private ear.

Night Thoughts.

But the cafe is otherwife amongst the methodifts, they work on the fears of the most virtuous; youth and innocence fall victims daily before their threats of hell and damnation, and the poor feeble minded, instead of being comforted and encouraged are often

by

by them funk into an irrecoverable ftate of gloomy defpondence and horrible defpair.

It is true that many of their hearers are not only methodiftically convinced, or alarmed, but are alfo bocus pocufly converted; but with thoufands that is not the cafe, even with thofe who join their fociety, where fo much of divine love, affurance, and extafies are talked of, where enthufiaftic, rapturous, intoxicating hymns are fung, and befides the unhappy mortals in their own community, thoufands there are who have loft their peace of mind by occafionally hearing their fermons.

And even those among them who have arrived to the highest pitch of enthusias, and who at times talk of their foretaste of heaven, and of their full assure of fins forgiven, and of talking to the Deity as familiarly as they will to one another; (all which, and much more, I have heard a thousand times) yet even those very pretended favorites of heaven are (if we believe lieve themfelves) miferable for the greateft part of their time, having doubts, fears, horrors of mind, &c. continually haunting them wherever they are. Between twenty. and thirty years fince, fome thoufands of them in London took it into their heads that the world would be at an end on fuch a night, and for fome days previous to this fatal night, nothing was attended to but fafting and praying, and when it came, they made a watch-night of it, and spent it in prayer, &c. expecting every moment to be the laft; and it is remarkable, that thousands who were not methodifts gave credit to this ridiculous prophecy, and were terribly alarmed ; but the next morning they were ashamed to look at one another, and many durft not appear in their fhops for fometime afterwards. But others of them faid that God had heard the prayers of the righteous, and fo fpared the world a little longer. Some years after that Mr. Wefley alarmed his people all over England, with the tail of a comet; great numbers were dreadfully apprehenfive

107

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.har iized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Generated at University of Penns Public Domain, Google-digitized prehenfive left this comet should scorch the earth to a cinder; but the faints by prayer made the comet keep a proper distance.

100

Charnock, of the laft century, in his difcourfe on Providence, has proved (in his way) that the univerfe was created and kept agoing for the fake of the elect, and that as foon as their number is complete, the whole will be deftroyed.

The fanatics in every age have found their account in making their followers believe the end of the world was at hand. In fome of the wills and deeds, by which effates have been given to monafteries, &c. in France, they have expressed their belief of the world's being nearly at an end, as a reason for making fuch liberal donations to the church. But it is happy for us that in England fuch wills would be fet aside. A case of this nature occured while Lord Northington was at the head of the law department. Reilly the preacher, had wheedled, or frightened, an old woman (Mrs. Norton) out of a deed of of gift of fifty pounds per year, but after the old woman's panic and fear of damnation was over, she had recourse to Chancery, and his Lordship annulled the deed of gift. His Lordship's remarks on such kinds of impofition are very curious, and worth your reading. See Collectanea Juridica, vol. 1. p. 458.

In fact, the very beft of the methodifts are like children, elated or depreffed by mere trifles; and many who joined them while young and ignorant, quit their fociety as they attain to years of difcretion, or as their judgment is better informed.

I am,

Dear Friend,

Yours, &c.

LETTER

Digitized by Google

LETTER VIII.

- " Religion's luftre is by native innocence
- " Divinely fair, pure, and fimple from all arts;
- " You daub and drefs her like a common miftrefs,
- " The harlot of your fancies; and by adding
- " False beauties, which the wants not, make the world
- " Sufpect her angel face is foul within."

Row E's Tamerlane.

III

DEAR FRIEND,

HE enthusiaftic notions which I had imbibed, and the defire I had to be talking about religious mysteries, &c. answered one valuable purpose; as it caused me to embrace every opportunity to learn to read, so that I could soon read the easy parts of the Bible, Mr. Wesley's Hymns, &c. and every leifure minute was so employed.

In the winter I was obliged to attend my work from fix in the morning until ten at night. In the fummer half year, I only worked as long as we could fee without candle; but notwithftanding the close attention I was

I was obliged to pay to my trade, yet for a long time I read ten chapters in the Bible every day; I alfo read and learned many hymns, and as foon as I could procure fome of Mr. Wefley's Tracts, Sermons, &c. I read them alfo; many of them I perufed in Cloacina's Temple, (the place where my Lord Chefterfield adviféd his fon to read the claffics, but I did not apply them after reading to the farther ufe that his Lordfhip hints at.)

I had fuch good eyes, that I often read by the light of the Moon, as my mafter would never permit me to take a candle into my room, and that prohibition I looked upon as a kind of perfecution, but I always comforted myfelf with the thoughts of my being a dear child of God; and as fuch, that it was impoffible for me to efcape perfecution from the children of the devil, which epithets I very pioufly applied to my good mafter and miftrefs. And fo ignorantly and imprudently zealous (being a real methodift) was I for the

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google GMT 19:57 Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 Generated at University of Penns Public Domain, Google-digitized

113

the good of their precious fouls, as fometimes to give them broad hints of it, and of the dangerous state they were in. Their pious good old minister, the Reverend Mr. Harrifon, I called " a blind leader of the blind;" and I more than once affured my mistrefs, that both he and his whole flock were in a ftate of damnation, being "ftrangers to the hope of Ifrael, and without God in the world." My good miftrefs wifely thought that a good flick was the best way of arguing with fuch an ignorant infatuated boy as I was, and had often recourfe to it; but I took care to give her a deal of trouble; for whenever I was ordered in my turn to read in the Bible, I always felected fuch chapters as I thought militated against Arians, Socinians, &c. and fuch verfes as I deemed favourable to the doctrine of Original Sin, Juftification by Faith, imputed Righteoufnefs, the doctrine of the Trinity, &c. On fuch parts I always placed a particular emphasis, which puzzled and teazed the old lady a good deal. Among

Among other places I thought (having fo been taught by the methodifts) that the fixteenth chapter of Ezekiel very much favoured the doctrines of original fin, imputed righteoufnefs, &c. that chapter I often felected and read to her, and fhe as often read the eighteenth chapter of the fame prophecy, for the fake of the parable of the Father's eating four grapes.

Whenever I read in St. Paul's Epiftles on juftification by faith alone, my good miftrefs would read in the Epiftle of St. James, fuch paffages as fay that a man is not juftified by faith alone, but by faith and works, which often embarraffed me not a little. However I comforted myfelf with the conceit of having more texts of Scripture on my fide of the queftion than fhe had on her fide. As to St. James, I was almost ready to conclude, that he was not quite orthodox, and fo at last I did not much mind what he faid.

" ---- Falfe

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 use#pd-google http://www.hathitrust.org/access Pennsylvania University of Penns n, Google-digitized Generated at Ur Public Domain,

Digitized by Google

115

" --- False opinions rooted in the mind,

" Hoodwink the foul and keep our reafon blind.

- " In controverted points can reason fway,
- " When paffion or conceit hurries us away ?"

Hitherto I had not frequented the methodift meetings by the confent or knowledge of my mafter and miftrefs; nor had my zeal been fo great as to make me openly violate their commands. But as my zeal increafed much faster than my knowledge, I foon difregarded their orders, and without hefitation ran away to hear a methodiftical fermon as often as I could find opportunity. One Sunday morning at eight o'clock my mistrefs feeing her fons fet off, and knowing that they were gone to a methodist meeting, determined to prevent me from doing the fame by locking the door, which fhe accordingly did; on which in a fuperfitious mood, I opened the Bible for direction what to do (ignorant methodists often practife the fame superstitious method) and the first words I read were thefe, " He has given his angels charge concerning thee, left at any time thou shouldest dafh F.2

/ https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.har Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

dash thy foot against a stone." This was enough for me; fo without a moment's hefitation, I ran up two pair of flairs to my own room, and out of the window I leaped, to the great terror of my poor miftrefs. 1 got up immediately, and ran about two or three hundred yards, towards the meeting-house; but alas! I could run no farther; my feet and ancles were most intolerably bruifed, fo that I was obliged to be carried back and put to bed; and it was more than a month before I recovered the use of my limbs. I was ignorant enough to think that the Lord had not used me very well, and refolved not to put fo much truft in

This my rafh adventure made a great noile in the town, and was talked of many miles round. Some few admired my amazing firength of faith, but the major part pitied me, as a poor ignorant, deluded and infatuated boy; which did not at all pleafe, fteblandt wort Dear Friend, sent painton

a. I Yours, &c.

Digitized by Google

doft

had behaviour of his fous, attact they com-

LETTER IX. verted one's was during and arrende

" One makes the rugged paths fo fmooth and even,

- " None but an ill-bred man can mifs of heaven.
- " Another quits his flockings, breeches, fhirt,
- " Becaufe he fancies virtue dwells in dirt :
- " While all concur to take away the ftrefs, and or or or or

" From weightier points, and lay it on the lefs."

STILLINGFLEET on Conversation. Cho-Bank of Faith," that the

"Gad I've a thriving traffic in my eye, " Near the mad manfions of Moorfields I'll bawl; " Friends, fathers, mothers, fifters, fons and all, night m " Shut up your fhops, and liften to my call.

Foorer - morning ; maney, and in Foorer

Deliso 2000

117

DEAR FRIEND, Sales blues of guids yasts

-R63 513.97

IN the fourth year of my apprenticefhip, my mafter died ; now although he was a good hufband, a good father, and a good mafter, &c. yet as he had not the methodiftical faith, and could not pronounce the Shibboleth of that fect, I pioufly feared that he was gone to hell. inflance more.

My mistrefs thought that his death was haftened by his uneafy reflections on the F 3 bad

Digitized by Google

Woman to Minow

bad behaviour of his fons, after they commenced methodifts, as before they were converted each was dutiful and attended to his trade, but after they became faints they attended fo much to their fpiritual concerns that they acted as though they fuppofed they were to be fed and cloathed by miracles, like Mr. Huntingdon, who informs us in his book called "The Bank of Faith," that the Lord fent him a pair of breeches, that a dog brought him mutton to eat, fifh died at night in a pond on purpofe to be eaten by him in the morning; money, and in fhort every thing he could defire he obtained by prayer. Thus as Foote fays,

" With labour, toil, all fecond means difpenfe, "" And live a rent-charge upon providence.

To give you a better idea of methodiffical ignorance and neglect of ordinary means of living, &c. I will relate one inftance more. Mary Hubbard (an old woman of Mr. Wefley's fociety) would often wafh her linen, hang it out to dry, and go away to work in the fields, or to Taunton

Taunton market, four miles from her houfe; and when blamed, fhe would anfwer "that the Lord watched over her, and all that fhe had, and that he would prevent any perfon from ftealing her two old finocks, or if he permitted them to be ftolen, he would fend her two new in their ftead." And I ferioufly affure you, fir, that there are many thoufand Mary Hubbards amongft the methodifts.

As I had been bound to my miftrefs as well as my mafter, I was of courfe an apprentice ftill. But after my mafter's death I obtained more liberty of confcience (as I called it) fo that I not only went to hear the methodift fermons, but was alfo admitted into their fociety; and I believe they never had a more devout enthufiaftical member; for feveral years I regularly attended every fermon and all their private meetings.

As you are probably unacquainted with the nature of these private meetings, a short account of them may perhaps afford you fome amusement.

F4

The

119

The late Mr. Wefley inftituted amongft his people, befides the public preachings, feveral kinds of private meetings; and as the prayer-meeting is the leaft private of any of them, I will first take notice of that.

To the prayer-meetings, which were in general held in private houfes, they often invited people who were not of their fociety. An hymn was firft fung, then they all knelt, and the firft perfon who felt a motion, made an extemporary prayer; when he had done another began, and fo on, for about two hours.

But it fo happened fometimes, that one of the brethren began to pray without having the gift of prayer (as they call it), and then he often fluck faft, like fome of the young orators at Coach-maker's Hall, &c. Prayermeetings were held in fuch high efteem amongit them that they afferted, more were "born again," and more "made free from all the remains of fin," or in other words of their own, "made perfect as God is perfect," in thefe

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 inia on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.har http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Pennsylvania on University of Penns n, Google-digitized Generated at Ur Public Domain,

121

these kinds of meeting, than at public preaching, &c. Thus, as Pomfret says,

" The fpirits heated will ftrange things produce."

But it is impoffible for you, my friend, to form any just idea of these affemblies, except you had been prefent at them : one wheedles and coaxes the Divine Being, in his addreffes; another is amorous and luscious; and a third fo rude and commanding, he will even tell the Deity that he must be a liar if he does not grant all they afk. In this manner will they work up one another's imaginations until they may actually be faid to be in a ftate of intoxication, and whilft in this intoxicated ftate, it often happens that fome of them recollect a text of fcripture, fuch as, "thy fins are forgiven thee," or "go and fin no more," &c. and then they declare themfelves to be born again, or to be fanctified, &c.

They have another kind of private meeting after the public preaching on Sunday evenings, in which the preacher meets all the

the members of the fociety, who ftay behind after the general congregation is difmified. To this fociety the preacher gave fuch advice as he deemed better fuited to a godly few than to a promifcuous multitude of "outward court worfhippers."

Their Love-feast is also a private meeting of as many members of the community as please to attend; and they generally come from all parts, within several miles of the place where love-feasts are held.

When all are met they alternately fing and pray; and fuch amongft them as think that their experience (as they call it) is remarkable, ftand up in their place and relate all the transfactions between God, the devil, and their fouls. At fuch feasons as this I have heard many of them declare they had just received the pardon of all their fins while Brother fuch-a-one was in prayer; another would then get up and affert that he was just at that instant made perfectly free from fin.

At

Digitized by Google

123

At these times the Spirit is supposed to be very powerfully at work amongst them; and such an unifon of sighing and groaning succeeds, that you would think they had all lost their senses. In this frantic state, many apply to themselves such texts of scripture as happen to come into their heads.

In the Love-feaft they have buns to eat, which are mutually broken between each brother and fifter, and they have alfo water to drink, which they hand from one to another. These meetings begin about seven o'clock, and last until nine, or ten.

In London, Briftol, and other large places, they have fome private meetings, unknown to the community at large. Thefe meetings confift of all married men at one time, young and unmarried men at another time: the married women by themfelves, and the fingle women by themfelves; and to each of thefe claffes Mr. Wefley went, and gave fuch advice or exhortations as he thought fuitable to their fituation in life, feldom failing ing to fpeak much in praife of celibacy, to the Maids and Bachelors under his pastoral care. I will in my next give you an account of their watch-nights, clafs-meetings, bands, and other particulars.

apply to themfoly succh texts of forinture

as happen to come into their heads.

in the Love to di they be an in at at brother and filler, and they have at Dear Friend,

Thefe meetings begin about fiven .

which are mutually broken between such #### o'clock, and laft until millar, or sea. Yours, &c.

Janb os

. whiter.

In Loudon, Briffel, and other i vice places. they have force is but meetings. unknown to the community at large. Thele meetings cont ft of all married area at one time, young and contained men at an the time the married women by themielves, and the fine le women by themtelves; and to each of thefe clattes Mr. Welley went, and gave LETTER or exherinitions is he thought furthle to their fithation in file, feldom feil-Ber ..... ....

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/ac

and spansor harn for starts boots of w

LETTER X. W.M

· fulled the whole of the day (according the

" _____ Here Gamaliel fage

" Trains up his babes of grace, inftructed well

" In all the difcipline of prayer ; mo yldillog

" To point the holy leer : by just degrees

" To clofe the twinkling eye; expand the palms,

" To expose the whites, and with the fightless balls

" To glare upon the crowd : to rife, to fink or opd

" The docile voice; now murm'ring foft and flow,

"With inward accent calm, and then again,

" In foaming floods of rapt'rous eloquence

" Let loofe the florm, and thunder thro' the nofe

" The threatened vengeance."

omi modt babivib bad , sucrom Somerville.

emest!

125

DEAR FRIEND, 10 selows 10 goillings selfuls

THE Watch-night begins about feven o'clock. They fing hymns, pray, preach, fing, and pray again; then exhort, fing and pray alternately, until twelve o'clock. The hymns which they fing on those nights, were wrote for fuch occasions, and abound with gloomy ideas, which are increased by the time of night; and it must be remarked, that the major part of those who who attend thefe nocturnal meetings having fafted the whole of the day (according to Mr. Wefley's orders) are in a very proper ftate of mind to entertain the most extravagant whims or enthusiaftic notions that can possibly enter the heads of any visionaries. So that fuch nights are often very prolific, as numbers are faid to be born again, and become the temples of the Holy Ghost on watch-nights, which makes those nights efteemed by them.

Mr. Welley, in every place where his people were numerous, had divided them into claffes, confifting of twelve or fourteen brothers or fifters. Sometimes men and women met together in the fame clafs (as they called it) and other claffes confifted of all men or all women. Each of thefe claffes had one in it who was called the leader. In fuch claffes where men and women meet together, the leader was always a brother : and fo of courfe when the clafs confifted of men alone. But in

127

in the women's claffes a fifter was always the leader.

from all mu," and that " where in ab

When they met together, the leader first gave out an hymn, which they all fang; after the hymn they all knelt, and their leader made an extemporary prayer; after which they were feated, and when the leader had informed them of the flate of his own mind, he enquired of all prefent, one after another, how they found the ftate of their fouls. Some he found were full of faith and affurance, others had dreadful doubts and fears; fome had horrid temptations; others complained of a lukewarm state, &c. In these meetings, fome of the members fpoke of themfelves, as though they were as pure as angels are in heaven, but with the generality of them, it was far otherwife, and nothing was more common among them than to hear the major part exclaiming against themselves, and declaring that they were the most vile and abandoned wretches on this fide hell, that they wondered why the earth did not open and PUTPOIR.

and fwallow them up alive. But they generally added, that " the blood of Chrift cleanfes from all fin," and that " where fin abounded there would grace much more abound." Indeed it was eafy to remark that the reafon why they painted themfelves in fuch odious colours, was only to boaft of an aftonishing quantity of grace that God had beftowed on them, in thus pardoning all their abominations and numbering them with the household of faith, who ought to have been fhut up in the nethermost hell. To each of these the leader gave a word of comfort, or of correction in the beft manner he was able. They then fang and prayed again. This lafted about one hour. And every one in Mr. Wefley's connexion did, or was expected to meet, each in his own clafs once in a week. In these classes each made a weekly contribution towards the general fupport of the preachers, &c. Such as were very poor contributed a penny per week, others two-pence, and fome who could afford it fixpence. This money was entered in a book kept for that bris purpose,

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.har Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

129

purpose, and one in every class called the steward, had the care of the cash.

I now come to fpeak of the Bands, which confifted only of justified perfons; that is fuch as had received the affurance of their fins being pardoned. In the claffes, both the awakened (as they call them) and the juftified, and even those that were made perfect met all together, as did the married and the fingle, and often men and women. But none were admitted into any band but fuch as were at least in a justified state, and the married of each fex met by themfelves, and the fingle by themfelves. About ten was the number generally put in one band; all thefe must belong to and meet in some class, once a week, when not hindered by ficknefs, &c. and they were alfo to meet weekly in their band. When met, they first fung, then made a fhort prayer; that done, the bandleader informed them of the state of his mind during the laft week, &c. He then made inquiry into the flate of all prefent, and each related G 2823

related what had paffed fince they laft met ; as what visitations they had received from God, what temptations from the devil, the flefh, &c. And it is a maxim amongft them that exposing to one another what the devil has particularly tempted them to commit, will make the old fellow more careful how he tempts, when he knows that all his fecrets will be told the next meeting. In the claffes they only confessed in general terms, that they have been tempted by the world, the flefh and the devil. But in the bands they confeffed the particular fins which they had been tempted to commit, or had actually committed.

The last time I met in band was in London, where an old man (near feventy years of age) informed us that he had for feveral weeks together laboured under a very grievous temptation of the devil, who all this time had been conftantly tempting him to commit adultery; he farther informed us, that having let too much of his houfe to lodgrelated

ers,

CONTRACT.

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 inia on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.har http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google at University of Pennsylvania on main, Google-digitized / http:// Generated at Un Public Domain,

131

gers, they were obliged to put the maid's bed in the room where he and his wife flept; and that one morning he had feen the maid lying afleep, nearly or quite uncovered, and he again affured us that ever fince that time the devil had been every day tempting him to do that which was nought with the maid. I could not help thinking the old gentleman was right in charging it on the devil, as there was little reafon to think it was any temptation of the flesh. Permit me to add, that this old buck had a wife about half his own age. I have been informed that fome young men of the brotherhood, have at times difguifed themfelves in women's clothes, and have fo got into the women's bands; it may be very curious to hear the confessions of the holy fifters. By this time I fuppofe you have had enough of band-meetings.

Mr. Welley inftituted another kind of private meeting for the higheft order of his people, called the felect bands; to which none were admitted but fuch as were fanctified, or  $G_2$  made made perfect in love, and freed from all the remains of fin. But as I never profeffed perfection, I was not permitted to enter into this holy of holies. But I have known a great number of these perfect faints, of both fexes; and I also lived in the fame house a whole year with one of these intire holy fifters. A few days before I came to live in Chifwell-Street, one of these perfect fifters was detected in stealing coals out of the shed of one of the fanctified brothers, but she, like the old fellow above mentioned, faid it was the devil that tempted her to do it.

Digitized by Google

132

Four times every year new tickets are diftributed to all Mr. Wefley's people throughout the three kingdoms. Their ticket is a very fmall flip of paper, with a text of fcripture on it, which is exchanged every quarter for fome other text. Such as are only in a clafs, have a different text from fuch as are in a band, fo that no one can be admitted into a general meeting of the bands, appointed by any of the preachers when he intends to give them an exhortation, nor into any particular band, band, by a common fociety ticket. On the common tickets are fuch texts as thefe: " Now is the accepted time." - " Awake thou that fleepeft," and fuch like. But those for the bands are in a higher ftrain; as, " Be ye perfect as your heavenly father is perfect."-" Go on unto perfection."-" Ye are children of the light."-" Your bodies are temples of the Holy Ghoft;" and other texts . of a fimilar tendency. For these tickets, each poor perfon paid one shilling, fuch as were rich paid more ; indeed the money feemed to be the principal end of iffuing tickets, at leaft in country places, the members in the community being fo well known to each other, that they fcarce ever fhewed their tickets in order to gain admittance. I forgot to inform you that prayer-meetings, clafsmeetings, band-meetings, &c. were in general held in private houfes, belonging to fome of the brethren.

133

I am, dear Friend,

Yours, &c.

G 3

LETTER

LETTER XI.

" Stiff in opinions, always in the wrong;

" Was every thing by ftarts and nothing long."

" Then all for women, panting, rhiming, drinking,

" Befides ten thoufand freaks that died in thinking."

DEAR FRIEND,

134

Y OU now fee what fort of a fociety I was got into. In country places particularly, they confift of farmers, hufbandmen, fhoemakers, woolcombers, weavers, their wives, &c. I have heard Mr. Wefley remark that more women are converted than men; and I believe that by far the greateft part of his people are females; and not a few of them four, difappointed old maids, with fome others of a lefs prudifh difpofition.

Lavater in his effay on phyfiognomy fays, "Women fink into the moft incurable melancholy, as they also rife to the moft enraptured raptured heights " In another place he fays, " By the irritability of their nerves, their incapability for deep inquiry and firm decifion, they may eafily from their extreme fenfibility, become the most irreclaimable, the most rapturous enthuliasts."

135

There are thousands in this fociety who will never read any thing befides the Bible, and books published by Mr. Wefley. For feveral years I read very little elfe, nor would I go (at leaft very feldom) to any other place of worship; fo that instead of hearing the fenfible and learned minifters of Taunton, I would often go four, five, or fix miles, to fome country village, to hear an infpired hufbandman, shoemaker, blacksmith, or woolcomber; and frequently in froft and fnow have I rofe a little after midnight (not knowing what time of night it was) and have wandered about the town until five o'clock, when the preaching began; where I have often heard a fermon preached to not more than ten or a dozen people. But fuch -101 1. 3108 H G 4 of 13:19

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 ania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.har http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Generated at University of Pennsylvania on Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://

of us as did attend at this early hour, used afterwards to congratulate each other on the great privilege we enjoyed, then off we went to our work, shivering with cold.

I was first converted to methodifm when I was about fixteen years of age, from that time until I was twenty-one I was a very fincere enthusiaft, and every spare hour I enjoyed I dedicated to the fludy of the Bible, reading methodiftical books, learning hymns, hearing fermons, meeting in focieties, &c. My memory was very tenacious, fo that every thing I read I made my own. I could have repeated feveral volumes of hymns; when I heard a fermon, I could have preached it again, and nearly in the fame words; my Bible had hundreds of leaves folded down, and thoufands of marks against fuch texts as I thought favoured the doctrines (or whims) which I had imbibed. So that I flood forth as the champion of methodifm wherever I came.

But alas! my godly ftrict life at length fuffered interruption. I will give you a farther farther account of the methodifts when I come to the time when I finally left their fociety.

The election for two members of Parliament was ftrongly contefted at Taunton, juft as I attained my twenty-firft year; and being now of age, the fix or feven months, which I had to ferve of my apprentices were purchased of my mistres by some friends of two of the contending candidates; so that I was at once set free in the midst of a scene of riot and diffipation.

" Prefent Example gets within our guard,

" And acts with double force, by few repell'd."

Young.

OWC

137

" Nor fhame, nor honour could prevail, " To keep me thus from turning tail."

worked very hard, and thent my

As I had a vote, and was also poffeffed of a few ideas above those of my rank and fituation, my company was courted by some who were in a much higher sphere; and (probably what they partly intended) in such company I soon forgot my godly or methodistical connections, nections, and ran into the oppofite extreme : fo that for feveral months most of my spare hours were devoted to the " Young-cy'd God of Wine! Parent of joys!

- " Frolic and full of thee, while the cold fons
- " Of temperance, the fools of thought and care,
- " Lay ftretch'd in fober flumbers."

MALLET'S Eurydice. Off

Here I had nearly funk for ever into meannefs, obfcurity and vice; for when the election was over, I had no longer open houfes to eat and drink in at free coft.

However I did not fink quite fo low as the commonalty of journeymen fhoemakers, but in general worked very hard, and fpent my money in better company.

Notwithstanding, at times I was very uneafy, and although I had not been at any methodiffical meeting during the time that I had lived this diffipated life, yet my mind was not freed intirely from the superflitious fears I had there imbibed; so that whenever. any perfon asked me, what would become of me

Digitized by Google

nechons,

me (that had lived fuch a holy life) if I fhould die in the ftate of backfliding from "the good old way?" I always acknowledged that I fhould be eternally damn'd, were that to be the cafe. But I muft confefs that I was not much afraid of dying in fuch a ftate, as I was too much prepoffeffed with the methodiftical notions of free grace, that would not let me finally be loft, prefuming that I muft wait as it were for a fecond call to repentance, juftification, &c. which I had been taught to believe might take place inftantaneoufly, and put the devil to flight in a hurry, and fo matters would be all right again.

I often privately took the Bible to bed with me, and in the long fummer mornings read for hours together in bed, but this did not in the leaft influence my conduct. As you know great events often arife from little caufes, I am now going to relate a circumftance, trivial in itfelf, though productive of a more confiderable change in my fituation, than any I had yet experienced.

I was

139

/ https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.har Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

males 1

140

I was twenty-one years of age the 11th of September 1767, the election was over the latter end of March 1768. It was in this year that my new mafter's wife infifted on my purchasing milk of a milk-maid who was a cuftomer at the fhop; which command I refused to comply with, as I had a fmart little milk-maid of my own. But as my mistrefs wore the breeches, my master was obliged, by his wife's order, to inform me that I must comply with her mandate, or get another master. I left him without hesitation; and the fame afternoon went to Wellington, took leave of my father and mother, and informed them of my intention to go to Briftol. After two or three days, I returned back to Taunton, where I flayed a day or two more. In which time I became enamoured with, or infatuated by, the beautiful Nancy Trott: and although I faw the impropriety of the meafure, yet I could not refift the fair tempter, who prevailed with me to permit her to accompany me in my journey.

" Reafon

Digitized by Google

1. Was

" Reafon was given to curb our headftrong will,

- " And yet but fhews a weak phyfician's fkill ;
- " Gives nothing while the raging fit does laft,
- " But flays to cure it when the worft is paft.
- " Reafon's a ftaff for age, when Nature's gone ;
- " But Youth is ftrong enough to walk alone."

DRYDEN's Con. of Gran.

141

We refted a week in Bridgewater, where I worked and got money to convey us to Exbridge, feventeen miles on this fide Briftol; and there I faw my conduct in fuch a point of view as made me refolve to leave her.

- " In well-feign'd accidents, now they hail my ear,
- " My life, my love, my charmer, or my dear."

" As if these founds, these joyles founds could prove

" The fmalleft particle of genuine love.

" O! purchas'd love, retail'd through half the town.

"Where each may fhare on paying half-a-crown;

" Where every air of tendernefs is art,

" And not one word the language of the heart;

" Where all is mockery of Cupid's reign,

" End in remorfe, in wretchednefs and pain.

Art of living in London.

My finances amounted to three fhillings and one penny, out of which I gave her half-acrown,

Digitized by Google

BUT

crown, and with the remaining fevenpence, without informing her of my purpofe, I fet off for Briftol; where I arrived in a few hours, and got work the fame evening.

A few days after, I went to the inn where the Taunton carrier put up, to enquire after Mifs Trott, as I wanted to know if the had returned fafe to Taunton. I was informed that the was in Briftol nearly as foon as I was. Knowing but little of the world, and ftill lefs of women of her defcription, I was quite unhappy on her account, for fear that being in a ftrange place the might be in want and diftrefs; which thought induced me to offer to feveral of my countrymen five fhillings to the first who thould bring me an account where I might find her; but I did not fee her until feveral weeks after that.

The Taunton Carrier gave me a letter from my good Miftrefs Bowden (who by marrying again had changed her name to Dingle). The contents of this letter very much furprifed me. It informed me that a day or two The before I fell out with my last mistrefs (which was the trifling caufe of my leaving Taunton) Betty Tucker, a common lafs, had fworn a child to me; that the parish officers had been to my mafter's shop within, an hour after I had left it to go to Wellington, and that they had been at Wellington just as I had left that place, and afterwards hearing that I was in Bridgewater they had purfued me thither. But the morning on which they arrived, I had fet off for Exbridge ; and believing that I had intentionally fled before them, they had given over the chafe for the prefent. The early to defeated inter the frate, " By the peinteious conduct of the Fair:

143

Reflecting on this affair, although my conduct was very far from entitling me to entertain fuch a fuppolition, yet I was then weak enough to imagine, that being a particular favourite of heaven a kind of miracle had been wrought to fave me from a prifon, or from marrying a woman I could not bear the idea of living with a fingle week; and as I had not any knowledge of her being with with child (not having feen her for three months before) I had not taken any measure to avoid the confequence, but put myself in the way of the officers: for, as I have just told you, after I had taken leave of my father and mother, I went back to Taunton, and walked about publicly one whole day, and part of another.

144

This girl was delivered about two months afterwards of a ftill-born child, fo that I was never troubled for expences. Methinks you are ready to fay with Pomfret,

- " "Tis eafy to defcend into the fnare,
- " By the pernicious conduct of the Fair:
- " But fafely to return from their abode
- " Requires the wit, the prudence of a God."

from marrying a woman I could not bear the idea of living with a firgie weeks antertain fuch a furrohei, ma It I was then

Dear Friend,

non godinas non the very failing more

Yours, &c.

nd as I had not any knowledge of her bring LETTER

LETTER XII.

" The various foibles of imperfect man." Art of Living in London.

DEAR FRIEND,

HE fubject of my last recalls to my mind a ridiculous affair, which excited much mirth in that part of the country.

During the Election at Taunton, a gentleman one day came in a post-chaife to the White-hart Inn, kept by Mr. Baldwin, and after having refreshed himfelf, strolled into the yard, and seeing the hostler, asked him if he could inform him where they took in the news? The hostler understanding him in a literal sense, directed him to a bookseller's schop on the opposite fide of the way; this schop was kept by Miss A—d—n, a beautiful young lady of irreproachable character, and one whose fine understanding and polished taste did honour to the profession; which profession she only adopted for an amusement, as the possible of the way.

Our

145

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 inia on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.har http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google at University of Pennsylvania on main, Google-digitized / http:// Generated at Un Public Domain,

Our gentleman on entering the fhop, enquired of the fhopmaid for her mistrefs, but the maid being ufed to ferve in the fhop, and knowing that her miftrefs had fome ladies with her, informed the gentleman that fhe could help him to any thing that he wanted. But on his faying he had fome private bufinefs with her miftrefs, he was fhewed into a back parlour, and the miftrefs being informed a gentleman wanted to fpeak to her, fhe went directly to him. The moment fhe entered the room, he clasped her in his arms, called her a divine creature, &c. This fo alarmed Mifs A-d-n, that fhe fcreamed aloud; on hearing of which, the ladies, preceded by the houfemaid and shopmaid repaired to the parlour, where they found Mifs A-d-n almost in fits. The gentleman thinking that it was only a trick to raife her price, took but little notice, on which one of the maids ran out and called in feveral of the neighbours, who on coming into the parlour, faw with aftonishment our Sir Harry Wildair taking improper liberties with Mifs A-d-n.

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.hau cized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Generated at University of Penns Public Domain, Google-digitized

147

A-d-n, and defired him to defift. But he defired them not to attempt to put tricks on travellers, and ordered them to leave the Instead of obeying his injunctions room. they in a refolute tone ordered our fpark to go inftantly about his bufinefs. However he still kept his ground, until the mayor of the town, who happened to live just by, was called in. Mr. Mayor demanded to know why he took fuch freedom with the lady? Our gentleman, feeing that the affair began to look very ferious, now became calm, and informed the company that having an inclination for a frolic, he had enquired for a bad house, and had been directed there; adding that if there had been any mistake, he was very forry for it, and would beg the lady's pardon. On hearing this, the company was more furprized than before, and demanded of the gentleman, who had informed him that that house was a bawdy-house ? He, without hefitation replied, the hoftler at the White Hart. Upon this the hoftler was fent for, and on his being asked, if he had directed that H 2

/ https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.hav Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

148

that gentleman, to Mifs A-d-n's as to a bawdy-houfe? The poor fellow, with marks of terror and furprife anfwered, No. The Gentlemen never afked me for a bawdyhoufe, he only afked me for a houfe where they took in the news. So that the hoftler's underftanding him in a literal fenfe, caufed all the confusion. The affair however had got fo much air that our fpark was glad to leave the town immediately.

A very ftrange unaccountable circumftance happened in this Inn, about the fame time; one of those occurrences that puzzle the philosopher, and ftrengthen superfition in weak minds. Three or four gentlemen of the neighbourhood were drinking wine in one of the rooms, when the landlord of the Inn (as it appeared to them) walked into the room, and coming up to the table, around which they were feated, they addreffed him with Mr. Baldwin, how do you do ? fit down and take a glass of wine with us; but instead of doing as requested, the fuppofed Innkeeper

/ https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.har Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

149

keeper walked out of the room, without making any reply; which not only furprized, but offended the company, who rung the bell violently, and on the waiter's appearance, they ordered him to fend in his mafter. The waiter informed them that his mafter was not at home. The gentlemen replied that he was at home a few minutes fince, and therefore they infifted on feeing him; but the man affured them they were miftaken, as his mafter was in Briftol, and had been there feveral days. They then ordered the waiter to fend in Mrs. Baldwin, who immediately appearing, the gentlemen asked her where Mr. Baldwin was, and fhe informed them as the waiter had already done, that he was in Briftol, and had been there feveral days, on which the gentlemen grew very angry, and fwore that Mr. Baldwin had just before come into the room, and on their requefting him to partake of their wine, had infulted them by going out of the room, without deigning to give them an anfwer. Mrs. Baldwin, then drew out of her pocket a letter fhe had that H 3 morning

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.har main, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Generated at Un Public Domain,

Digitized by Google

150

morning received from Mr. Baldwin, by which it was apparent, that he really was in Briftol. The ftory was then told round the neighbourhood, and all the old women concluded that Mr. Baldwin muft certainly be dead, and that he died at the very inftant that the gentlemen faw him come into the room ; but Mr. Baldwin returning two days after, rendered it neceffary for them to vary their ftory ; they then afferted that it was a token, or fome warning of his death, and had no doubt but it would very foon happen. It was generally thought that Mr. Baldwin was weak enough to pay fuch attention to the ftory and the inference, as to hurt his health, as he really died within a year after, and the old women were not a little pleafed. at the event, as it tended to justify the truth of their prediction.

A more ridiculous affair happened about ten years fince, at the two Bells, oppofite Whitechapel Church. The landlord was fitting one night with fome jovial company, one of whom happening to fay that he prayed to God, that fuch a thing fhould not come to pass, the landlord replied in a good humoured manner, your prayers will neither do good or harm ; upon which the other faid a deal to perfuade the hoft that his prayers would do great things ; but the more he faid in praise of his prayers, the more the landlord laughed at, and ridiculed him. The man at last infisted that he could pray the landlord to death in two months time, and offered to bet him a crown bowl of punch to the truth of it, which the landlord accepting, the wager was laid, and almost every night after this, the man came to the house, and constantly laughed at the landlord, and affured him that he would lofe his wager; and however strange it may appear, our host did die within the time, and his widow paid the wager. I think there cannot remain a doubt but that the ridiculous talk of the fellow actually affected the landlord's mind, and haftened his death, and the following inftances tend also to shew how eafily the lives of fome are fhortened.

Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

H4

Joseph

ISI

Joseph Scales, Esq. about five years fince, in turning short one day in one of the streets of London, met a man whom he had not seen for some time, and innocently addressed him with, Ha ! what are you alive yet ! which had such an effect on the poor man that he died a few hours after.

Being at Briftol about four years fince, I enquired after a worthy leatherfeller whom I had formerly known, and was informed that he was lately dead, and that his death was fuppofed to have been haftened by a famous fortuneteller, who having caft his nativity, declared that he would die within fix months, which affected his mind fo as to accomplifh the prediction. The ftory of the late Dr Pitcairn, of Edinburgh, and the collier is well known.

I have fet down the above inftances, in order to fhew how eafy it is to trifle away the lives of our fellow creatures, and furely fuch who wantonly do it, must afterwards have very gloomy reflections.

I am, dear Friend, and to sould

Yours, &c.

LETTER XIII.

" I had a Friend that lov'd me :

" I was his Soul : he liv'd not but in me.

" We were fo clofe link'd in each other's breaft,

" The rivets were not found that join'd us first.

DRYDEN'S All for Love.

153

DEAR FRIEND,

IN my laft I mentioned my arrival at Briftol, where I took a lodging in a ftreet, called (I think) Queen-Street, in Caftle-ftreet, at the houfe of a Mr. James; a much more decent refidence, than commonly falls to the lot of journeymen fhoemakers.

In this houfe I found a Mr. John Jones, a genteel young man, just turned of twenty-one years of age: He was also a fon of Crifpin, and made women's stuff shoes; which he fold by the dozen to warehouses. This Mr. Jones and I were soon very intimate; we kept ourselves neatly dreffed, and in general worked worked hard, fpending our money chiefly in the company of women. As,

154

" All men have follies, which they blindly trace,

- " Thro' the dark turnings of a dubious maze.
- " But happy those, who by a prudent care,
- " Retreat betimes from the fallacious fnare."

POMFRET.

We followed this courfe about four months. During this time Mr. Jones once perfuaded me to go with him to the Playhoufe, where we faw Shakespear's fine comedy of " As you like it." This was a feast indeed to me, who had never before feen nor even read any theatrical production. 'Tis impossible for me to describe my fensations on the occasion. Between the play and the entertainment (which was the Mayor of Garrat) Mr. Edward Shuter performed a fhort piece called " The drunken man." This was the only time that I ever faw that extraordinary genius, but he made fuch an imprefiion on my mind, that it is impossible I ever should forget him. I believe it is not generally known, and as few would ever have fufpected, that Dakiow

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.hau tized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google ty of Penns -digitized Generated at University Google-Domain,

LIFE OF J. LACKINGTON. 155 that this child of Momus was also a child of grace.

Since the publication of the first edition of these memoirs, I have read " The memoirs of Mr. Tate Wilkinfon," patentee of the Theatres Royal of York and Hull, and was much furprized to learn that the famous Ned Shuter was a gracious foul. I will give you a paffage or two out of Mr. Wilkinfon's memoirs, vol. iii. page 27, &c. " My imitation of Whitefield was beyond compare. Mr. Foote was ftruck by ftepping in by chance, and once hearing Whitefield; the mixture of whofe abfurdity, whim, confequence and extravagance, pleafed his fancy, and entertained him highly, as Whitefield was that day dealing out damnation, fire and brimftone, as cheerfully as if they were fo many bleffings. What pity it is that our fears only, and not our reafon, will bring conviction; but reafon handed by unaffected pure piety and religion would be a day of woe to methodifm."

" Mr.

/ https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/ac

Digitized by Google

" Mr. Foote was only a fpy at Whitefield's academy, while I (fays Mr. Wilkinfon) had. been a zealot for fome feafons before my encounter at Covent-Garden with Mr. Foote, my attendance had been conftant with my friend Shuter, and as he actually was one of the new-born, and paid large fums to Whitefield, I was always permitted to ftay with him, for he really was bewildered in his brains, more by his wifhing to acquire imaginary grace, than by all his drinking, and whenever he was warm with the bottle, and with only a friend or two, like Maw-worm, he could not mind his shop, because he thought it a fin, and wished to go a-preaching ; for Shuter like Maw-worm believed he had a call. I have gone with Shuter at fix in the morning of a Sunday to Tottenham-Court-Road, then before ten to Mr. Welley's in Long-Acre ; at eleven again to Tottenham-Court-Road Tabernacle, dined near Bedlam (a very proper place for us both) with a party of the holy ones, went at three to Mr. Wefley's theatre ; then from that to Whitefield's field's till eight, and then shut up, to commune with the family compact, page 29. I having had to much practice (while a zealot) I really obtained and exhibited a much ftronger likenefs of Whitefield than Mr. Foote did. The week before my Covent-Garden exhibition, I met Shuter at the Tabernacle; a great coolnefs had continued for fome time, as we had not fpoke, or even looked at each other fince the breach between us in 1758, but as we were met together in a place of charity and forgiveness to all who fubscribed to the preacher, we became very fociable, and before Whitefield's lecture was done we were perfectly reconciled : we adjourned to the Rofe, and by three the next morning we were fworn friends, and continued fo until his death. Ned Shuter was a lively, fpirited, fhrewd companion; a fuperior in natural whim and humour furely never inhabited a human breaft, for what he faid and did was all his own, as it was with difficulty he could read the parts he had to play, and could not write at all; he had attained to fign an order, but no no more. Nature could not here beftow her gifts to greater advantage, than on poor Ned, as what fhe gave he made fhine, not only confpicuoufly but brilliantly, and to the delight of all who knew him on or off the ftage; he might truly be dubbed the child of nature. He was no man's enemy but his own, peace, reft, and happinefs, I hope he now poffeffes; for, the poor, the friendlefs and the ftranger he often comforted, and when fometimes reduced by his follies, he never could fee a real object in mifery and refift giving at leaft half he was worth to his diftreffed fellow creature." Page 5, vol. iii. "But, O ye faints of your own creating ! I will preach to you : Mark ! judge not of plays and players, left you be judged ; those who are the most cenforious on the infirmities of others, are ufually most notoriously guilty of far greater failings themfelves, and fanctified methodifical flander is of all the most fevere, bitter and cruel."

157

158

Page 6. " In the comedy of the Hypocrite, the Colonel fays he fuppofes they go to the play

159

play for the benefit of the brethren. Cantwell anfwers, "the charity covereth the fin;" which was actually the cafe, for in 1757, as Shuter was bountiful to the Tabernacle, Mr. Whitefield not only permitted, but advifed his hearers to attend Shuter's benefit; but for that night only." Alas, poor Shuter!

It is fingular enough that about this time, although I could not write, yet I composed feveral fongs, one of which was fold for a guinea; fome were given to the Briftol printers, who printed them, and the balladfingers fung them about the ftreets ; on which occafions I was as proud as though I had composed an opera. My friend Mr. Jones was my fecretary, who before I came to live with him had not the leaft relifh for books, and I had only read a few enthufiaftic authors, together with Pomfret's poems; this last I could almost repeat by memory; however I made the most of my little stock of literature, and ftrongly recommended the purchasing of books to Mr. Jones. But fo ignorant ignorant were we on the fubject, that neither of us knew what books were fit for our perufal, nor what to enquire for, as we had fcarce ever heard or feen even any title pages, except a few of the religious fort, which at that time we had no relifh for. So that we were at a lofs how to increafe our fmall ftock of fcience. And here I cannot help thinking that had Fortune thrown proper books in our way, we fhould have imbibed a juft tafte for literature, and foon made fome tolerable progrefs, but fuch was our obfcurity, that it was next to impoffible for us ever to emerge from it.

As we could not tell what to afk for, we were afhamed to go into the bookfellers fhops; and I affure you, my friend, that there are thoufands now in England in the very fame fituation: many, very many have come to my fhop, who have difcovered an enquiring mind, but were totally at a lofs what to afk for, and who had no friend to direct them.

ss ---- Reafon

inia on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Pennsylvania on tized / http:// Generated at University of Penns Public Domain, Google-digitized

Reafon grows apace, and calls
For the kind hand of an affiduous care.
Delightful tafk! to rear the tender thought,

" To teach the young idea how to fhoot,

" To pour the fresh instruction o'er the mind,

" To breathe th' enlivening fpirit, and to fix

" The gen'rous purpofe in the glowing breaft."

THOMSON.

161

One day as my friend Jones and I were ftrolling about the fair that is annually held in and near St. James's church-yard, we faw a ftall of books, and in looking over the title pages, I met with Hobbes's Tranflation of Homer's Iliad and Odyffey. I had fomehow or other heard that Homer was a great poet, but unfortunately I had never heard of Pope's tranflation of him, fo we very eagerly purchafed that by Hobbes. At this ftall I alfo purchafed Walker's poetical paraphrafe of Epictetus's morals; and home we went, perfectly well pleafed with our bargains.

We that evening began with Hobbes's Homer; but found it very difficult for us to read, owing to the obfcurity of the tranflation,

162

lation, which together with the indifferent language, and want of poetical merit in the tranflator, fomewhat difappointed us: however we had from time to time many a hard puzzling hour with him.

But as to Walker's Epictetus, although that had not much poetical merit, yet it was very eafy to be read, and as eafily underftood. The principles of the floics charmed me fo much, that I made the book my companion wherever I went, and read it over and over in raptures, thinking that my mind was fecured against all the finiles or frowns of fortune.

I now grew weary of diffipating my time, and began to think of employing my fpare hours in fomething more fatisfactory. For want of fomething elfe to do, I went one evening to hear Mr. John Wefley preach in Broadmead, and being completely tired of the way of life that I had lived (more or lefs) ever fince I had been out of my apprenticefhip, and happening to have no other purfuit or hobby-hobby-horfe, there was a kind of vacuity in my mind; in this ftate I was very fufceptible of any impreffions, fo that when I came to hear Mr. Wefley, my old fanatical notions returned full upon me, and I was once more carried away by the tide of enthufiafm.

My friend Mr. Jones foon faw with grief and indignation the wonderful alteration in me; who, from a gay, volatile, diffipated young fellow, was at once metamorphofed into a dull, moping, praying, pfalm-finging fanatic, continually reprehending all about me for their harmlefs mirth and gaiety.

" For Saints themfelves will often be,

" Of gifts that coft them nothing, free."

HUDIBRAS.

163

Nothing is more common than to fee mankind run from one extreme to another: which was my cafe once more.

About this time we left our habitation in Queen-ftreet and took lodgings of Mr. Jones's mother, on St. Philip's Plain, where lived a brother of Mr. Jones, who was about I 2 feventeen feventeen years of age. Soon after we had removed to this place, the brother, whofe name was Richard Jones, was permitted to work in the fame room with my friend and me. They had alfo a fifter about twenty years of age, who frequently joined our company.

Our room over-looked the Church-yard, which contributed to increafe my gloomy ideas; and I had fo much of the fpiritual quixotifm in me, that I foon began to think that it was not enough for me to fave my own foul, but I ought in confcience to attempt the conversion of my companions, who (I really believed) were in the high road to hell, and every moment liable to eternal damnation. Of this charitable disposition are almost all the methodists; who, as Hudibras fays,

- " Compound for fins they are inclin'd to,
- " By damning those they have no mind to."

The frequency of newly-opened graves, which we faw from our windows, furnished me with opportunities for defcanting on the uncertainty uncertainty of life and all fublunary enjoyments; I affured them that nothing deferved attention but what related to our everlafting flate, and that they might, on their repentance, receive in one moment the pardon of all their fins, have a foretafte of the joys of heaven, and know that their names were enrolled in the book of life. I farther protefted that they had no time to lofe; that they all flood on the very verge of hell, and the breaking-brink of eternal torments; with a great deal more of fuch edifying fluff.

165

The youngest brother soon became a convert; and Miss Betsy was born again soon after. But I had a tight job to convert my friend John; he held out, and often cursed me heartily, and sung profane songs all day long.

But about four or five weeks after my reconversion, John was also converted, and became a favourite of heaven, so that we confidered ourfelves as a holy community.

I 3

self appeared they appeared that

" Who

bdf

- " Who knew the feat of Paradife,
- " Could tell in what degree it lies ;
- " Could deepeft mysteries unriddle,
- " As eafily as thread a needle."

166

HUDIBRAS.

A laughable affair happened during my refidence here. A captain of a fhip one day brought a parrot as a prefent to a family, the mistrefs of which being a methodist, happened to have one of the preachers call in just as the dinner was putting on the table, fo that the captain and the preacher were both afked to ftay. As foon as the table was covered, the preacher began a long grace, in the midft of which Poll, who had been put in a corner of the room, cried out, " D-n your eyes, tip us none of your jace." This, with the immoderate laughter of the captain, entirely difconcerted the pious chaplain; at last he began his grace again, but he had not got to the end before Poll again interrupted him with " You d-n canting fon of a b = -b." By the above it appeared that the

the captain had tutored Poll on purpose to have fome fun in this canting family ; however, the good lady of the houfe made it a point of confcience to have Polly converted, but found it utterly impoffible to effect that great change in the methodiffical way, that is, inflantaneously, as after the had foolded her fix months for fpeaking bad words, and had actually taught her a part of the Lord's prayer, yet Poll would not entirely leave off her fea language, fo that it often happened while the good lady was teaching her to pray, Poll would out with, " D-n your eyes, tumble up, you lubbers;" and even after fhe had preached to her feveral years, fhe would not venture to fay that Poll was in a flate of grace; but be that as it will, Poll obtained the name of Methodift, being called by the neighbours, The Methodist Parrot.

I must inform you also that the poor preacher abovementioned was but just come out of Wales, and understood English but very imperfectly, and in the course of his fermon one day he had forgot the English for

14

9

Digitized by Google

/ https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124

Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.hav Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

Original from UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN

the 167

the word lamb, and after hammering a good while about it, he out with "Goddymighty's little Mutton, that took away the fins of the world," which caufed a good deal of diverfion among the ungodly.

I am,

Dear Friend,

THE REPORT OF A PROPERTY OF

Yours, &c.

LETTER

Digitized by Google

to that I wais the

LETTER XIV.

- " _____ He was a fhrewd philofopher,
- " And had read every text and glofs-over;
- " Whate'er the crabbed'ft author hath,
- " He understood b'implicit faith ;

" Whatever Sceptic could enquire for,

" For every why he had a wherefore ;

" Knew more than forty of them do,

" As far as words and terms could go,

- " All which he underftood by rote,
- " And as occafion ferv'd would quote;
- " No matter whether right or wrong,
- " They might be either faid or fung."

HUDIBRAS.

160

DEAR FRIEND,

MR. John Jones and myfelf were now greater friends than ever, fo that one would on no account ftir out of the houfe without the other.

Mr. Jones had the advantage of me in temporals, he could get more money than I could; but as to grace, and fpiritual gifts, I had much the advantage of all our community;

170

nity; fo that I was their fpiritual director, and if they thought that any of their acquaintance held any opinions that were not quite found and orthodox, fuch were introduced to me, in order that I might convince them of their errors. In fact, I was looked upon as an apoftle, fo that whatever I afferted was received as pure gofpel; nor was any thing undertaken without my advice.

We all worked very hard, particularly Mr. John Jones and me, in order to get money to purchafe books; and for fome months every fhilling we could fpare was laid out at old book-fhops, stalls, &c. infomuch that in a fhort time we had what we called a very good library. This choice collection confifted of Polhil on precious Faith; Polhil on the Decrees; Shepherd's found Believer; Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progrefs; Bunyan's Good News for the vileft of Sinners; his Heavenly Footman; his Grace abounding to the chief of Sinners; his Life and Death of Mr. Badman; his Holy War in the town of Manfoul; Hervey's Meditations; Hervey's Dialogues; Rogers's i Ville

171

Rogers's Seven Helps to Heaven ; Hall's Jacob's Ladder; Divine Breathings of a devout Soul; Adams on the fecond epiftle of Peter; Adams's Sermons on the black Devil, the white Devil, &c. &c. Collings's Divine Cordial for the Soul; Pearfe's Soul's Efpoufal to Chrift ; Erskine's Gospel Sonnets ; the Death of Abel; The Faith of God's Elect; Manton on the epiftle of St. James ; Pamble's Works ; Baxter's Shove for a heavy-arfed Christian; his Call to the Unconverted ; Mary Magdalen's Funeral Tears : Mrs. Moore's Evidences for Heaven; Mead's Almost a Christian; The Sure Guide to Heaven; Brooks on Affurance; God's Revenge against Murder ; Brooks's Heaven upon Earth ; The Pathway to Heaven; Wilcox's Guide to eternal Glory; Derham's Unfearchable Riches of Chrift; his Exposition of Revelations; Alleine's Sure Guide to Heaven; The Sincere Convert; Watfon's Heaven taken by Storm ; Heaven's Vengeance; Wall's None but Chrift; Ariftotle's Masterpiece ; Coles on God's Sovereignty ; Charnock on Providence ; Young's Short

Short and fure Guide to Salvation ; Wefley's Sermons, Journals, Tracts, &c. and others of the fame defcription.

We had indeed a few of a better fort, as Gay's Fables; Pomfret's Poems; Milton's Paradife Loft; befides Hobbes's Homer, and Walker's Epictetus, mentioned in my laft letter.

But what we wanted in judgment in choofing our library, we made up in application; fo anxious were we to read a great deal, that we allowed ourfelves but about three hours fleep in twenty-four, and for fome months together we never were all in bed at the fame time; (Sunday nights excepted.) But left we fhould overfleep the time allowed, one of us fat up to work until the time appointed for the others to rife, and when all were up, my friend John and your humble fervant, took it by turns to read aloud to the reft, while they were at their work.

But this mad fcheme of ours had nearly been attended with very ferious confequences.

173

1.115

quences. One night it being my turn to watch, I removed to the fire-fide, to read fome particular paffage, and the candleftick which we worked by not being convenient to move about, and there being no other at that time in the room, I fet up the candle against the handle of a pewter pot, and was fo extremely heavy (owing to much watchfulnefs) that I fell fast asleep and had like never to have awaked again; for the candle burned down to the handle of the pot, melted it off, and then fell on the chair on which it flood ; fo that Mr. Jones found me in the morning, fast asleep, and part of the chair confumed ; which alarmed us all very much, and made us more cautious.

But still we continued our plan of living, fo that we made a rapid progress in what we called spiritual and divine knowledge; and were soon masters of the various arguments made use of by most polemical divines, &c.

And the better to guard my pupils from what I called falfe doctrines, I used often to engage engage them in various controverfies, in which I fometimes took one fide of the question, fometimes the other, in order to make them well versed in controversy, and acquainted with the ftrength of their adverfaries. So that I was, by turns, a Calvinift, an Arminian, an Arian, a Socinian, a Deift, and even an Atheift. And after they had faid all they could to confute me, I would point out where they had failed, and, added fuch arguments as I was mafter of, and in general we were all fatisfied. But when we happened to have any doubts, we had recourfe to the Bible and commentators of our own fide of the question, and I affure you, my dear friend, this was a very fine hobby-horfe; which, like Aaron's ferpent, fwallowed up all the other hobby-horfes.

" Light minds are pleafed with trifles."

OVID.

1 am, dear Friend,

Your, &c.

LETTER

Digitized by Google

them and EpiStatus, than from all other that that I had read buddre, or have ever read

LETTER XV.

" Laugh where you must ; be candid where you can."

ful breat to read that.

POPE.

DIGEDOID

175

" Know then, that always when you come,

" You'll find me fitting on my bum ;

" Or lying on a couch, furrounded

"With tables, pens, and books, confounded; taught to bear th

" Wrapt up in lofty fpeculation,

" As if on the fafety of the nation," contamy of refraining my defines.

DEAR FRIEND, and the vinewit won at H

N the course of my reading, I learnt that there had been various fects of philosophers amongst the Greeks, Romans, &c. and I well remembered the names of the most eminent of them. At an old book-shop I purchased Plato on the Immortality of the Soul, Plutarch's Morals, Seneca's Morals, Epicurus's Morals, the Morals of Confucius the Chinese Philosopher, and a few others. I now can fcarce help thinking that I received more real benefit from reading and fludying them them and Epictetus, than from all other books that I had read before, or have ever read fince that time.

I was but about twenty-two years of age, when I firft began to read those fine moral productions; and I affure you, my friend, that they made a very deep and lasting impreffion on my mind. By reading them, I was taught to bear the unavoidable evils attending humanity, and to supply all my wants by contracting or restraining my defires.

It is now twenty-three years fince I first perused them; during which time I do not recollect that I have ever felt one anxious painful wish to get money, estates, or any way to better my condition :

- " Indeed, my friend, were I to find
  - " That wealth could e'er my real wifhes gain ;

the public trans standing an

- " Had e'er difturb'd my thoughtful mind,
- " Or coft one ferious moment's pain;
- " I should have faid, that all the rules,
- " I learn'd of moralifts and fchools,
  - " Were very ufelefs, very vain,

And

Digitized by Google

And yet I have never fince that time let flip any fair opportunity of doing it. So that all I mean is, that I have not been over folicitous to obtain any thing that I did not poffefs; but could at all times fay, with St. Paul, that I have learned to be contented in all fituations, although at times they have been very gloomy indeed. Dryden fays,

" We to ourfelves may all our wifnes grant,

" For, nothing coveting, we nothing want."

DRYDEN's Indian Emperor.

177

And in another place he fays,

" They cannot want who with not to have more :

" Who ever faid an anchoret was poor ?"

DRYDEN's Secret Love.

The pleafures of eating and drinking I entirely defpifed, and for fome time carried this difpolition to an extreme. The account of Epicurus living in his garden, at the expence of about a halfpenny per day, and that when he added a little cheefe to his bread on particular occalions, he confidered it as a luxury, filled me with raptures. From that moment K I began

I began to live on bread and tea, and for a confiderable time did not partake of any other viands, but in those I indulged myself three or four times a day. My reafons for living in this abstemious manner were in order to fave money to purchase books, to wean myself from the gross pleafures of eating, drinking, &c. and to purge my mind, and make it more fusceptible of intellectual pleasures. And here I cannot help remarking, that the term Epicure when applied to one who makes the pleafures of the table his chief good, cafts an unjust reflection on Epicurus, and conveys a wrong idea of that contemplative and very abstemious philosopher: for although he afferted that pleafure was the chief or fupreme good, yet he alfo as ftrongly afferted, that it was the tranquillity of the mind, and intellectual pleafure, that he fo extolled and recommended.

- " Some place the blifs in action, fome in cafe;
- " Those call it pleasure, and contentment these :
- " Some, funk to beafts, find pleafure end in pain ;
- " Some, fwell'd to gods, confess e'en virtue vain."

POPE.

I con-

179

I continued the above felf-denying life until I left Briftol, which was on Whitfunday in 1769. I had for fome time before been pointing out to my friend John Jones fome of the pleafures and advantages of travelling, fo that I eafily prevailed on him to accompany me towards the Weft of England; and in the evening we arrived at Bridgewater, where Mr. Jones got work. He was employed by Mr. Cafh, with whom he continued near twelve months, and in the end married Mr. Cafh's daughter, a very pretty and very amiable little woman, with fome fortune. When my friend was offered work by Mr. Cash, I prevailed on him to accept of it, affuring him that I had no doubt of my being able to get work at Taunton : but in that I was difappointed, nor could I get a conftant feat of work until I came to Exeter, and of that place I was foon tired; but being informed that a Mr. John Taylor of Kingsbridge (forty miles below Exeter) wanted fuch a hand, I went down, and was gladly received by Mr. Taylor, whofe name infpires me with gratitude, as he a ourvik 2 soustelenoss never https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT Generated at University of Pennsylvania Public Domain, Google-digitized / http Google-digitized never treated me as a journeyman, but made me his companion: Nor was any part of my time ever fpent in a more agreeable pleafing manner than that which I paffed in this retired place, or I believe more profitable to a master. I was the first man he ever had that was able to make ftuff and filk fhoes, and it being also known that I came from Briftol, this had great weight with the country ladies, and procured my mafter cuftomers, who generally fent for me to take measure of their feet, and I was looked upon by all to be the beft workman in the town, altho' I had not been brought up to ftuff-work, nor had ever entirely made one ftuff or filk fhoe before. Nor fhould I have prefumed to proclaim myfelf a stuff-man, had there been any fuch workmen in the place; but as there were none, I boldly ventured, and fucceeded very well; nor did any one in the town ever know that it was my first attempt in that branch.

180

During the time that I lived here, I as ufual was obliged to employ one or another of my acquaintance to write my letters for me:

/ https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.hav Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

me; this procured me much praife among the young men as a good inditer of letters; (I need not inform you that they were not good judges.) My mafter faid to me one day, he was furprized that I did not learn to write my own letters; and added, that he was fure that I could learn to do it in a very fhort The thought pleafed me much, and time, without any delay I fet about it, by taking up any pieces of paper that had writing on them, and imitating the letters as well as I could. I employed my leifure hours in this way for near two months, after which time I wrote my own letters, in a bad hand, you may be fure; but it was plain and eafy to read, which was all I cared for : nor to the present moment can I write much better, as I never would have any perfon to teach me, nor was I ever poffeffed of patience enough to employ time fufficient to learn to write well; and yet as foon as I was able to fcribble, I wrote verses on some trifle or other every day for years together,

K 3

Out

181

/ https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.hav Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

Digitized by Google

sans una chowie

Original from UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN

Out of fome thousands I at prefent recollect the following, which I placed by the fide of the figure of a clergyman in his robes, with his hands and eyes lifted up; this image stood over the fire-place in my room.

Here's a fhoemaker's chaplain has negative merit, As his vice he ne'er flatters or ruffles his fpirit ; No wages receiving, his confcience is clear ; Not prone to deceiving, he's nothing to fear. 'Tis true he is filent—but that's nothing new; And if you'd repent, his attitude view ; With uplifted hands all vice to reprove, How folemn he flands, his eyes fix'd above !

As a kind of contrast I will infert an epigram that I wrote but a few days fince on an ignorant methodist preacher.

A flupid fellow told me t'other day, That by the fpirit he could preach and pray; Let none then fay that miracles have ceas'd, As God ftill opes the mouth of beaft; And affes now can fpeak as plain As e'r they could in Balaam's reign.

But I always wrote as fast as I could, without endeavouring to write well, and that this

this is my prefent practice I need not inform you.

I came to this place in but a weak state of body, however the healthy fituation of the town, together with bathing in the falt water, foon reftored me to perfect health. I paffed thirteen months here in a very happy manner; but the wages for work being very low, and as I had fpent much time in writing hymns to every fong-tune that I knew, befides a number of love-verfes, letters, &c. I was very poor; and to complete all, I began to keep a deal of company, in which I gave a loofe to my natural gaiety of difpolition, much more than was confiftent with the grave, fedate ideas which I had formed of a religious character ; all which made me refolve to leave Kingfbridge, which I did in 1770.

1 travelled as far as Exeter the first day, where I worked about a fortnight, and faved fufficient to carry me to Bridgewater, where I worked two or three weeks more. Before

K 4

1 ar-

182

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.har Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

Digitized by Google

I arrived there Mr. John Jones had gone back to refide at Briftol, but as foon as he heard of my being in Bridgewater, he and his brother Richard fent me an invitation to come to Briftol again and live with them. Finding that I did not immediately comply, they both came to Bridgewater, and declared their intentions of not returning to Briftol without me; fo that after a day or two I yielded to their folicitations, and again lived very comfortably with them, their mother and fifter,

I think it was about this period, that I went feveral times to the Tabernacle, and heard Mr. George Whitefield; and of all the preachers that ever I attended, never did I meet with one that had fuch a perfect command over the paffions of his audience. In every fermon that I heard him preach, he would fometimes make them ready to burft with laughter, and the next moment drown them in tears; indeed it was fearce poffible for the moft guarded to efeape the effect.

He was the of the of the state of the 715 1

" He had fomething t'was thought fill more horrid to fay,

" When his tongue loft its powers and he fainted away;

" Some fay 'twas his confcience that gave him a ftroke,

" But those who best knew him treat that as a joke ;

"Tis a trick which flage orators use in their need,

" The paffions to raife and the judgment miflead."

SIMKIN.

185

In one of my excursions I paffed many agreeable hours with the late Mr. La Bute, at Cambridge, who was well known, he having taught French in that university upwards of forty years. He informed me that near forty years fince, Mr. Whitefield having advertifed himfelf to preach at Gog-Magog hill, many thousand people collected together from many miles round. While he was preaching he was elevated on the highest ground, and his audience flood all round on the declivity; during his fermon, a young countrywoman, who had come fome miles to hear him, and waited feveral hours, being very faint, owing to the violent heat of the fun, the breaths of the multitude, as well as the want of refreshment; and it is very likely much agitated in her mind by the extraordinary extraordinary doctrines of the preacher, fhe fell backwards, just under the orator, and there lay kicking up her heels. On feeing the poor girl lie in a kind of convultion. fome of the company moved to affift her, and the women began to draw down her apron and petticoats over her feet; but Mr. Whitefield cried out, " Let her alone ! let her alone! A glorious fight! a glorious fight!" No doubt the holy man meant that it was a glorious fight to fee a finner fall before the power of the word; but the young college bucks and wits conftrued his meaning differently, and put the audience into fuch immoderate fits of laughing, that even Mr. Whitefield's utmost efforts were not able to reftore their gravity, but he was obliged to difmifs his congregation abruptly.

For a long time after this happened, the Cantabs as they reeled homewards in the night-time, difturbed the fober inhabitants, by loudly exclaiming, "A glorious fight! A glorious fight! as Doctor Squintum fays."

I am, dear Friend, yours.

LETTER XVI.

" Love, the most generous passion of the mind,

- " The fofteft refuge innocence can find;
- " The fafe director of unguided youth,

" Fraught with kind wifhes, and fecur'd by truth;

" The cordial drop heav'n in our cup has thrown,

" To make the naufeous draught of life go down ;

" On which one only bleffing God might raife,

" In lands of atheifts fubfidies of praife;

** For none did e'er fo cull and flupid prove,

" But felt a God, and blefs'd his pow'r, in love."

Nonpareil,

187

DEAR FRIEND,

I Must now request you to go back with me a few years, as I have not yet made you acquainted with my principal amours. I was about seventeen years of age when an adventure discovered, that although I was so very spiritual, as I before informed you, I was notwithstanding susceptible of another kind of impression.

ff Oh,

- " Oh, let me ftill enjoy the cheerful day,
  - " Till many years unheeded o'er me roll.

" Pleas'd in my age I trifle life away,

188

" And tell how much I lov'd ere I grew old."

HAMMOND's Love Elegies.

Being at farmer Gamlin's, at Charlton, four miles from Taunton, to hear a methodift fermon, I fell defperately in love with the farmer's handfome dairy-maid.

" Her home-fpun drefs in fimple neatnefs lies,

- " And for no glaring equipage fhe fighs.
- " She gratefully receives what heav'n has fent,
- " And, rich in poverty, enjoys content.
- * Her reputation which is all her boaft,
- " In a malicious vifit ne'er was loft.
- " No midnight mafquerade her beauty wears.
- " And health, not paint, the fading bloom repairs.
- " If Love's foft paffions in her bofom reign,
- " An equal paffion warms her happy fwain."

GAY.

At that time I abounded in fpiritual gifts, which induced this honeft ruftic maid to be very kind to me, and to walk feveral fields with me in my road back to Taunton, talking all the way of her fpiritual diffrefs and godly concerns; while I poured heavenly comfort comfort into her foul, and talked fo long of divine Loye, until I found that my affection for her was not altogether of that [piritual nature. And yet,

" We lov'd without tranfgreffing Virtue's bounds:

- " We fix'd the limits of our tendereft thoughts,
- " Came to the verge of honour, and there flopp'd ;
- " We warm'd us by the fire, but were not fcorch'd.
- " If this be fin, Angels might live with more;
- " And mingle rays of minds lefs pure than ours."

DRYDEN's Love Triumphant.

After this you may be fure that I did not let flip any opportunity of hearing fermons at farmer Gamlin's; and I generally prevailed with Nancy Smith, my charming fpiritual dairy-maid, to accompany me part of the way home, and at every gate I accompanied my fpiritual advice with a kifs.

- ---- " Oh then the longeft fummer's day
- " Seem'd too too much in hafte ; ftill the full heart
- " Had not imparted half : 'twas happinefs
- " Too exquisite to last. Of joys departed

" Never to return, how painful the remembrance !

BLAIR's Grave.

LOANS CONTROL

But

180

/ https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.har Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

B'zill at

But alas I thefe comfortable Sunday walks were foon at an end; as my charming Nancy Smith, for fome reafon or other (I have forgot what) left her place, and went to live as dairy-maid with a farmer in the marfh country, between Bridgewater and Briftol, feventeen miles from Taunton; fo that I did not fee her for near two years afterwards; during which time I gave fpiritual advice to another holy fifter, whofe name was Hannah Allen.

I prevailed on this lovely maid to attend the methodift preaching at five o'clock on Monday mornings, and we often met at three or four; fo that we had an hour or two to fpend in walking and converfation on fpiritual affairs. Had you feen and heard us on the cold frofty mornings, it would have put you in mind of Milton's Devils, whom he reprefents as at times ftarving with cold:

" Others apart, fat on a hill, retir'd,

" In thoughts more elevate, and reafon'd high

" Of Provicence, foreknowledge, will, and fate;

" Fix'd

Digitized by Google

" Fix'd fate, free-will, foreknowledge abfolute; " And found no end, in wandering mazes loft." Paradife Loft.

But I affure you, my friend, that we were fometimes like the Galatians of old; we began in the fpirit, and ended in the flefb.

With this dear girl I fpent all my leifure time, for two or three years; fo that we enjoyed together hundreds of happy, and I can truly add, innocent hours.

> " O days of blifs ! " To equal this " Olympus ftrives in vain ; " O happy pair, " O happy fair ! " O happy, happy fwain !"

> > JOANNES SECUNDUS.

But still I never could entirely forget my charming innocent Dairy-maid. In fact I had love enough for both, to have taken either for better for worfe; but my being an apprentice, prevented me from marrying at that time.

i am, doge h is a yours, &a.

and his broking Racht hat

It

191

It is true I had the greateft love for Nancy Smith; but Hannah Allen had the advantage of Nancy, as I could fee Hannah almost every day, and Nancy only once or twice in about three years. However I at last fell out with Hannah (on what occasion I cannot recollect) and I fent Nancy a letter, which made up matters with her; for, like Sterne, I was " always in love with one goddefs or other ;" and foon after that, fhe came to live for a little time at her father's house at Petherton near Bridgewater, feven miles from Taunton. This happened during the election at Taunton, when I was changed from a ftrict methodift to a rake; and although the wedding ring was purchased, and we were to have been married in a few days, yet the marriage was put off on account of my diffipated character, fo that I foon after fet off for Briftol, as I before informed you : nor did I fee her after that, until my return from Kingfbridge, when I faw her feveral times prior to my fetting off for Briftol with my friend John Jones, and his brother Richard.

I am, dear Friend, yours, &c.

LIFE OF J. LACKINGTON. LIFE OF J. LACKINGTON.

TER

" The man who by his labour gets

" His bread in independent state,

" Who never begs, and feldom eats,

" Himfelf can fix, or change his fate."

Vicini PRIOR. 1.03

193

" If you will use the little that you have,

" More has not heav'n to give, or you to crave :

" Ceafe to complain. He never can be poor

Who has fufficient, and who wants no more.

" If but from cold, and pining hunger free,

" The richeft monarch can but equal thee.

HORACE Imitated.

1 140 Brits 12

DEAR FRIEND,

Had not long refided a fecond time with my good Briftol friends, before I renewed my correspondence with my old fweetheart Nancy Smith. I informed her that my attachment to Books, together with travelling from place to place, and alfo my total difregard for money, had prevented me from faving any; and that while I remained in a fingle unfettled state, I was never likely likely to accumulate it. I also preffed her very much to come to Bristol to be married, which she soon complied with : and married we were, at St. Peter's Church, towards the end of the year 1770; near seven years after my first making love to her.

L

194

- " When join'd in hand and heart, to church we went,
- " Mutual in vows, and pris'ners by confent.
- " My Nancy's heart beat high, with mix'd alarms,
- " But trembling beauty glow'd with double charms.
- " In her foft breaft a modeft ftruggle rofe,
- " How the thould feem to like the lot the chofe :
- " A fmile, fhe thought would drefs her looks too gay :
- " A frown might feem too fad, and blaft the day.
- " But while nor this, nor that, her will could bow,
- " She walk'd, and look'd, and charm'd, and knew not how.
- " Our hands at length th' unchanging Fiat bound,
- " And our glad Souls fprung out to meet the found.
- " Joys meeting Joys unite, and ftronger fhine :
- " For paffion purified is half divine :
- " Now NANCY thou art mine, I cry'd-and fhe
- " Sigh'd foft-now JEMMY thou art LORD of me !"

12 W 21 W 21

A. HILL,

We kept our wedding at the houfe of my friends the Meffrs. Jones's, and at bed-time retired to ready-furnished lodgings, which we had before provided, at half-a-crown per week

Digitized by Google

2111

Our finances were but just fufficient week. to pay the expences of the day, for the next morning in fearching our pockets (which we did not do in a careless manner) we discovered that we had but one halfpenny to begin the world with. It is true we had laid in eatables fufficient for a day or two, in which time we knew we could by our work procure more, which we very cheerfully fet about, finging together the following strains of Dr. Cotton :

- " Our portion is not large indeed,
- " But then how little do we need?
  - " For Nature's calls are few ;
- " In this the art of living lies,
- " To want no more than may fuffice,
  - " And make that little do."

The above, and the following ode by Mr. Fitzgerald, did we fcores of times repeat, even with raptures I man and show and show

Kinethridge, Sec. I was oblight for take 7000 3019 10 1000 2

" No glory I covet, no riches I want,

" Ambition is nothing to me :

" The one thing I beg of kind heaven to grant " Is, a mind independent and free.

" By

blussed

195

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.har main, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Generated at Un Public Domain,

" By paffion unrufiled, untainted by pride,

196

" By Reafon my life let me fquare ;

The wants of my nature are cheaply fupplied,
And the reft are but folly and care.

Those bleffings which providence kindly has lent,
 I'll justly and gratefully prize;

" While fweet meditation and cheerful content, Shall make me both healthy and wife.

> " In the pleafures the great man's posseffions difplay, " Unenvy'd I'll challenge my part;

> > N SentStro

" For every fair object my eyes can furvey,

" Contributes to gladden my heart.

" How vainly through infinite trouble and ftrife,

" The many their labours employ;

" When all that is truly delightful in life,

" Is what all, if they will, may enjoy."

After having worked on ftuff-work in the country, I could not bear the idea of returning to the leather branch ; fo that I attempted and obtained a feat of Stuff in Briftol. But better work being required there than in Kingfbridge, &c. I was obliged to take fo much care to pleafe my mafter, that at firft I could not get more than nine fhillings a week, and my wife could get but very little,

Digitized by Google

H Br

as

197

as the was learning to bind ftuff-fhoes, and had never been much used to her needle; fo that what with the expence of ready-furnished lodging, fire, candles, &c. we had but little left for purchasing provisions.

To increase our straits, my old friend being fomewhat difpleafed at our leaving him and his relations, took an early opportunity to tell me that I was indebted to him near forty shillings, of two years standing. I was not convinced of the justice of the claim, but to avoid difpute, I paid him in about two months, during nearly the whole of which time it was extremely fevere weather, and yet we made four shillings and fixpence per week pay for the whole of what we confumed in eating and drinking. Strong beer we had none, nor any other liquor (the pure element excepted) and inftead of tea, or rather coffee, we toafted a piece of bread; at other times we fried fome wheat, which when boiled in water made a tolerable fubftitute for coffee ; and as to animal food, we made L3 made use of but little, and that little we boiled and made broth of.

During the whole of this time we never once wifhed for any thing that we had not got, but were quite contented, and with a good grace, in reality made a virtue of neceffity. We " Trembled not with vain defires, " Few the things which life requires."

2011/01/12

biovs

in month

Wet The Past

And the fubject of our prayer was

- " This day be bread and peace our lot,
- " All elfe beneath the fun,
  - " Thou know'ft if beft beftow'd or not,
    - " And let thy will be done.

1 am, dear Friend,

for the whole of all the

Your, &c.

LETTER

Digitized by Google

OW! 1

109

LETTER XVIII.

" This fame Monfieur Poverty is a bitter enemy." JOHN DORY.

" In adverfe hours an equal mind maintain." FRANCIS'S Horace.

its watmon and at hevel

DEAR FRIEND,

IN a few days after we had paid the laft five shillings of the debt claimed by my friend Mr. Jones, we were both together taken fo ill as to be confined to our bed, but the good woman of the houfe, our landlady, came to our room and did a few trifles for us. She feemed very much alarmed at our fituation, or rather for her own, I fuppofe, as thinking we might in fome meafure become burthenfome to her. We had in cash two shillings and nine-pence, halt crown of which we had carefully locked up in a box, to be faved for a refource on any extraordinary emergence. This money fup-L4 ported

200

ported us two or three days, in which time I recovered without the help of medicine: but my wife continued ill near fix months, and was confined to her bed the greateft part of the time; which illnefs may very eafily be accounted for.

Before the came to Briftol, the had ever been used to a very active life, and had always lived in the country, fo that in coming to dwell in a populous city, fhe had exchanged much exercife and good air for a fedentary life and very bad air; and this I prefume was the caufe of all her illnefs from time to time, which at length, as unfortunately as effectually, undermined her conftitution. During her first fix months illnefs, 1 lived many days folely on water-gruel; for as I could not afford to pay a nurfe, much of my time was taken up in attendance on her, and most of my money expended in procuring medicines, together with fuch trifles as the could eat and drink. But what added extremely to my calamity was the being being within the hearing of her groans, which were caufed by the excruciating pains in her head, which for months together defied the power of medicine.

It is impoffible for words to defcribe the keennels of my lenfations during this long term; yet as to myfelf, my poverty and being obliged to live upon water-gruel gave me not the leaft uneafinels.

" In ruffling feafons I was calm,

" And fmil'd when fortune frown'd."

Young.

201

But the neceffity of being continually in the fight and hearing of a beloved object, a young, charming, handfome, innocent wife,

" Who fick in bed lay gafping for her breath ;

" Her eyes, like dying lamps funk in their fockets,

" Now glar'd, and now drew back their feeble light :

" Faintly her fpeech fell from her fault'ring tongue

" In interrupted accents, as the ftrove

"With ftrong agonies that fhook her limbs

" And writh'd her tortur'd features into forms

" Hideous to fight,"

BELLER's Injur'd Innocence.

How

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.har Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

200

How I supported this long dreary scene. I know not; the bare recollection of which is exceedingly painful, even at this diftance of time. At last, when every thing that feemed to promise relief had been tried in vain, fome old woman recommended Cephalic fnuff. I own I had not much faith in it; however I procured it, and in a fhort time after fhe was much relieved from the intolerable pain in her head, but yet continued in a very bad ftate of health ; her conflitution having fuffered fuch a dreadful fhock, I thought that no means could be used to likely to reftore it, as a removal to her native air. Accordingly I left my feat of work at Briftol, and returned with her to Taunton, which is about feven miles from Petherton, her native place. But in Taunton I could not procure fo much work as I could do; fo that as foon as I thought fhe could bear the air of Briftol, we returned thither, where fhe foon relapfed, and we again went back to Taunton. This removing to Taunton was repeated about five times in little more than two years and a half.

But

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 inia on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.har http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Pennsylvania University of Penns n, Google-digitized Generated at Ur Public Domain,

But at laft, finding that fhe had long fits of illnefs at Taunton alfo, as well as at Briftol, with a view of having a better price for my work I refolved to vifit London; and as I had not money fufficient to bear the expences of both to town, I left her all the money I could fpare, and took a place on the outfide of the ftage coach, and the fecond day arrived in the metropolis, in August 1773, with two fhillings and fixpence in my pocket; and recollecting the addrefs of an old townfman, who was alfo a fpiritual brother.

- " Whofe hair in greafy locks hung down,
- " As strait as candles from his crown,
- " To fhade the borders of his face,
- " Whofe outward figns of inward grace
- " Were only visible in spiteful
- " Grimaces, very ftern and frightful."

BUTLER's Pofth. Works.

This holy brother was alfo a journeyman fhoe-maker, who had arrived at the fummit of his expectations, being able to keep a houfe over his head (as he chofe to express himfelf) that is by letting nearly the whole of

203

200

ported us two or three days, in which time I recovered without the help of medicine: but my wife continued ill near fix months, and was confined to her bed the greateft part of the time; which illnefs may very eafily be accounted for.

Before the came to Briftol, the had ever been used to a very active life, and had always lived in the country, fo that in coming to dwell in a populous city, fhe had exchanged much exercife and good air for a fedentary life and very bad air; and this I prefume was the caufe of all her illnefs from time to time, which at length, as unfortunately as effectually, undermined her conflitution. During her first fix months illnefs, I lived many days folely on water-gruel; for as I could not afford to pay a nurfe, much of my time was taken up in attendance on her, and most of my money expended in procuring medicines, together with fuch trifles as the could eat and drink. But what added extremely to my calamity was the being

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.har Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google 19:57

being within the hearing of her groans, which were caufed by the excruciating pains in her head, which for months together defied the power of medicine.

It is impossible for words to defcribe the keennels of my fentations during this long term; yet as to myfelf, my poverty and being obliged to live upon water-gruel gave me not the leaft uneafinels.

" In ruffling feafons I was calm,

" And fmil'd when fortune frown'd."

Young. berel

201

But the neceffity of being continually in the fight and hearing of a beloved object, a young, charming, handfome, innocent wife,

" Who fick in bed lay gafping for her breath ;

" Her eyes, like dying lamps funk in their fockets,

" Now glar'd, and now drew back their feeble light :

" Faintly her fpeech fell from her fault'ring tongue

" In interrupted accents, as fhe ftrove

"With ftrong agonies that fhook her limbs

" And writh'd her tortur'd features into forms.

" Hideous to fight,"

Marit & BRE E

BELLER's Injur'd Innocence.

How

200

How I fupported this long dreary fcene, I know not; the bare recollection of which is exceedingly painful, even at this diftance of time. At laft, when every thing that feemed to promife relief had been tried in vain, fome old woman recommended Cephalic fnuff. I own I had not much faith in it; however I procured it, and in a fhort time after fhe was much relieved from the intolerable pain in her head, but yet continued in a very bad ftate of health; her conflitution having fuffered fuch a dreadful fhock, I thought that no means could be used to likely to reftore it, as a removal to her native air. Accordingly I left my feat of work at Briftol, and returned with her to Taunton, which is about feven miles from Petherton, her native place. But in Taunton I could not procure fo much work as I could do; fo that as foon as I thought she could bear the air of Bristol, we returned thither, where she foon relapsed, and we again went back to Taunton. This removing to Taunton was repeated about five times in little more than two years and a half.

But

But at laft, finding that fhe had long fits of illnefs at Taunton alfo, as well as at Briftol, with a view of having a better price for my work I refolved to vifit London; and as I had not money fufficient to bear the expences of both to town, I left her all the money I could fpare, and took a place on the outfide of the ftage coach, and the fecond day arrived in the metropolis, in August 1773, with two fhillings and fixpence in my pocket; and recollecting the addrefs of an old townfman, who was alfo a fpiritual brother.

- " Whofe hair in greafy locks hung down,
- " As frait as candles from his crown,
- " To shade the borders of his face,
- " Whofe outward figns of inward grace
- " Were only visible in spiteful
- " Grimaces, very ftern and frightful."

BUTLER's Pofth. Works.

This holy brother was also a journeyman shoe-maker, who had arrived at the fummit of his expectations, being able to keep a house over his head (as he chose to express himself) that is by letting nearly the whole of

203

200

ported us two or three days, in which time I recovered without the help of medicine: but my wife continued ill near fix months, and was confined to her bed the greateft part of the time; which illnefs may very eafily be accounted for.

Before the came to Briftol, the had ever been used to a very active life, and had always lived in the country, fo that in coming to dwell in a populous city, fhe had exchanged much exercife and good air for a fedentary life and very bad air; and this I prefume was the caufe of all her illnefs from time to time, which at length, as unfortunately as effectually, undermined her conftitution. During her first fix months illnefs, I lived many days folely on water-gruel; for as I could not afford to pay a nurfe, much of my time was taken up in attendance on her, and most of my money expended in procuring medicines, together with fuch trifles as fhe could eat and drink. But what added extremely to my calamity was the being

/ https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.har Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

Digitized by Google

being within the hearing of her groans, which were caufed by the excruciating pains in her head, which for months together defied the power of medicine.

It is impoffible for words to defcribe the keennefs of my fenfations during this long term; yet as to myfelf, my poverty and being obliged to live upon water-gruel gave me not the leaft uneafinefs.

" In ruffling feafons I was calm,

" And finil'd when fortune frown'd."

Young.

201

But the neceffity of being continually in the fight and hearing of a beloved object, a young, charming, handfome, innocent wife,

" Who fick in bed lay gafping for her breath ;

" Her eyes, like dying lamps funk in their fockets,

" Now glar'd, and now drew back their feeble light :

" Faintly her fpeech fell from her fault'ring tongue

" In interrupted accents, as fhe ftrove

" With ftrong agonies that fhook her limbs

" And writh'd her tortur'd features into forms.

" Hideous to fight,"

BELLER's Injur'd Innocence.

How

200

How I fupported this long dreary fcene, I know not; the bare recollection of which is exceedingly painful, even at this diftance of time. At laft, when every thing that feemed to promife relief had been tried in vain, fome old woman recommended Cephalic fnuff. I own I had not much faith in it; however I procured it, and in a fhort time after fhe was much relieved from the intolerable pain in her head, but yet continued in a very bad ftate of health ; her conftitution having fuffered fuch a dreadful fhock, I thought that no means could be used to likely to reftore it, as a removal to her native air. Accordingly I left my feat of work at Briftol, and returned with her to Taunton, which is about feven miles from Petherton, her native place. But in Taunton I could not procure fo much work as I could do; fo that as foon as I thought fhe could bear the air of Briftol, we returned thither, where the foon relapfed, and we again went back to Taunton. This removing to Taunton was repeated about five times in little more than two years and a half.

Digitized by Google

203

But at laft, finding that fhe had long fits of illnefs at Taunton alfo, as well as at Briftol, with a view of having a better price for my work I refolved to vifit London; and as I had not money fufficient to bear the expences of both to town, I left her all the money I could fpare, and took a place on the outfide of the ftage coach, and the fecond day arrived in the metropolis, in August 1773, with two fhillings and fixpence in my pocket; and recollecting the addrefs of an old townsman, who was also a spiritual brother.

- " Whofe hair in greafy locks hung down,
- " As ftrait as candles from his crown,
- " To shade the borders of his face,
- " Whofe outward figns of inward grace
- " Were only visible in spiteful
- " Grimaces, very stern and frightful."

BUTLER's Pofth. Works.

TIE 1

This holy brother was also a journeyman fhoe-maker, who had arrived at the fummit of his expectations, being able to keep a house over his head (as he chose to express himsfelf) that is by letting nearly the whole of

204

of it out in lodgings, he was enabled to pay the rent. This houfe was in White-crofsftreet, which I found out the morning after my arrival, where I procured a lodging, and Mr. Heath, in Fore-ftreet, fupplied me with plenty of work.

I laugh'd then and whiftl'd, and fung too most fweet, Saying, just to a hair I've made both ends to meet. Derry-down.

and fixpence in my pocket ; "adire-

I am,

Dear Friend,

religion the address of an old new manage

who was also a trained brether.

Yours, &c.

LETTER

State ( distance

Digitized by Google

LETTER XIX.

LETTON IN THE POLY

" I'll travel no more-I'll try a London audience-

" Who knows but I may get an engagement."

Wild Oats.

201

" When fuperfition (bane of manly virtues !)

" Strikes root within the foul; it over-runs

" And kills the power of Reafon."

the distance may distance

PHILIPS of Gloucester.

DEAR FRIEND,

AT this time I was as vifionary and fuperfitious as ever I had been at any preceding period, for although I had read fome fenfible books, and had thereby acquired a few rational ideas, yet having had a methodiftical wife for near three years, and my keeping methodiftical company, together with the gloomy notions which in fpite of reafon and philofophy I had imbibed during the frequent, long, and indeed almost conflant illnefs of my wife, the confequence was, that those few rational or liberal ideas which

206

which I had before treafured up, were at my coming to London in a dormant state, or borne down by the torrent of enthusiaftic whims, and fanatical chimeras.

> " _____ Oh ! what a reafonlefs machine " Can fuperflition make the reas'ner man !" MILLER's Mahomet.

So that as foon as I procured a lodging and work, my next enquiry was for Mr. Wefley's Gospel-shops: and on producing my class and band tickets from Taunton, I was put into a class, and a week or two after admitted into a band.

But it was feveral weeks before I could firmly refolve to continue in London; as I really was flruck with horror for the fate of it; more particularly on Sundays, as I found fo few went to church, and fo many were walking and riding about for pleafure, and the lower clafs getting drunk, quarrelling, fighting, working, buying, felling, &c. I had feen fo much of the fame kind in Briftol, that I often wondered how God permitted it

213352.11

to

SUD TRANSFORM SHIT WIN

207

to fland; but London I found infinitely worfe, and ferioufly trembled for fear the measure of iniquity was quite full, and that every hour would be its laft. However I at length concluded, that if London was a fecond Sodom, I was a fecond Lot; and thefe comfortable ideas reconciled me to the thought of living in it. Befides, fome of Mr. Wefley's people gave me great comfort by affuring me, that " the Lord had much people in this city :" which I foon difcovered to be true, as I got acquainted with many of those righteous chosen faints, who modefly arrogate to themfelves that they are the peculiar favourites of heaven, and confequently that any place they refide in must be fafe.

In a month I faved money fufficient to bring up my wife, and fhe had a pretty tolerable ftate of health; of my mafter I obtained fome ftuff-fhoes for her to bind, and nearly as much as fhe could do. Having now plenty of work and higher wages, we were tolerably eafy in our circumftances, more fo than than we ever had been, fo that we foon procured a few cloaths. My wife had all her life before done very well with a fuperfine broad cloth cloak, but now I prevailed on her to have one of filk.

Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google -

138.141

208

Until this winter I had never found out that I wanted a great coat, but now I made that important discovery; and my landlord fhewed me one made of a coarfe kind of Bathcoating, which he purchased new at a shop in Rofemary-lane, for ten shillings and fixpence; fo that the next half guinea I had to fpare, away I went to Rofemary-lane (and to my great furprife) was hauled into a fhop by a fellow who was walking up and down before the door of a flopfeller, where I was foon fitted with a great coat of the fame fort as that of my landlord. I asked the price; but how great was my aftonifhment, when the honeft flopman told me, that he was fo taken with my clean, honeft, industrious looks, that he would let me have it cheaper than he would his own brother, fo in one word he would would oblige me with it for five and twenty fhillings, which was the very money that it coft him. On hearing this, I croffed the fhop in a trice, in order to fet off home again, but the door had a fastening to it beyond my comprehension, nor would the good man let me out before I had made him an offer. I told him, I had fo little money about me that I could not offer any thing, and again defired that he would let me out. But he perfifted, and at last I told him that my landlord had informed me that he had purchased such ano-. ther coat for ten shillings and fixpence; on which he began to give himfelf airs, and affured me that however fome people came by their goods, that for his part, he always paid for his. I heartily withed myfelf out of the fhop, but in vain; as he feemed determined not to part with me until I had made fome offer. I then told him that I had but ten shillings and fixpence, and of course could not offer him any more than I had got. I now expected more abuse from him, but inead of that the patient good man told me, that 209

Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

M

Digitized by Google

210

that as he perhaps might get fomething by me another time, I fhould have the coat for my half guinea, although it was worth more than double the money.

About the end of November I received an account of the death of my grandfather; and was alfo informed that he had left a will in favour of my grandmother-in-law's relations, who became poffeffed of all his effects, except a finall freehold eftate, which he left to my youngeft brother, becaufe he happened to be called George (which was the name of my grandfather) and ten pounds a piece to each of his other grand-children.

So totally unacquainted was I with the modes of transacting business, that I could not point out any method of having my ten pounds sent up to London, at least no mode that the executor of the will would approve of; it being such a prodigious sum, that the greatest caution was used on both-sides, so that it cost me about half the money in going down for it, and in returning to town again. This

211

This was in extremely hard frofty weather (I think fome time in December) and being on the outfide of a ftage-coach, I was fo very cold, that when I came to the inn where the paffengers dined, I went directly to the fire, which ftruck the cold inward, fo that I had but a very narrow escape from death. This happened in going down. In returning back to town, I had other misfortunes to encoun-The cold weather fill continuing, I ter. thought the bafket warmer than the roof, and about fix miles from Salifbury, I went back into the basket. But on getting out of it, in the inn yard at Salifbury, I heard fome money jingle, and on fearching my pockets, I discovered that I had loft about fixteen shillings, two or three of which I found in the basket, the rest had fallen through on the road; and no doubt the whole of what I had left of my ten pounds would have gone the fame way, had I not (for fear of highwaymen) fewed it up in my cloaths. The lofs of my filver I bore with the temper of a ftoic, and like Epictetus reafoned, that I could not M 2 have have loft it, if I had not first had it; and that as I had lost it, why it was all the fame as though it had never been in my possession.

/ https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/ac

Digitized by Google

But a more dreadful misfortune befel me the next morning; the extreme fevere weather ftill continuing, in order to keep me from dying with cold, I drank fome purl and gin, which (not being ufed to drink any thing ftrong) made me fo drunk, that the coachman put me infide the carriage for fear I should fall off the roof. I there met with fome of the jovial fort, who had also drank to keep out the cold, fo that I found them in high glee; being afked to fing them a fong, I immediately complied, and forgetting that I was one of the holy brethren, I fung fong for fong with the merrieft of them ; only feveral times between the acts, I turned up the whites of my eyes, and uttered a few ejaculations, as "Lord forgive me!" " O Chrift! What am I doing ?" and a few more of the fame pious fort. However after eating a good dinner, and refraining from liquor, I became nearly nearly fober, and by the time I arrived in town quite fo; though in a terrible agitation of mind, by reflecting on what I had don and was fo ashamed of the affair, that I concealed it from my wife, that I might not grieve her righteous foul with the knowledge of fo dreadful a fall: fo that the with great pleafure ripped open the places in my clothes, which contained my treasure, and with an heart full of gratitude, pioufly thanked providence for affording us fuch a fupply, and hoped that the Lord would enable us to make a good use of it.

213

I am,

Dear Friend,

Yours, &c.

M 3

LETTER

LETTER XX.

" Now fince thro' all the race of man we find,

" Each to fome darling paffion is inclin'd,

" Let BOOKS be still the bias of my mind."

Anonym,

" Fixt in an elbow chair at eafe,

" I choofe companions as I pleafe,"

SWIFT.

DEAR FRIEND,

214

W ITH the remainder of the money we purchafed houfhold goods, but as we then had not fufficient to furnifh a room, we worked hard, and lived ftill harder, fo that in a fhort time we had a room furnifhed with our own goods; and I believe that it is not poffible for you to imagine with what pleafure and fatisfaction we looked round the room and furveyed our property: I believe that Alexander the Great never reflected on his immenfe acquifitions with half the heart-felt enjoyment which we experienced on this capital attainment.

After

215

After our room was furnished, as we still enjoyed a better state of health than we did at Bristol and Taunton, and had also more work and higher wages, we often added something or other to our stock of wearing apparel. Nor did I forget the old-book shops: but frequently added an old book to my small collection, and I really have often purchased books with the money that should have been expended in purchasing something to eat; a striking instance of which follows:

At the time we were purchasing houshold goods, we kept ourfelves very fhort of money. and on Christmas-eve we had but half-acrown left to buy a Chriftmas dinner. My wife defired that I would go to market, and purchase this feftival dinner, and off I fet for that purpofe; but in the way I faw an oldbook fhop, and I could not refift the temptation of going in; intending only to expend fixpence or ninepence out of my half-crown. But I fumbled upon Young's Night Thoughts-down went my half-crown-and M4 1 haftened

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.har Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

I haftened home, vaftly delighted with the acquifition. When my wife afked me where was our Chriftmas dinner ? I told her it was in my pocket .- " In your pocket (faid fhe) that is a ftrange place. How could you think of fluffing a joint of meat into your pocket ?" I affured her that it would take no But as I was in no hafte to take it harm. out, fhe began to be more particular, and enquired what I had got, &c. On which I began to harangue on the fuperiority of intellectual pleafures over fenfual gratifications, and obferved that the brute creation enjoyed the latter in a much higher degree than man. And that a man, that was not poffeffed of intellectual enjoyments, was but a twolegged brute.

I was proceeding in this ftrain : " And fo, (faid fhe) inftead of buying a dinner, I fuppofe you have, as you have done before, been buying books with the money?" I then confeffed I had bought Young's Night Thoughts: " And I think (faid I) that I have acted wifely; wifely; for had I bought a dinner, we fhould have eaten it to-morrow, and the pleafure would have been foon over, but fhould we live fifty years longer, we fhall have the Night Thoughts to feaft upon." This was too powerful an argument to admit of any farther debate; in fhort, my wife was convinced. Down I fat, and began to read with as much enthufiafin as the good doctor poffeffed when he wrote it; and fo much did it excite my attention as well as approbation, that I retained the greateft part of it in my memory. A couplet of Perfius, as Englifhed, might have been applied to me:

217

" _____ For this you gain those meager looks, " And facrifice your dinner to your books."

Sometime in June 1774, as we fat at work in our room, Mr. Boyd, one of Mr. Wefley's people, called and informed me that a little fhop and parlour were to be let in Featherstone-street; adding, that if I was to take it, I might there get some work as a master. I without hesitation told him that that I liked the idea, and hinted that I would fell books alfo. Mr. Boyd then afked me how I came to think of felling books? I informed him that until that moment it had never once entered into my thoughts; but that when he proposed my taking the fhop, it inftantaneoufly occurred to my mind, that for feveral months paft I had obferved a great increase in a certain old-book shop; and that I was perfuaded I knew as much of old books as the perfon who kept it. I farther observed, that I loved books, and that if I could but be a bookfeller, I fhould then have plenty of books to read, which was the greatest motive I could conceive to induce me to make the attempt. My friend on this affured me, that he would get the fhop for me, and with a laugh added, " when you are Lord Mayor, you shall use all your intereft to get me made an Alderman." Which I engaged not to forget to perform. 1000

My private library at this time confifted of Fletcher's Checks to Antinomianism, &c. 5 volumes;

let in Feathershellin-Freet : a

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 inia on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.har http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Pennsylvania on University of Penns n, Google-digitized Generated at Un Public Domain,

210

5 volumes; Watts's Improvement of the Mind; Young's Night Thoughts; Wake's Tranflation of the Apoftolical Epiftles; Fleetwood's Life of Chrift; the firft twenty numbers of Hinton's Dictionary of the Arts and Sciences; fome of Wefley's Journals, and fome of the pious lives publifhed by him; and about a dozen other volumes of the latter fort, befides odd magazines, &c. And to fet me up in ftile, Mr. Boyd recommended me to the friends of an holy brother lately gone to heaven, and of them I purchafed a bagful of old books, chiefly divinity, for a guinea.

With this flock, and fome odd fcraps of leather, which together with all my books were worth about five pounds, I opened fhop on Midfummer-day, 1774, in Featheftone-ftreet, in the parifh of St. Luke ; and I was as well pleafed in furveying my little fhop with my name over it, as was Nebuchadnezzar, when he faid " Is not this great Babylon that I have built ?" and my good wife wife often perceiving the pleafure that I took in my fhop, pioufly cautioned me against fetting my mind on the riches of this world, and affured me that it was all but vanity. "You are very right, my dear (I fometimes replied) and to keep our minds as fpiritual as we can, we will always attend our class and band meetings, hear as many fermons, &c. at the Foundery on week days as poffible, and on fabbath days we will mind nothing but the good of our fouls: our fmall beer shall be fetched in on Saturday nights, nor will we drefs even a potatoe on the fabbath. We will ftill attend the preaching at five o'clock in the morning; at eight go to the prayer meeting; at ten to the public worfhip at the Foundery; hear Mr. Perry at Cripplegate, at two; be at the preaching at the Foundery at five; meet with the general fociety at fix; meet in the united bands at feven, and again be at the prayer meeting at eight; and then come home and read and pray by ourfelves."

220

I am, dear Friend, yours, &c.

LETTER XXI.

Strange vicifitudes of human fate!

" Still alt'ring, never in a fleady flate ;

" Good after ill, and after pain delight ;

" Alternate, like the fcenes of day and night.

" Since every one who lives, is born to die,

" And none can boaft intire felicity:

" With equal mind what happens let us bear,

" Nor joy, nor grieve too much for things beyond our care.

* Like pilgrims, to the appointed place we tend :

" The world's an Inn, and death's the journey's end.

DRYDEN's Palemon and Arcite.

221

DEAR FRIEND,

NOtwithstanding the obfcurity of the street, and the mean appearance of my shop, yet I foon found customers for what few books I had, and I as soon laid out the money in other old trash which was daily brought for fale.

At that time Mr. Wefley's people had a fum of money which was kept on purpose to lend out, for three months, without interest to

Digitized by Google

1243

to fuch of their fociety whofe characters were good, and who wanted a temporary relief. To increafe my little ftock, I borrowed five pounds out of this fund, which was of great fervice to me.

In our new fituation we lived in a very frugal manner, often dining on potatoes, and quenching our thirft with water, being abfolutely determined if poffible to make fome provifion for fuch difmal times as ficknefs, fhortnefs of work, &c. which we had been fo frequently involved in before, and could fcarce help expecting to be our fate again. My wife foreboded it much more than I did, being of a more melancholy turn of mind.

" A fad prophetic Spirit dwells with woe."

I lived in this fireet fix months, and in that time increased my stock from five pounds, to twepty-five pounds.

" London-

"London—the public there are candid and generous, and before my merit can have time to create me enemies, I'll fave money, and a fig for the Sultan and Sophy."

Rover.

223

This immense flock I deemed too valuable to be buried in Featherstone-Street; and a shop and parlour being to let in Chiswell-Street, No. 46, I took them. This was at that time, and for source nyears afterwards a very dull and obscure street as few ever passed through it, besides Spitalsield weavers on banging days, and methodists on preaching nights; but still it was much better adapted for business than Featherstone-Street.

A few weeks after I came into Chifwell-Street, I bade a final adieu to the gentle craft, and converted my little flock of leather, &c. into old books; and a great fale I had, confidering my flock; which was not only extremely fmall, but contained very little variety, as it principally confifted of divinity; for as I had not much knowledge, fo I feldom ventured out of my depth. Indeed, there

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124

inia on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.har http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

Pennsylvania

University of Penns n, Google-digitized

Generated at Un Public Domain,

224

there was one clafs of books, which for the first year or two that I called myself a bookfeller, I would not fell, for such was my ignorance, bigotry, superstition (or what you please) that I conficientiously destroyed such books as fell into my hands which were written by freethinkers; for really supposing them to be dictated by the devil, I would neither read them myself, nor fell them to others.

You will perhaps be furprifed when I inform you, that there are in London (and I fuppofe in other populous places) perfons who purchafe every article which they have occafion for (and alfo many articles which they have no occafion for) at ftalls, beggarly fhops, pawnbrokers, &c. under the idea of purchafing cheaper than they could at refpectable fhops, and of men of property. A confiderable number of thefe kind of cuftomers I had in the beginning, who forfook my fhop as foon as I began to appear more refpectable, by introducing better order, poffeffing more valuable books, and having acquired https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.har tized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google at University of Penns main, Google-digitized Generated at Un Public Domain,

225

acquired a better judgment, &c. Notwithftanding which, I declare to you, upon my honour, that these very bargain-hunters have. given me double the price that I now charge for thousands and tens of thousands of volumes. For as a tradefman increases in refpectability and opulence, his opportunities of purchasing increase proportionably, and the more he buys and fells, the more he becomes a judge of the real value of his goods. It was for want of this experience and judgment, flock, &c. that for feveral years I was in the habit of charging more than double the price I now do for many thousand articles. But professed bargain-hunters often purchase old locks at the stalls in Moorfields, when half the wards are rufted off or taken out, and give more for them than they would have paid for new locks to any reputable ironmonger. And what numerous inftances of this infatuation do we meet with daily at fales by auction, not of books only, but of many other articles! Of which I could here adduce a variety of glaring inftances : but N (not

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.har Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

226

(not to tire you) a few of recent date shall fuffice.-At the fale of Mr. Rigby's books at Mr. Chriftie's, Martyn's Dictionary of Natural History fold for fifteen guineas, which then flood in my catalogue at four pounds fifteen shillings; Pilkington's Dictionary of Painters, at seven guineas, usually fold at three; Francis's Horace, two pounds eleven shillings, and many others in the fame man-At Sir George Colebrook's fale, the ner. octavo edition of the Tatler fold for two guineas and a half. At a fale a few weeks fince, Rapin's History, in folio, the two first volumes only (inftead of five) fold for upwards of five pounds! I charge for the fame from ten shillings and sixpence to one pound ten shillings; and I fell great numbers of books to pawnbrokers, who fell them out of their windows at much higher prices, the purchasers believing that they are buying bargains, and that fuch articles have been pawned; and it is not only books which pawnbrokers purchafe, but various other matters, and they always purchase the worst kind of very article. I will even add that many fhops which are https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 hid on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.har http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Pennsylvania University of Penns n, Google-digitized Generated at Un Public Domain,

227

are called pawnbrokers, never take in any pawns, yet can live by felling things which are fuppofed to be kept over time.

I went on profperoufly until fome time in September, 1775, when I was fuddenly taken ill of a dreadful fever; and eight or ten days after, my wife was feized with the fame diforder.

At that time I only kept a boy to help in my fhop, fo that I fear, while I lay ill, my wife had too much care and anxiety on her mind. I have been told that before fhe was confined to her bed fhe walked about in a delirious ftate; in which fhe did not long continue, but contrary to all expectation died, in enthufiaftic rant, on the ninth of November, furrounded with feveral methodiftical preachers.

" Invidious death ! how doft thou rend in funder

"Whom love has knit and fympathy made one ?

" A tie fo ftubborn."----

BLAIR'S Grave.

She was in reality one of the beft of women; and although for about four years fhe was ill the greateft part of the time, which N 2 involved involved me in the very depth of poverty and diffrefs, yet I never once repented having married her.

" _____ fiill bufy meddling memory,

- " In barbarous fucceffion, mufters up
- " The past endearments of our foster hours,

" Tenacious of his theme."

228

BLAIR's Grave,

'Tis true she was enthusiaftical to an extreme, and of course very superstitious and visionary, but as I was very far gone myself, I did not think that a fault in her.

Indeed the much exceeded me, and most others that ever fell under my obfervation, as the in reality totally neglected and difregarded every kind of pleafure whatever, but those of a spiritual (or visionary) nature. Methinks I here see you smile : but I assure you she made no exception ; but was a complete devotee, and what is more remarkable, without pride or ill-nature.

Intentions fo pure, and fuch meeknefs of fpirit,
Muft of courfe, and of right, Heaven's kingdom inherit."
SIMKIN.

I am, dear Friend, yours.

229

LETTER XXII.

" I've ftrange news to give you ! but when you receive it,

" "Tis impoffible, Sir, that you fhould believe it ;

" But as I've been told this agreeable flory,

" I'll digrefs for a moment to lay it before ye."

DEAR SIR,

A Friend of mine, of whofe veracity I entertain the higheft opinion, has favored me with an account of a lady, who has to the full as much, indeed more of the fpirit, but without the good-nature of Nancy Lackington. The fact is as follows:

" 'Tis true 'tis pity : and pity 'tis it's true."

Mr. R—t, a genteel tradefman with whom I am acquainted, having loft his fecond wife early in 1790, courted and married one of the holy fifters a few months afterwards. They had lived together about fix months, when Mr. R—t, one Sunday, being a fober religious man, took down Doddridge's Lectures, and began to read them to his wife and family.

 $N_3$

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 inia on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.har http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google iversity of Pennsylvania on Google-digitized / http:// Generated at University Public Domain, Google-di

But

230

But this holy fifter found fault with her hufband for reading fuch learned rational difcourfes, which favoured too much of human reafon and vain philofophy, and wifhed he would read fomething more fpiritual and edifying. He attempted to convince her that Dr. Doddridge was not only a good rational divine, but to the full as fpiritual as any divine ought to be; and that to be more fpiritual he must be less rational, and of course become fanatical and visionary. But these observations of the husband fo displeased his fpiritual wife, that fhe retired to bed, and left her hufband to read Doddridge's Lectures as long as he chose to his children by a former wife.

The next morning while Mr. R-t was out on bufinefs, this holy fifter, without faying one fyliable to any perfon, packed up all her clothes, crammed them into a hackney coach, and away the went. Mr. R-t, poor foull on coming home discovered his immense lofs, and in an almost frantic state, spent the N<sub>4</sub>

firft

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.hau cized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Generated at University of Penns Public Domain, Google-digitized

231

first fortnight in fruitless attempts to discoverher retreat.

" Three weeks after her elopement, I was " (fays Mr. R-t) going down Cheap-" fide one day, and faw a lady fomething " like my wife, but as fhe was fomewhat " difguifed, and I could not fee her face, I " was not fure. At last I ventured to look " under her bonnet, and found, that, fure " enough, it was fhe. I then walked three ** times backwards and forwards in Cheap-" fide, endeavouring to perfuade her to re-" turn with me, or to difcover where fhe " lived : but fhe obftinately refused to re-" turn, or to let me fee her retreat; and " here (fays Mr. R-t) I begged that the " would grant me a kifs; but fhe would not. " willingly. However after fome buftle in " the ftreet, I took a farewel kifs. Poor " dear foul! (figh'd he) fhe is rather too " spiritual! for notwithstanding I laid by " her fide near fix months, fhe never would " be prevailed upon to do any thing carnal; " and although I did all in my power to get N4 ". the

232

" the better of her fpiritual fcruples, yet fhe was always fo in love with Chrift her heavenly fpoufe, that when fhe eloped from me, fhe was, I affure you, as good a virgin as when I married her."

I must give you one more flory of the fame nature with the preceding.

A gentleman of London happening to be on a visit at Bristol about three years fince, fell in love with a handfome young lady who was one of the holy fifterhood ; after a few weeks acquaintance he made her an offer of his perfon and fortune, and the young lady after proper inquiry had been made into the gentleman's family, fortune, &c. confented to make our lover happy. They were foon after married, and the fame day fet off in a post-chaife towards London, in order to fleep the first night at an inn, and fo fave the lady the blufhes occasioned by the jokes common on fuch occasions; this happy couple had been in bed about an hour when the cry of murder alarmed the houfe, this alarm proceeding

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.hav tized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Generated at University of Penns Public Domain, Google-digitized ceeding from the room that was occupied by the bride and bridegroom, drew the company that way; the inn-keeper knocked at the door and demanded admittance, our Benedict appeared at the door, and informed the hoft that his lady had been taken fuddenly ill in a kind of fit he believed, but that fhe was better; and after the innkeeper's wife had been fent into the room to fee the young lady, and had found her well, all retired to bed.

233

They had, however, not lain more than two hours, when the cry of murder, fire, &c. again alarmed the houfe, and drew many out of their beds once more.

Our young gentleman then dreffed himfelf, and opening the door, informed the company that he had that morning been married to the young lady in bed, and that being married, he had infifted on being admitted to the privilege of an hufband, but that the young lady had talked much about the good of her poor foul, her fpiritual hufband, &c. and that inftead of granting what he conceived

Digitized by Google

to

234

to be the right of every hufband, fhe had thought proper to difturb all in the houfe. He added, that having been thus made very ridiculous, he would take effectual care to prevent a repetition of the fame abfurd conduct.

He then ordered a post-chaise and set off for London, leaving our young faint in bed to enjoy her spiritual contemplations in their full extent, nor has he ever since paid her any attention.

Some time fince being in a large town in the Weft, fhe was pointed out to me by a friend, as fhe was walking in the ftreet.

The above puts me in mind of what Ovid fays was practifed by young maids on the feftival of the celebrated nymph Anna Perenna, thus translated by I know not who:

" With promifes the amorous god fhe led,

- ** And with fond hopes his eager paffion fed,
- " At length 'tis done, the goddefs yields, fhe cry'd;
- " My pray'rs have gain'd the victory o'er pride.

6 With

235

- " With joy the god prepares the golden bed ;
- " Thither, her face conceal'd, is Anna led,
- . " Just on the brink of blifs, she stands confess'd ;
  - " The difappointed lover is her jeft,
  - " While rage and shame alternate fwell his breast.

I am informed from good authority that there are now in Mr. Wefley's fociety, in London, fome women who ever fince they were converted, have refufed to fleep with their hufbands, and that fome of thofe will not pay the leaft attention to any temporal concern whatever, being as they term it, wholly wrapped up in divine contemplation, having their fouls abforbed in divine love, fo as not to be interrupted by the trifling concerns of a hufband, family, &c.

I am,

Dear Friend,

Yours.

LETTER

Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

LETTER XXIII.

" Women that leave no ftone unturn'd,

" In which the caufe might be concern'd."

HUDIBRAS,

" The man without fin, the methodift Rabbi,

" Has perfectly cur'd the chlorofis of Tabby :

And if right I can judge from her fhape and face,

" She foon may produce an infant of grace.

" Now they fay that all people in her fituation

" Are very fine fubjects for regeneration."

apped up in divide contemplation.

New Bath Guide.

DEAR FRIEND,

236

BECAUSE fome of the holy fifters are in their amours altogether fpiritual, you are by no means to understand that they are all totally divested of the carnal propenfity.

Some of these good creatures are so far from thinking that their husbands are too carnal in their affections, that they really think that they are not enough so; and instances are not wanting, in which, owing to their

237

their having hufbands too fpiritual, they have been willing to receive affiftance from the hufbands of other women.

It is but about a year fince a certain celebrated preacher used to administer carnal confolation to the wife of his clerk. This holy communication was repeated fo often, and fo open, that at last it came to the clerk's ears, who watching an opportunity, one day furprized the pious pair at their devotion, and fo belaboured the preacher with his walkingftaff, that the public were for near a month deprived of the benefits refulting from his remarkable gift of eloquence.

As I am got into the flory-telling way, I cannot refift the temptation of telling another.

A certain holy fifter who lately kept a houfe in a country village, within ten miles of London; and took in (as they called it) Mr. Wefley's preachers, by taking in is only meant, that when they came in their turn to preach preach in the village fhe ufed to fupply each with victuals and a bed; (no doubt but they flept alone.) This lady was fo very remarkable for her spiritual experience and divine gifts, that she attracted many to her house, befides fuch as came in the regular courfe of their duty, and among the former a preacher from London, from whom I learnt the affair. This preacher happening to want a wife, and being very fpiritually-minded, actually married her in December 1790, merely for her great gifts and grace, as her fortune was not above the fiftieth part as much as his own; and as to perfon, fhe is fcarce one degree above uglinefs itfelf; although her husband is well-proportioned, and upon the whole a handfome man. They had not been married a week, when this fimple preacher difcovered that his gifted gracious faint was an incarnate devil, who had married him only to rob, plunder, and him, and in a few months between her and her gallants, they bullied him out of a fettlement to the amount of four times the fum fum fhe brought him, and the poor pious preacher thinks that he has cheaply got rid of her.

" Ah, foolifh woman ! may fhe one day fee

- " How deep the's plung'd herfelf in infamy,
- " And with true penitence wash out the flain ;-- "
- " But-mifchief on't-why fhould I pray in vain;
- " For the's but harden'd at the name of grace,

" No blush was ever feen t' adorn her face."

Gould.

239

The reafon why I interest myfelf in his behalf is, becaufe I am confident that he really is an honeft well-meaning man at the bottom ; but withal one that does not poffefs the greatest share of understanding, and who being formerly but a mean mechanic, never had any education; but although he is a great enthufiaft, yet he is one of the goodnatured inoffenfive fort, who will do no harm to any perfon, but on the contrary all the good in his power. I am only forry, as he lately was an honeft useful tradefman, that he should have fo much spiritual quixotism in him, as at thirty years of age to fhut up his fhop and turn preacher, without being able https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 hild on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.hau http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Pennsylvania on Generated at University of Penns Public Domain, Google-digitized

240

able to read his primer; which I can affure you is the cafe. But here, my friend, you fee I forgot that these heavenly teachers only speak as the Spirit giveth utterance, and that of course all human learning is entirely fuperfluous.

- " ----- " As he does not chufe to cull,
- " His faith by any fcripture rule;

" But by the vapours that torment

" His brains, from hypocondria fent,

- " Which into dreams and visions turn,
- " And make his zeal fo fiercely burn,
- " That reafon lofes the afcendant,

" And all within grows independant,

- " He proves all fuch as do accord
- " With him the chofen of the Lord ;

" But that all others are accurft,

" 'Tis plain in Canticles the first."

BUTLER's Pofth. Works.

A few years fince the methodift-preachers got footing in Wellington (the famous birthplace of your humble fervant) and eftablished a fociety there, foon after which one of their preachers (at Collompton, a neighbouring town) happened to like a young fervant girl, who was one of the holy fifters, she having gone gone through the new birth, better than his wife, becaufe fhe was an unenlightened, unconverted woman. But this fervant girl happening to be with child, the news foon reached Wellington; and a very wealthy gentleman who entertained the preachers there followed the preacher of Collompton's example, and got his own pious maid with child.

24I

" Bleffed the tho' once rejected,

- " Like a little wandering fheep ;
- " Poor maid, one morning was elected
  - " By a vision in her fleep."

After this fome of the fociety in Wellington began to have all things in common, and feveral more of the holy fifters proved prolific; which fo alarmed the parifh, that fome of the heads of it infifted that the preachers fhould not be permitted to preach there any longer. "For, if (faid they) the methodiftfociety continues, we fhall have the parifh full of baftards."

0

A fimilar

A fimilar affair happened at a country town, ten or twelve miles from Oxford, about two years fince, where a very handfome powerful preacher made converts of a great number of women, both married and fingle, who were wonderfully affected, and great numbers flocked to his ftandard; but he had not laboured there more than a year, before the churchwardens were made acquainted with his powerful operations on fine young female faints, who all fwore baftards to this holy, fpiritual labourer in the vineyard; upon which the gentlemen of the town exerted themfelves, and prevented the farther propagation of methodifm; as

" The ladies by fympathy feem'd to difcover

- " The advantage of having a fpiritual lover.
- " They were fadly afraid that wives, widows, and miffes
- " Would confine to the ---- all their favors and kiffes."

The author of a letter to Dr. Coke and Mr. More, published fince the first edition of my Memoirs, informs us, that a gentleman of Chesham had a daughter about seventeen years of age, which he put into the hands hands of a methodift parfon, to have her converted, and was exceedingly kind and liberal to him; and we are informed that this rafcal converted her first, and debauched her afterwards.

So you fee, my dear friend, by the above examples (were it neceffary, I could give you many more) that not all the converted and fanctified females are thereby become fo abforbed in the fpiritual delights of the myftical union, as to have loft all relifh for carnal connections; as we find that many among them are bleffed with a mind fo capacious, as to be able to participate in the pleafures of both worlds.

I am,

Dear Friend,

which time, any which I middle whom I officiantedly

once having a fight of her. What added mile to my misioriunes. feveral might that the mostly build and bur IYours.

til von ben ani lo sile estat of include

Original from UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN

Digitized by Google

LETTER XXIV.

" It was not good for man to be alone :

" An equal, yet the fubject, is defign'd

" For thy foft hours, and to unbend the mind."

DRYDEN.

"Woman, man's chiefest good, by heaven defign'd

" To glad the heart, and humanize the mind;

" To footh each angry care, abate each ftrife,

" And lull the paffions as we walk through life." Art of Living in London.

DEAR FRIEND,

244

AFTER a long digreffion, I must now return to my own affairs.

I continued in the above-mentioned dreadful fever many weeks, and my life was defpaired of by all that came near me. During which time, my wife, whom I affectionately loved, died and was buried, without my once having a fight of her. What added much to my misfortunes, feveral nurfes that were hired to take care of me and my wife, proved proved fo abandoned and depraved as to have loft all fenfe of moral obligation, and every tender feeling for one who to all appearance was just on the point of death : feveral of these monsters in female shape robbed my drawers of linen, &c. and kept themfelves drunk with gin, while I lay unable to move in my bed, and was ready to perifh, partly owing to want of cleanlinefs and proper care. Thus fituated, I must inevitably have fallen a victim, had it not been for my fifter Dorothy, wife of Mr. Northam of Lambeth, and my fifter Elizabeth, wife of Mr. Bell in Soho. These kind fifters, as foon as they were informed of the deplorable state in which I lay, notwithstanding fome mifunderftanding which fubfifted between us, and prevented me from fending for them, haftened to me, and each fat up with me alternately, fo that I had one or the other with me every night; and, contrary to all expectation, I recovered. But this recovery was in a very flow manner.

03

As

245

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 inia on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.har http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Generated at University of Pennsylvania on Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://

Digitized by Google

As foon as I was able to enquire into the ftate of my affairs, I found that Mr. Wheeler, fack and rope-maker in Old-ftreet, and Meffrs. Bottomley and Shaw, carpenters and fafh-makers in Bunhill-row, had faved me from ruin, by locking up my fhop, which contained my little all. Had not this been done, the nurfes would no doubt have contrived means to have emptied my fhop, as effectually as they had done my drawers.

The above gentlemen not only took care of my fhop, but alfo advanced money to pay fuch expences as occurred; and as my wife was dead, they affifted in making my will in favour of my mother.

Thefe worthy gentlemen belong to Mr. Wefley's fociety (and notwithftanding they have imbibed many enthuliaftic whims) yet would they be an honour to any fociety, and are a credit to human nature. I hope that I never shall recollect their kindness without being filled with the warmest fentiments of gratitude towards them.

- 44. He

247

- " He that hath Nature in him must be grateful :
- "Tis the Creator's primary great Law,
- " That links the chain of being to each other,
- " Joining the greater to the leffer nature,
- " Tying the weak and firong, the poor and powerful,
- " Subduing men to brutes, and even brutes to men."

On my recovery I alfo learnt that Mils Dorcas Turton (the young woman that kept the house, and of whom I then rented the shop, parlour, kitchen and garret) having out of kindnefs to my wife, occafionally affifted her during her illnefs, had caught the fame dreadful diforder, fhe was then very dangeroufly ill, and people fhunned the houfe as much as if the plague had been in it. So that when I opened my thop again, I was stared at as though I had actually returned from the other world; and it was a confiderable time before many of my former cultomers could credit that I really was in exiftence, it having been repeatedly reported that I was dead.

Mifs Dorcas Turton, was a charming young woman, and you muft now be made O 4 farther farther acquainted with her. She is the daughter of Mr. Samuel Turton of Staffordfhire; her mother by marriage, ftill retained her maiden name, which was Mifs Jemima Turton, of Oxfordfhire. Mr. Samuel Turton had a large fortune of his own, and about twenty thoufand pounds with his wife Mifs Jemima, but by an unhappy turn for gaming he diffipated nearly the whole of it, and was obliged to have recourfe to trade to help fupport his family.

" 'Tis loft at dice, what ancient honour won,

" Hard, when the father plays away the fon!

He opened a fhop as a faddler's ironmonger, but as he was but little acquainted with trade, and as his old propenfity to gaming never quitted him, it is no wonder that he did not fucceed in his bufinefs; and to crown all his other follies, he was bound for a falfe friend in a large fum; this completed his ruin.

His wife died in Jan. 1773, and his final ruin enfued a few months after; fo that from that that time to his death he was partly fupported by his daughter Mifs Dorcas Turton, who cheerfully fubmitted to keep a fchool. and worked very hard at plain work, by which means the kept her father from want. The old gentleman died a few months after I came into the fhop. Being partly acquainted with this young lady's goodnefs to her father, I concluded that fo amiable a daughter was very likely to make a good wife; I also knew that she was immoderately fond of books, and would frequently read until morning; this turn of mind in her was the greatest of all recommendations to me, who having acquired a few ideas, was at that time reftlefs to increase them: fo that I was in raptures with the bare thoughts of having a woman to read with, and alfo to read to me,

- " Of all the pleafures, noble and refin'd,
- " Which form the taffe and cultivate the mind,
- " In every realm where fcience darts its beams,
- " From Thale's ice to Afric's golden flreams,
- 14 From climes where Phæbus pours his orient ray,
- 11 To the fair regions of declining day,

ff The 249

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.har main, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Generated at Un Public Domain,

250

" 'The " Feaft of Reafon" which from READING fprings

" To reas'ning man the highest folace brings,

" "Tis Books a lafting pleafure can fupply,

" Charm while we live, and teach us how to die." LACKINGTON'S Shop Bill.

I embraced the first opportunity after her recovery to make her acquainted with my mind, and as we were no strangers to each others characters and circumstances, there was no need of a long formal courtship; fo I prevailed on her not to defer our union longer than the 30th of January, 1776, when for the second time I entered into the holy state of matrimony.

- --- " Wedded Love is founded on efteem,
- " Which the fair merits of the mind engage :
- " For those are charms that never can decay,
- " But Time, which gives new whitenels to the fwan,

" Improves their luftre."

FENTON.

I am,

Dear Friend,

Yours.

LETTER

Digitized by Google

LETTER XXV.

" Reafon re-baptiz'd me when adult :

" Weigh'd true from falfe, in her impartial fcale.

" Truth, radiant goddefs! fallies on my foul!

" And puts delufion's dufky train to flight."

Young.

" All the myflic lights were quench'd."

LEE.

DEAR FRIEND,

Am now in February 1776, arrived at an important period of my life. Being lately recovered from a very painful, dangerous, and hopelefs illnefs, I found myfelf once more in a confirmed flate of health, furrounded by my little flock in trade, which was but juft faved from thieves, and which to me was an immenfe treafure. Add to the above, my having won a fecond time in a game where the odds were fo much againft me; or to ufe another fimile, my having drawn another prize in the lottery of wedlock, and thus like John Buncle repaired the lofs lofs of one very valuable woman by the acquifition of another ftill more valuable.

- " O woman ! let the libertine decry,
- " Rail at the virtuous love he never felt,
- " Nor wish'd to feel. Among the fex there are
- " Numbers as greatly good as they are fair;
- " Where rival virtues ftrive which brightens moft,
- " Beauty the fmalleft excellence they boaft;
- " Where all unite fubstantial blifs to prove,
- " And give mankind in them a tafte of joys above."

HARWARD,

Reflecting on the above united circumftances, I found in my heart an unufual fenfation, fuch as until then I had been a ftranger to: my mind began to expand, intellectual light and pleafure broke in and difpelled the gloom of fanatical melancholy; the fournefs of my natural temper which had been much increafed by fuperfition, (called by Swift, " the fpleen of the foul,") in part gave way, and was fucceeded by cheerfulnefs, and fome degree of good-nature.

It was in one of these cheerful moods that I one day took up the Life of John Buncle; and it is impossible for my friend to imagine with

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google 19:57 GMT Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 Generated at University of Penn Public Domain, Google-digitized

with what eagerness and pleasure I read through the whole four volumes of this whimfical, fenfible, pleafing work ; it was written by Thomas Amory, Efq. (who was living in the year 1788, at the great age of 97) and I know not of any work more proper to be put into the hands of a poor ignorant bigotted fuperstitious methodist; but the misfortune is, that fcarce one of them will read and thing but what fuits with their own narrow notions, fo that they fhut themfelves up in darknefs, and exclude every ray of intellectual light; which puts me in mind of the enthufiasts on the banks of the Ganges, who will not look at any thing beyond the tip of their nofes. By the time I had gone through the last volume,

" My foul had took its freedom up."

GREEN.

253

I also received great benefit from reading Coventry's Philemon to Hydaspes; it confists of dialogues on false religion, extravagant devotion, &c. in which are many very curious remarks on visionaries of various ages and

lofs of one very valuable woman by the acquifition of another ftill more valuable.

" O woman ! let the libertine decry,

252

- " Rail at the virtuous love he never felt,
- " Nor with'd to feel. Among the fex there are
- " Numbers as greatly good as they are fair;
- " Where rival virtues ftrive which brightens moft,
- " Beauty the fmalleft excellence they boaft ;
- " Where all unite fubstantial blifs to prove,
- " And give mankind in them a tafte of joys above."

HARWARD,

Reflecting on the above united circumftances, I found in my heart an unufual fenfation, fuch as until then I had been a ftranger to: my mind began to expand, intellectual light and pleafure broke in and difpelled the gloom of fanatical melancholy; the fournefs of my natural temper which had been much increafed by fuperfition, (called by Swift, "the fpleen of the foul,") in part gave way, and was fucceeded by cheerfulnefs, and fome degree of good-nature.

It was in one of these cheerful moods that I one day took up the Life of John Buncle; and it is impossible for my friend to imagine with

with what eagerness and pleasure I read through the whole four volumes of this whimfical, fenfible, pleafing work ; it was written by Thomas Amory, Efq. (who was living in the year 1788, at the great age of 97) and I know not of any work more proper to be put into the hands of a poor ignorant bigotted fuperstitious methodist; but the misfortune is, that fcarce one of them will read and thing but what fuits with their own narrow notions, fo that they fhut themfelves up in darknefs, and exclude every ray of intellectual light; which puts me in mind of the enthufiafts on the banks of the Ganges, who will not look at any thing beyond the tip of their nofes. By the time I had gone through the last volume.

" My foul had took its freedom up."

GREEN.

253

I alfo received great benefit from reading Coventry's Philemon to Hydafpes; it confifts of dialogues on falfe religion, extravagant devotion, &c. in which are many very curious remarks on visionaries of various ages and

254

and fects. The works is complete in five parts octavo. There has also been a decent Scotch edition, published in twelves, both editions are now rather scarce.

I now began to enjoy many innocent pleafures and recreations in life, without the fear of being eternally damn'd for a laugh, a joke, or for fpending a fociable evening with a few friends, going to the play-houfe, &c. &c.

In fhort I faw that true religion was no way incompatible with, or an enemy to rational pleafures of any kind. As life (fays one) is the gift of heaven, it is religion to enjoy it.

" Fools by excefs make varied pleafure pall,

" The wife man's moderate, and enjoys them all." VOLTAIRE by Franklin.

I now alfo began to read with great pleafure the rational and moderate divines of all denominations: and a year or two after I began with metaphyfics, in the intricate though pleafing labyrinths of which I have occafionally

LIFE OF J. LACKINGTON. 255 ally fince wandered, nor am I ever likely to find my way out.

- " Like a guide in a mift have I rambled about,
- " And now come at laft where at first I fet out ;
- " And unlefs for new lights we have reafon to hope,
- " In darkness it must be my fortune to grope."

I am not in the leaft uneafy on that head, as I have no doubt of being in my last moments able to adopt the language of one of the greatest men that ever existed :

- " Great God, whofe being by thy works is known,
- " Hear my laft words from thy eternal throne :
- " If I miftook, 'twas while thy law I fought,
- " I may have err'd, but thou wert in each thought,
- " Fearlefs I look beyond the opening grave,
- " And cannot think the God who being gave,
- " The God whofe favours made my blifs o'erflow,
- " Has doom'd me, after death, to endlefs woe."

In the mean time I can fincerely adopt the following lines of Mr. Pope.

> " If I am right, thy grace impart, " Still in the right to flay ;

- " If I am wrong! O teach my heart,
  - " To find the better way."

Having

Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

Having begun to think rationally, and reafon freely on religious matters, you may be fure I did not long remain in Mr. Wefley's fociety. What is remarkable, I well remember that fome years before, Mr. Wefley told his fociety in Broadmead, Briftol, in my hearing, that he could never keep a bookfeller fix months in his flock, (all fanatics are enemies to reason.) He was then pointing out the danger that attended close reafoning in matters of religion and fpiritual concerns, in reading controverfies, &c. at that time I had not the leaft idea of my ever becoming a bookfeller: but I no fooner began to give fcope to my reafoning faculties than the above remarkable affertion occurred to my mind.

But that which rather haftened my departure from methodifm was this. The methodift preachers were continually reprobating the practice of mafters and miftreffes keeping fervants at home on Sundays, to drefs dinners, which prevented them from hearing the word of God (by the word of God

257

God they mean their own jargon of nonfense); affuring them if the fouls of fuch fervants were damned, they might in a great measure lay their damnation at the doors of fuch mafters and miftreffes, who rather than eat a cold dinner, would be guilty of breaking the fabbath, and rifking the fouls of their fervants. But how great was my furprize on difcovering that thefe very men who were continually preaching up fasting, abstinence, &c. to their congregations, and who wanted others to dine off cold dinners, or eat bread and cheefe, &c. would themfelves not even sup, without roafted fowls, &c.

This I found to be fact, as I feveral times had occafion after attending the preaching to go into the kitchen behind the old Foundery. (which at that time was Mr. Wefley's preaching house;) there I faw women who had been kept from hearing the fermon, &c. they being employed in roafling fowls, and otherwife providing good fuppers for the preachers. its i then to got Lett p ets

教

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.ha/ Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

Digitized by Google

1 bill in

So

258

"So," faid I, "you lay burthens on other men's fhoulders, but will not fo much as touch them yourfelves with one of your fingers."

A ridiculous inftance of the fame nature happened alfo fome years fince at Taunton. One of Mr. Wefley's preachers, whofe name was Cotterrell, affured his congregation from time to time, that every baker that baked meat on Sundays would be damned, and every perfon that partook of fuch meat would alfo be damned ; on which a poor baker fhut up his oven on Sundays; the confequence was, that he loft his cuftomers, as fuch bakers as baked their victuals on Sunday, had their cuftom on other days, fo that the poor baker's family was nearly reduced to the workhouse; when one Sunday paffing before the door where he knew the preacher was to dine, he was very much furprifed to fee a baked leg of pork carried into the house, and after a few minutes reflections he rufhed in and found the pious preacher eating part of the baked leg of pork, on which

259

which he bid farewel to the methodifts, and again took care for his family.

It perhaps is worth remarking, that many poor hair-dreffers in Mr. Wefley's fociety are reduced to extreme poverty, they cannot get employment, as they will not drefs hair on Sundays; and I find that a poor milk woman, who until the beginning of this year 1792, maintained her family in a decent manner, was lately frightened out of her underftanding by a methodift preacher; her crime was, the felling milk on Sundays. The poor wretch is now confined in Bedlam, and her five children are in a workhoufe.

I at this time know a bookfeller, who being a methodift, is fo confcientious as to have his hair dreffed on the evening of every Saturday, and to prevent its being difcompofed in the night, he on those nights always fleeps in his elbow chair. Indeed fome tell the ftory different, and fay, that his hair is dreffed on Saturday morning, and by fleeping in his chair he faves the expence of P 2 dreffing dreffing on Sundays; others fay, that the first is the fact, and that he hinted at it in his shop-bills, in order that the public may know where to find a tradessiman that had a very tender conficience.

260

I was one day called afide and a hand-bill was given me; and thinking it to be a quack doctor's bill for a certain difease, I expressed my furprife at its being given to me in fuch a particular manner; but on reading it I found it contained a particular account of the wonderful conversion of a John Biggs, when he was twenty-one years of age. Mr. Biggs fays, that ever fince that time he has had communion with God his Father every bour. He publishes this bill (he fays) for the glory of God ; but that the public might have an opportunity of dealing with this wonderful faint and perfectly holy man, he put his addrefs in capitals, John Biggs, No. 98, Strand. I keep this bill as a curiofity.

I am, dear Friend, yours.

multi of the line the state

LETTER

nia on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Generated at University of Pennsylvania on Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://

Digitized by Google

LETTER XXVI.

" Good morrow to thee : How doft do ?

** I only just call'd in, to shew

" My love, upon this bleffed day,

" As I by chance came by this way.

BUTLER's Potth. Works.

261

4 Let not your weak unknowing hand

" Prefume God's bolts to throw,

** And deal damnation round the land,

" On each you judge his foe,"

DEAR FRIEND,

I Had no fooner left Mr. Wefley's fociety, and begun to talk a little more like a rational being, but I found that I had incurred the hatred of fome, the pity of others, the envy of many, and the difpleafure of all Mr. Wefley's—old women ! So that for a long time I was conftantly teafed with their impertinent nonfenfe. I believe that never was a poor devil fo plagued.

" Superflition is dreadful in her wrath, Her dire Anathema's against you dart."

HENRIADE.

P 3

Some

262

Some as they paffed by my door in their way to the Foundery would only make a ftop and lift up their hands, turn up the whites of their eyes, fhake their heads, groan, and pafs on. Many would call in and take me afide, and after making rueful faces, addrefs me with, " Oh, Brother Lackington ! I am very forry to find that you who began in the Spirit are now like to end in the flefh. Pray brother, do remember Lot's wife." Another would interrupt me in my bufinefs, to tell me, that " he that putteth his hand to the plough, and looketh back, is unfit for the kingdom." Another had just called as he was passing by, to caution me against the bewitching fnares of profperity. Others again called to know if I was as happy then as I was when I confantly fought the Lord with my brethren, in prayer meeting, in clafs, in band, &c. When I affured them that I was more happy, they in a very folemn manner affured me, that I was under a very great delution of the devil; and when I by chance happened to, laugh

/ https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/ac

263

laugh at their enthusiaflic rant, fome have run out of my fhop, declaring that they were afraid to ftay under the fame roof with me, left the house fhould fail on their heads. Sometimes I have been accossed in fuch an alarming manner as though the house was on fire, with "Oh! brother! brother! you are fast asleep! and the flames of hell are taking hold of you!"

A certain preacher affured me, in the prefence of feveral gentlemen, that the devil would foon tofs me about in the flames of hell with a pitchfork. This fame eloquent mild preacher ufed occafionally to ftrip to his fhirt to dodge the devil.

Mr. E. a gentleman of my acquaintance, going through fome alley, one Sunday, hearing a very uncommon noife, was led by curiofity to the houfe from whence it proceeded, and there he faw elevated above an affembly of old women, &c. this taylor, flript in his fhirt, with his wig off, and the collar of his fhirt unbuttoned, fweating, foaming

P 4

at 264

at the mouth, and bellowing like a baited bull. In the above manner it feems he would often amufe himfelf and his congregation for near two hours,

> " Curfing from his fweating tub, " The cavaliers of Belzebub."

BUTLER's Polth. Works.

Some of the Tabernacle faints affured me, that I never had one grain of faving grace, and that when I thought myfelf a child of God, I was only deluded by the devil, who being now quite fure of me, did not think it worth his while to deceive me any longer. Others advised me to take care of finning against light and knowledge, and pioufly hoped that it was not quite too late ; that I had not (they hoped) committed the unpardonable fin against the Holy Ghost. Others again, who happened to be in a better humour, often told me that they should fee me brought back to the true fheepfold, as they really hoped I had once been in a flate of grace, and if fo, that I always was in grace, in

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/ac

265

in fpite of all I could do: the Lord would never quit his hold of me; that I might fall foully, but that it was impossible for me to fall finally, as in the end I should be brought back on the shoulders of the everlasting gofpel, for when God came to number his jewels, not one would be missing.

One of these righteous men, after passing fome encomiums on me for my moral character, affured me that I had by no means fallen fo low as many of God's dear children had fallen, but fall as low as they poffibly can, faid he, they are ftill God's children, for altho' they may " be black with fin they are fair within." He then read to me the following paffage out of a pamphlet written against Mr. Fletcher by Mr. R. Hill. " David " ftood ascompletely justified in the everlasting ff righteoufnels of Chrift, at the time when f he caufed Uriah to be murdered, and was " committing adultery with his wife, as he " was in any part of his life. For all the fins If of the elect, be they more or be they lefs, " be

" be they paft, prefent, or to come, were " for ever done away. So that every one " of those elest fland spotless in the sight of " God." Is not this a very comfortable kind of doctrine? The pernicious confequences of such tenets impressed on the minds of the ignorant followers of these quacks in religion, must be obvious to every person capable of reflection, They have nothing to do but to enlist themselves in the band of the elect, and no matter then how criminal their life!

Thus, my dear friend, I was for a long time coaxed by fome, threatened with all the tortures of the damned by others, and conftantly teafed fome how or other by all the methodifts who came near me.

" Surrounded by foes, as I fat in my chair,

" Who attacked like dogs that are baiting a bear."

I at last determined to laugh at all their ridiculous perversions of the scripture, and their spiritual cant. The consequence (as might

Digitized by Google

the met anyther barry might be expected) was, they pioufly and charitably configned me over to be tormented by the devil, and every where declared that I was turned a downright atheift. But the afperfions of fuch fanatics gave me no concern, for

" _____ If there's a power above us,

" (And that there is, all nature cries aloud

" Through all her works) he must delight in Virtue;

Toll who they fort

" And that which he delights in muft be happy."

and hadneds now is o'er.

ADDISON'S Cato,

10X 33

267

And no matter "when or where." After relating fuch ridiculous ftuff as the above, I think that I cannot conclude this better than with Swift's humorous and fatirical account of the day of judgment; fo humorous that I would not have quoted it had it not been written by a divine of the Church of England,

- " With a whirl of thought opprefs'd,
- " I funk from reverie to reft,
- " An horrid vision feiz'd my head,
- " I faw the graves give up their dead ;

" Jove

Digitized by Google

LETTER

" Jove arm'd with terrors burfts the fkies,

268

" And thunder roars, and light'ning flies !

" Amaz'd, confus'd, its fate unknown,

" The world flands trembling at his throne!

" While each pale finner hung his head,

" Jove nodding, fhook the heavens and faid,

ff Offending race of human kind,

" By nature, reafon, learning blind;

" You who thro' frailty ftept afide,

" And you who never fell thro' pride,

" You who in different fects were fham'd,

" And come to fee each other damn'd !

" (So fome folks told you, but they knew,

" No more of Jove's defigns than you)

" The world's mad bufinefs now is o'er,

" And I refent those pranks no more,

" - I to fuch blockheads fet my wit!

" I damn fuch fools! go, go, you're bit,"

I am,

Dear Friend,

LETTER

Yours.

nia on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Pennsylvania on Generated at University of Penns Public Domain, Google-digitized

deficition is any not be gain

Server that many articl. By. -3

LETTER XXVII.

- " In London streets is often feen
- " A hum-drum faint with holy mein,
- " His looks most primitively wear
- " An antient Abrahamick air,
- " And like bad copies of a face,
- " The good original difgrace."

BUTLER's Pofth. Works.

269

DEAR FRIEND,

IT being generally known that I had for many years been a ftrict methodift, fince I have freed myfelf from their fhackles, I have been often afked if I did not believe or rather know, that the methodifts were a vile fect of hypocrites altogether? My reply has been uniformly in the negative. I am certain that they are not in general fo. The major part of them indeed are very ignorant (as is the cafe with enthufiafts of every religion); but I believe that a great number of the methodifts are fincere, honeft, friendly people; in juftice to thofe of that

" be they paft, prefent, or to come, were for ever done away. So that every one of those elest fland spotless in the sight of God." Is not this a very comfortable kind of doctrine? The pernicious confequences of such tenets impressed on the minds of the ignorant followers of these quacks in religion, must be obvious to every person capable of reflection. They have nothing to do but to enlist themselves in the band of the elect, and no matter then how criminal their life!

Thus, my dear friend, I was for a long time coaxed by fome, threatened with all the tortures of the damned by others, and conftantly teafed fome how or other by all the methodifts who came near me,

" Surrounded by foes, as I fat in my chair, " Who attacked like dogs that are baiting a bear."

I at last determined to laugh at all their ridiculous perversions of the scripture, and their spiritual cant. The consequence (as might

they want weather land

might be expected) was, they pioufly and charitably configned me over to be tormented by the devil, and every where declared that I was turned a downright atheift. But the afperfions of fuch fanatics gave me no concern, for

" _____ If there's a power above us,

" (And that there is, all nature cries aloud

" Through all her works) he must delight in Virtue;

1. And that which he delights in muft be happy."

's and bufineth new is o'er.

ADDISON'S Cato.

267

And no matter "when or where." After relating fuch ridiculous ftuff as the above, I think that I cannot conclude this better than with Swift's humorous and fatirical account of the day of judgment; fo humorous that I would not have quoted it had it not been written by a divine of the Church of England,

- " With a whirl of thought opprefs'd,
- " I funk from reverie to reft,
- " An horrid vision feiz'd my head,
- " I faw the graves give up their dead ;

" Jove

Digitized by Google

LETTER

268

Jove arm'd with terrors burfts the fkies,
And thunder roars, and light'ning flies!
Amaz'd, confus'd, its fate unknown,
The world flands trembling at his throne!.
While each pale finner hung his head,
Jove nodding, fhook the heavens and faid,
Offending race of human kind,
By nature, reafon, learning blind;
You who thro' frailty flept afide,
And you who never fell thro' pride,

" You who in different fects were fham'd,

" And come to fee each other damn'd !

" (So fome folks told you, but they knew,

" No more of Jove's defigns than you)

" The world's mad bufinefs now is o'er,

" And I refent those pranks no more,

" - I to fuch blockheads fet my wit!

" I damn fuch fools! go, go, you're bit,"

I am, manufactory

Dear Friend,

that this second it does

Yours,

LETTER

Digitized by Google

eline defendion is why he to the fire, bint meny artial, 04. . dan

LETTER XXVII.

- " In London streets is often feen
- " A hum-drum faint with holy mein,
- " His looks most primitively wear
- " An antient Abrahamick air,
- " And like bad copies of a face,
- " The good original difgrace."

BUTLER's Pofth. Works.

260

DEAR FRIEND,

IT being generally known that I had for many years been a ftrict methodift, fince I have freed myfelf from their fhackles, I have been often afked if I did not believe or rather know, that the methodifts were a vile fect of hypocrites altogether ? My reply has been uniformly in the negative. I am certain that they are not in general fo. The major part of them indeed are very ignorant (as is the cafe with enthufiafts of every religion); but I believe that a great number of the methodifts are fincere, honeft, friendly people; in juffice to thofe of that

" be they paft, prefent, or to come, were for ever done away. So that every one of those elest ftand spotless in the sight of God." Is not this a very comfortable kind of doctrine? The pernicious confequences of such tenets impressed on the minds of the ignorant followers of these quacks in religion, must be obvious to every person capable of reflection. They have nothing to do but to enlist themselves in the band of the elect, and no matter then how criminal their life!

Thus, my dear friend, I was for a long time coaxed by fome, threatened with all the tortures of the damned by others, and conftantly teafed fome how or other by all the methodifts who came near me.

" Surrounded by foes, as I fat in my chair,

" Who attacked like dogs that are baiting a bear."

I at last determined to laugh at all their ridiculous perversions of the scripture, and their spiritual cant. The consequence (as might

they met maller than

might be expected) was, they pioufly and charitably configned me over to be tormented by the devil, and every where declared that I was turned a downright atheift. But the afperfions of fuch fanatics gave me no concern, for

" _____ If there's a power above us,

" (And that there is, all nature cries aloud

" Through all her works) he must delight in Virtue;

f. And that which he delights in muft be happy."

d'e mad builneft new is o'er,

ADDISON'S Cato.

267

And no matter "when or where." After relating fuch ridiculous ftuff as the above, I think that I cannot conclude this better than with Swift's humorous and fatirical account of the day of judgment; fo humorous that I would not have quoted it had it not been written by a divine of the Church of England,

- " With a whirl of thought opprefs'd,
- " I funk from reverie to reft,
- # An horrid vision feiz'd my head,
- " I faw the graves give up their dead ;

" Jove

Digitized by Google

LUTTER

LIFE OF J. LACKINGTON. 268 " Jove arm'd with terrors burfts the fkies, " And thunder roars, and light'ning flies! " Amaz'd, confus'd, its fate unknown, " The world flands trembling at his throne! " While each pale finner hung his head, " Jove nodding, fhook the heavens and faid, " Offending race of human kind, " By nature, reafon, learning blind; " You who thro' frailty ftept afide, " And you who never fell thro' pride, " You who in different fects were fham'd, " And come to fee each other damn'd ! " (So fome folks told you, but they knew, " No more of Jove's defigns than you) " The world's mad bufinefs now is o'er, " And I refent those pranks no more, " - I to fuch blockheads fet my wit! " I damn fuch fools! go, go, you're bit,"

I am,

Dear Friend,

Yours.

21 - 29

LETTER

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 inia on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.har http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Pennsylvania Generated at University of Penns Public Domain, Google-digitized

Digitized by Google

cline of the wire in notice be and

terve, that many article fire. dette

LETTER XXVII.

- " In London streets is often feen
- " A hum-drum faint with holy mein,
- " His looks most primitively wear
- " An antient Abrahamick air,
- " And like bad copies of a face,
- " The good original difgrace."

BUTLER's Pofth. Works.

269

DEAR FRIEND,

IT being generally known that I had for many years been a ftrict methodift, fince I have freed myfelf from their fhackles, I have been often afked if I did not believe or rather know, that the methodifts were a vile fect of hypocrites altogether? My reply has been uniformly in the negative. I am certain that they are not in general fo. The major part of them indeed are very ignorant (as is the cafe with enthufiafts of every religion); but I believe that a great number of the methodifts are fincere, honeft, friendly people; in juffice to thofe of that

" be they paft, prefent, or to come, were " for ever done away. So that every one " of those elest ftand spotless in the sight of " God." Is not this a very comfortable kind of doctrine? The pernicious confequences of such tenets impressed on the minds of the ignorant followers of these quacks in religion, must be obvious to every person capable of reflection. They have nothing to do but to enlist themselves in the band of the elect, and no matter then how criminal their life!

Thus, my dear friend, I was for a long time coaxed by fome, threatened with all the tortures of the damned by others, and conftantly teafed fome how or other by all the methodifts who came near me,

and the sure land the

" Surrounded by foes, as I fat in my chair,

" Who attacked like dogs that are baiting a bear."

I at last determined to laugh at all their ridiculous perversions of the scripture, and their spiritual cant. The consequence (as might might be expected) was, they pioufly and charitably configned me over to be tormented by the devil, and every where declared that I was turned a downright atheift. But the afperfions of fuch fanatics gave me no concern, for

" _____ If there's a power above us,

" (And that there is, all nature cries aloud

" Through all her works) he must delight in Virtue;

" And that which he delights in muft be happy."

.vo'o ei woh afunitud bam e bin

ADDISON'S Cato,

267

And no matter "when or where." After relating fuch ridiculous ftuff as the above, I think that I cannot conclude this better than with Swift's humorous and fatirical account of the day of judgment; fo humorous that I would not have quoted it had it not been written by a divine of the Church of England,

- " With a whirl of thought opprefs'd,
- " I funk from reverie to reft,
- " An horrid vision feiz'd my head,
- " I faw the graves give up their dead ;

" Jove

/ https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.hav Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

LETTER

" be they paft, prefent, or to come, were " for ever done away. So that every one " of those elest fland spotless in the sight of " God." Is not this a very comfortable kind of doctrine? The pernicious confequences of such tenets impressed on the minds of the ignorant followers of these quacks in religion, must be obvious to every person capable of reflection. They have nothing to do but to enlist themselves in the band of the elect, and no matter then how criminal their life!

Thus, my dear friend, I was for a long time coaxed by fome, threatened with all the tortures of the damned by others, and conftantly teafed fome how or other by all the methodifts who came near me.

are look aller much see that have

" Surrounded by foes, as I fat in my chair,

" Who attacked like dogs that are baiting a bear."

I at last determined to laugh at all their ridiculous perversions of the scripture, and their spiritual cant. The consequence (as might might be expected) was, they pioufly and charitably configned me over to be tormented by the devil, and every where declared that I was turned a downright atheift. But the afperfions of fuch fanatics gave me no concern, for

" _____ If there's a power above us,

" (And that there is, all nature cries aloud

" Through all her works) he must delight in Virtue;

f. And that which he delights in muft be happy."

mind bufinefa now is o'er.

ADDISON'S Cato,

267

And no matter "when or where." After relating fuch ridiculous ftuff as the above, I think that I cannot conclude this better than with Swift's humorous and fatirical account of the day of judgment; fo humorous that I would not have quoted it had it not been written by a divine of the Church of England,

- " With a whirl of thought opprefs'd,
- . I funk from reverie to reft,
- " An horrid vision feiz'd my head,
- " I faw the graves give up their dead ;

" Jove

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.hav Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

LETTER

268

" Jove arm'd with terrors burfts the fkies, " And thunder roars, and light'ning flies! " Amaz'd, confus'd, its fate unknown, " The world flands trembling at his throne! " While each pale finner hung his head, " Jove nodding, fhook the heavens and faid, ff Offending race of human kind, " By nature, reafon, learning blind; " You who thro' frailty ftept afide, " And you who never fell thro' pride, " You who in different fects were fham'd, " And come to fee each other damn'd ! " (So fome folks told you, but they knew, " No more of Jove's defigns than you) " The world's mad bufinefs now is o'er, " And I refent those pranks no more, " - I to fuch blockheads fet my wit! " I damn fuch fools! go, go, you're bit,"

I am, strengther to y

Dear Friend,

that They exected it date.

Yours,

1-1417-25

Th WAR ASIM

LETTER

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 use#pd-google nia on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / h ttp://www.hathitrust.org/access Pennsylvania University of Penns n, Google-digitized Generated at Ur Public Domain,

Digitized by Google

that definition is much be going the ..... Intra yatar that aver

LETTER XXVII.

- " In London ftreets is often feen
- " A hum-drum faint with holy mein,
- " His looks most primitively wear
- " An antient Abrahamick air,
- " And like bad copies of a face,

" The good original difgrace."

BUTLER's Pofth. Works.

269

DEAR FRIEND,

IT being generally known that I had for many years been a ftrict methodift, fince I have freed myfelf from their fhackles, I have been often afked if I did not believe or rather know, that the methodifts were a vile fect of hypocrites altogether? My reply has been uniformly in the negative. I am certain that they are not in general fo. The major part of them indeed are very ignorant (as is the cafe with enthufiafts of every religion); but I believe that a great number of the methodifts are fincere, honeft, friendly people; in juffice to thofe of that that defcription it may not be amifs to obferve, that many artful, fly, defigning perfons, having noticed their character, connections, &c. and knowing that a religious perfon is in general fuppofed to be honeft and confcientious, have been induced to join their focieties, and by affuming an appearance of extraordinary fanctity, have the better been enabled to cheat and defraud fuch as were not guarded againft their hypocritical wiles.

270

> " Making religion a difguife, " Or cloak to all their villanies." BUTLER's Pofth. Works.

I have also reason to believe that there are not a few, who think that they can as it were afford to cheat and defraud, on the score of having right notions of religion in their heads, hearing what they deem orthodox teachers, going to prayer-meetings, &c.

There are again others who think, that grace is fo free and fo eafy to be had, or in other words, that as they can have pardon for

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.har Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

278

for all kinds of fins, and that at any time whenever they pleafe, they under this idea make very little confcience of running up large fcores, to which practice I fear fuch doctrines as I noticed in my laft, from the pen of Mr. Hill, have not a little contributed.

I have often thought that great hurt has been done to fociety by the methodift preachers, both in town and country, attending condemned malefactors, as by their fanatical converfation, vifionary hymns, bold and impious applications of the fcriptures, &c. many dreadful offenders againft law and juftice, have had their paffions and imaginations fo worked upon, that they have been fent to the other world in fuch raptures, as would better become martyrs innocently fuffering in a glorious caufe, than criminals of the firft magnitude.

A great number of narratives of these fudden conversions and triumphant exits have been compiled, many of them published, and circulated

272

circulated with the greatest avidity, to the private emolument of the editors, and doubtlefs to the great edification of all finners, long habituated to a courfe of villainous depredations on the lives and properties of the honeft part of the community; and many fuch accounts as have not appeared in print, have been affiduoufly proclaimed in all the methodift chapels and barns, throughout the three kingdoms; by which the good and pious of every denomination have been fcandalized, and notorious offenders encouraged to perfevere, trufting fooner or later, to be honoured with a fimilar degree of notice, and thus by a kind of hocus pocus, be fuddenly transformed into faints.

The following remarks made by the compilers of the Monthly Review for 1788, page 286, are fo applicable to the prefent fubject, that I hope my introducing the paffage will not be deemed improper. After mentioning a couplet in one of the methodiftical hymns, where it is faid ss Believe

inia on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Pennsylvania on Generated at University of Penns Public Domain, Google-digitized

" Believe and all your fin's forgiven." " Only believe and yours is heaven."

they proceed thus :

" Such doctrine no doubt muft be comfortable to poor wretches fo circumftanced as those were to whom this pious preacher had the goodnefs to addrefs his difcourfe; but fome (and those not men of shallow reflection) have questioned whether it is altogether right, thus to free the most flagitious outcasts of fociety from the terrors of an after-reckoning; fince it is too well known, that most of them make little account of their punifhment in this world. Instead of the "fearfull looking for of (future) judgment ;" they are enraptured with the profpect of a joyful flight " to the expanded arms of a loving Saviour-longing to embrace his long loft children." Surely this is not the way (humanly speaking) to check the alarming progrefs of moral depravity; to which, one would think no kind of encouragement ought to be given."

Q

I must

273

270

that defeription it may not be amifs to obferve, that many artful, fly, defigning perfons, having noticed their character, connections, &c. and knowing that a religious perfon is in general fuppofed to be honeft and confcientious, have been induced to join their focieties, and by affuming an appearance of extraordinary fanctity, have the better been enabled to cheat and defraud fuch as were not guarded againft their hypocritical wiles.

Making religion a difguife,
 Or cloak to all their villanies."
 BUTLER's Pofth. Works.

I have also reason to believe that there are not a few, who think that they can as it were afford to cheat and defraud, on the score of having right notions of religion in their heads, hearing what they deem orthodox teachers, going to prayer-meetings, &c.

There are again others who think, that grace is fo free and fo eafy to be had, or in other words, that as they can have pardon for

for all kinds of fins, and that at any time whenever they pleafe, they under this idea make very little conficience of running up large fcores, to which practice I fear fuch doctrines as I noticed in my laft, from the pen of Mr. Hill, have not a little contributed.

I have often thought that great hurt has been done to fociety by the methodift preachers, both in town and country, attending condemned malefactors, as by their fanatical converfation, vifionary hymns, bold and impious applications of the fcriptures, &c. many dreadful offenders againft law and juftice, have had their paffions and imaginations fo worked upon, that they have been fent to the other world in fuch raptures, as would better become martyrs innocently fuffering in a glorious caufe, than criminals of the firft magnitude.

A great number of narratives of these fudden conversions and triumphant exits have been compiled, many of them published, and circulated

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 ania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.har http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Pennsylvania at University of Penns main, Google-digitized Generated at Un Public Domain,

circulated with the greatest avidity, to the private emolument of the editors, and doubtlefs to the great edification of all finners, long habituated to a courfe of villainous depredations on the lives and properties of the honeft part of the community; and many fuch accounts as have not appeared in print, have been affiduoufly proclaimed in all the methodift chapels and barns, throughout the three kingdoms; by which the good and pious of every denomination have been fcandalized, and notorious offenders encouraged to perfevere, trufting fooner or later, to be honoured with a fimilar degree of notice, and thus by a kind of hocus pocus, be fuddenly transformed into faints.

The following remarks made by the compilers of the Monthly Review for 1788, page 286, are fo applicable to the prefent fubject, that I hope my introducing the paffage will not be deemed improper. After mentioning a couplet in one of the methodiftical hymns, where it is faid

" Believe

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 inia on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.har http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Pennsylvania University of Penns n, Google-digitized Generated at Un Public Domain,

" Believe and all your fin's forgiven." " Only believe and yours is heaven."

they proceed thus :

" Such doctrine no doubt muft be comfortable to poor wretches fo circumftanced as those were to whom this pious preacher had the goodnefs to addrefs his difcourfe; but fome (and those not men of shallow reflection) have queffioned whether it is altogether right, thus to free the most flagitious outcasts of fociety from the terrors of an after-reckoning; fince it is too well known, that most of them make little account of their punishment in this world. Instead of the "fearfull looking for of (future) judgment ;" they are enraptured with the profpect of a joyful flight " to the expanded arms of a loving Saviour-longing to embrace his long loft children." Surely this is not the way (humanly speaking) to check the alarming progrefs of moral depravity; to which, one would think no kind of encouragement ought to be given."

Q

I muft

273

274

I must observe farther, that the unguarded manner in which the methodist preachers make tenders of pardon and falvation, has induced many to join their fraternity, whofe confciences wanted very large plaifters indeed! many of those had need to be put under a courfe of mortification and penance, but they generally adopt another method; a few quack noftrums, which they call faith and affurance, drys up the wound, and they then make themfelves as hateful by affecting to have fqueamish confciences, as they really have been obnoxious, for having confciences of very wide latitude indeed. And notwithftanding the affected change, they often are as bad, or worfe than ever. As a friend, permit me to advise you never to purchase any thing at a fhop where the mafter of it crams any of his pious nonfenfe into his fhopbill, &cc. as you may be affured you will nine times out of ten find them, in the end, arrant hypocrites, and as fuch, make no fcruple of cheating in the way of trade, if poffible.

This

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 mia on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.har http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Pennsylvania University of Penns n, Google-digitized Generated at Ur Public Domain,

MON I

This puts me in mind of one of thefe pious brethren in Petticoat-lane who wrote in his fhop-window, " Rumps and Burs fold here, and Baked Sheep's heads will be continued every night, if the Lord permit." The Lord had no objection : fo Rumps, Burs, and Baked Sheep's heads were fold there a long time. And I remember to have feen on a board, near Bedminster-down, " Tripe and cow-heels fold here as ufual, except on the Lord's-day, which the Lord help me to keep." And on my enquiring about the perfon who exhibited this remarkable fhew-board, at the inn just by, I was informed that the pious Tripe-feller generally got drunk on Sundays, after he returned from the barn-preaching; which accounts for his not felling tripe on that day, having full employment (though poffibly not fo inoffenfive) elsewhere.

I also faw in a village near Plymouth in Devonshire, "Roger Tuttel, by God's grace and mercy, kills rats, moles, and all forts of vermin

Q 2

275

276

vermin and venomous creatures." But I need not have gone fo far, as, no doubt you muft remember that a few years fince, a certain pious common-council man of the metropolis, advertifed in the public papers for a porter that could carry three hundred weight and ferve the Lord. Of the fame worthy perfonage I have heard it afferted, that fo very confcientious is he, that he once flaved a barrel of beer in his cellar, becaufe he detected it working on the fabbath-day, which brought to my recollection four lines in drunken Barnaby's Journey :

- " To Banbury came I; O prophane one!
- " Where I faw a puritane one,
- " Hanging of his cat on Monday,
- " For killing of a moufe on Sunday.

Mr. L——e, a gentleman of my acquaintance informs me, that a methodift neighbour of his, in St. Martin's-lane, who keeps a parcel of fowls, every Saturday night, makes a point of confcience of tying together the legs of every cock he has, in order to prevent

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 inia on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.har http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Pennsylvania on University of Penns n, Google-digitized Generated at Ur Public Domain, prevent them from breaking the fabbath, by treading the hens on Sundays.

I have a few more obfervations to make on this remarkable fect, but fearing I have already tired you, shall referve them for my next.

" Seeming devotion doth but gild the knave,

" That's neither faithful, honeft, juft, or brave,

" But where religion does with virtue join,

" It makes a hero like an angel fhine,"

WALLER,

Yours.

277

I am,

Dear Friend,

Q3

SWISTON, LALO

Digitized by Google

2: 11

LETTER

LETTER XXVIII.

" Under this flone refts Hudibras,

" A Knight as errant as e'er was :

" The controverfy only lies,

" Whether he was more fool than wife;

" Full oft he fuffer'd bangs and drubs,

" And full as oft took pains in tubs :

" And for the good old Caufe flood buff,

" 'Gainft many a bitter kick and cuff,

" Of which the most that can be faid,

" He pray'd and preach'd, and preach'd and pray'd." BUTLER's Poith. Works.

DEAR FRIEND,

278

IT is very remarkable that while I was writing the laft five lines of my former letter to you, on Wednefday the 2d of March 1791, I received the news of the death of Mr. John Wefley, who I am informed, died that morning at his own houfe, in the City-road, Moorfields, in the Eightyeighth year of his age. He had no illnefs, but the wheels of the machine being worn out, it ftopt of courfe. As I am on the fubject ject of methodifm, I hope you will not deem it impertinent, if I devote a few lines to this great parent of a numerous fect, whom I well knew, and feel a pleafure in fpeaking of with fome refpect.

Several days preceding his interment, being laid in his coffin, in his gown and band, he was exposed to the view of all who came, and the public; and I suppose that forty or fifty thousand perfons had a sight of him. But the concourse of people was so great, that many were glad to get out of the crowd without seeing him at all; and although a number of constables were present, yet the pick-pockets contrived to ease many of their purses, watches, &c.

To prevent as much as poffible the dreadful effects of a mob, he was interred on Wednefday March the 9th, between five and fix o'clock in the morning, in the burial ground behind his own chapel in the Cityroad. After which Dr. Whitehead (the phyfician) preached his funeral fermon; but notwithstanding the early hour, many thoufands attended more than the chapel would hold, although it is very large.

Q4

279

As foon as it was known that Mr. Wefley was deceased, a number of needy brethren deemed it a fair opportunity of profiting by it, and each immediately fet his ingenuity to work to compose what he chose to call a life of him; and for fome weeks fince the funeral the chapel-yard and its vicinity has exhibited a truly ludicrous fcene, on every night of preaching, owing to the different writers and venders of thefe hafty performances exerting themfelves to fecure a good fale; one bawling out, that his is the right life, a fecond with a pious shake of the head, declares his the real life, a third protefts he has got the only genuine account; and a fourth calls them all vile cheats and impostors, &c. fo that between all thefe competitors, the faints are fo divided and perplexed in their opinions, that fome decline purchafing either; others willing " to try all, and keep that which is good,

/ https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.har Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

good," buy of each of these respectable venders of the life and last account of that celebrated character; while the uninterested passenger is spt to form a conclusion that the house of prayer is again become a den of thieves. Thus we see those holy candidates for heaven are so influenced by self-interest that it

" Turns meek and fecret fneaking ones

" To Raw-heads fierce and bloody bones."

HUDIBRAS.

I cannot help thinking that Mr. John Wefley, the father of the methodifts, was one of the moft refpectable enthufiafts that ever lived; as it is generally thought that he believed all that he taught others, and lived the fame pious exemplary life, that he would have his followers practife. The fale of his numerous writings produced nett profits to the amount of near TWO THOUSAND POUNDS per annum; and the weekly collection of the claffes in London and Weftminfter amounted to a very large fum; befides this, great fums were collected, at the facraments ments and love-feafts, for quarterly tickets, private and public fubicriptions, &c. &c. In a pamphlet which was published in the beginning of this year 1792, by an old member of their fociety, it is afferted that for the last ten years, the fums collected in Great Britain and Ireland, have amounted to no lefs than FOUR HUNDRED THOUSAND POUNDS per annum. Befides the above, many private collections are made in all his focieties throughout the three kingdoms, fo that Mr. Welley might have amaffed an immenfe fortune, had riches been his object. But inftead of accumulating wealth, he expended all his own private property : and I have been often informed, from good authority, that he never denied relief to a poor perfon that afked him. To needy tradefmen I have known him to give ten or twenty pounds at once. In going a few yards from his fludy to the pulpit, he generally gave away an handful of half-crowns to poor old people of his fociety. He was indeed charitable to an extreme, as he often gave to unworthy objects, https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 inia on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.har http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Pennsylvania on University of Penns n, Google-digitized Generated at Un Public Domain,

282

objects, nor would he keep money fufficient to hold out on his journies. One of his friends informs me that he left but £4. 10s. behind him : and I have heard him declare that he would not die worth twenty pounds, except his books for fale, which he has left to the "general methodist fund, for carrying on the work of God, by itinerant preachers," charged only with a rent of eighty-five pounds a year, which he has left to the wife and children of his brother Charles.

His learning and great abilities are well known. But I cannot help noticing that in one of his publications (ftepping out of his line) he betray'd extreme weaknefs and credulity, though no doubt his intentions were good. What I allude to is his "Primitive Phyfic, a work certainly of a dangerous tendency, as the majority of remedies therein prefcribed are most affuredly inefficacious, and many of them very dangerous, if administred. The confequence of the first is, that https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 (nia on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.har http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Pennsylvania University of Penns n, Google-digitized Generated at Un Public Domain, that while poor ignorant people are trying thefe remedies, (befides the very great probability of their miftaking the cafe) the difeafes perhaps become fo inveterate as to refift the power of more efficacious remedies properly applied, and with regard to those of a highly dangerous nature, how rafh to truft them in the hands of fuch uninformed people as this book was almost folely intended for, especially when fanctioned by the name of an author whole influence impreffed the minds of the unfortunate patients with the most powerful conviction. Many fatal effects, I fear, have been produced by a blind adherence to this compilation; which carries with it more the appearance of being the production of an ignorant opinionated old woman, than of the man of fcience and education. One melancholy inftance is fresh in my memory; a much efteemed friend having fallen an immediate facrifice to an imprudent application of one of these remedies.

284

A very

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.or

Digitized by Google

A very worthy physician to whom the community is highly indebted for his indefatigable and fuccefsful exertions in the caufe of humanity, published fome very " Remarks on the Primitive judicious Phylic," which however, for obvious reafons, were not fo generally noticed as the fubject deferved ; as almost all the admirers of Mr. Wefley's work confifted of his followers, (fufficiently numerous indeed to enfure a very extensive fale) these were too bigoted to condefcend to perufe any production tending to enlighten their underftandings; and the public at large, not having paid much attention to it, did not conceive themfelves fo materially interefted in the " Remarks," though I am firmly of opinion, if they are perufed with that candour with which they appear to be written, they will have a very beneficial tendency in guarding the public against the mischief too frequently arifing from the " Primitive Phyfic," and other quack publications, as abfurd as they are injurious.

Permit

285

Digitized by Google

Original from UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN

Permit me just to give you one speciment of the author's wonderful abilities, by quoting a receipt, which if not an infallible remedy, must at least be acknowledged to be a fingular one.

"To cure a windy Cholic." "Suck a healthy woman daily; this (fays Mr. Wefley) was tried by my father."

Should you, my dear friend, be defirous of perufing a variety of remedies, not equally judicious as well as efficacious with those of Mr. Wesley, you will meet with ample fatisfaction by turning to " Dom Pernety's Voyage to the Falkland Islands," page 153 to 162. quarto edition.

Some of the receipts there inferted are fo truly curious, I can fcarce refrain from treating you with a fpecimen or two, but being at the fame time not very delicate, I must decline inferting them, for like Simpkin,

AND STOLEN IN STR. VOID

" I pity the ladies fo modest and nice."

Should

Should you, however, deem it worth the trouble of turning to the volume, I am confident the fubject must excite a fmile at the amazing credulity of the writer, as well as his folly in exposing fuch wretched trash to the public eye, indeed I can hardly perfuade myfelf he could be ferious when he wrote them.

The two following receipts I must give you, one being no doubt an effectual remedy for a grievous complaint of that useful quadruped the horfe, the other at least equally certain for the cure of one of the most dangerous diforders human nature is fubject to.

" To Cure a Foundered Horfe." " Let him take one or two fpoonfuls of common falt in half a pint of water !"

" For a malignant Fever." "A live tench applied to the feet for twelve hours, then buried quietly, or thrown down the house of office, and the patient will foon recover." Bat keys, I think I

Mr. Welley for glepping

But

287

But as I well know you do not poffers the faith either of a methodift or a papift, to put implicit truft in whatever the teachers of either choose to write or fay, I fear left I have bestowed on you labour in vain, I therefore decline quoting any more of those extraordinary remedies.

It was a circumstance peculiarly happy for the practitioners of physic, though no doubt a terrible missfortune to the public, that the difference in religious principles of these two reverend gentlemen proved an effectual bar to the union of their medical abilities, which appear so exactly correspondent; had such an event taken place, that horrid monster difease might by this time have been banished from the earth, and the sons of Æsculapius would be doomed to feed on their own compositions or starve! The Rev. Dr. Fordyce, in a late publication, has also given the world a remedy for the cramp, as delicate as efficacious.

But here, I think I fee you fmile at my cenfuring Mr. Wefley for flepping out of his line, https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.hav Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

289

line, when at the very moment I am committing the fame error by obtruding my judgment upon the fcience of phyfic.—I fhall only reply, Many thought I did the fame when I commenced bookfeller; and a friend once taught me the adage, (be not offended, 'tis the only fcrap of Latin I fhall give you) " Ne Sutor ultra crepidam." But the event has proved it otherwife, and I flatter myfelf every candid and judicious perfon capable of judging will think with me on the above fubject.—But to refume my narrative.

What a pity that fuch a character as Mr. Wefley fhould have been a dupe and a rank enthufiaft! A believer in dreams, vifions, immediate revelations, miraculous cures, witchcraft, and many other ridiculous abfurdities, as appears from many paffages of his Journals, to the great difgrace of his abilities and learning; which puts me in mind of Sir Ifaac Newton's Exposition of the Revelations, Milton's Paradife Regained, Dr. Johnfon's unmanly Devotions, &c. &c. R and

285

200

1 STA GLANS Triantiana and (to compare fmall things with greater) J. L.'s turning author. However, we may fafely affirm that Mr. Wefley was a good fincere and honeft one, who denied himfelf many things; and really thought that he difregarded the praife and blame of the world, when he was more courted, respected, and followed than any man living, and he ruled over a hundred and twenty thousand people with an absolute fway, and the love of power feems to have been the main fpring of all his actions. I am inclined to believe that his death will be attended with confequences fomewhat fimilar to those which followed the death of Alexander the Great. His fpiritual generals will be putting in their pretenfions, and foon divide their master's conquests. His death happened at a time rather critical to the methodifts, as the Swedenborgians, or New Ferusalemists, are gaining ground very fast: Many of the methodifts, both preachers and hearers, are already gone over to their party, many more will now, undoubtedly, follow; and the death of that great female champion of https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google GMT 19:57 Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 Domain, Google-digitized of University Generated at

291

of methodifm, the Countefs of Huntingdon, which has fince happened, will in all probability occasion another confiderable defection from that branch of methodists, and an additional reinforcement to the Swedenborgians; a proof of the fondness of mankind for novelty, and the marvellous, even in religious matters. "I hele familians

I shall conclude my remarks on the metho-

I am,

and the

Dear Friend,

icanzaly motolad

R 2 LETTER trenoty Historyton many of the Digitized by Google Original from

Yours.

LETTER XXIX.

- " More haughty than the reft, the race,
- " Appear with belly gaunt, and famish'd face :
- " Never was fo deform'd a babe of grace."

DRYDEN.

Their fermons

- " Are olios made of conflagration,
- " Of gulphs, of brimftone, and damnation,
- ** Eternal torments, furnace, worm,
- " Hell-fire, a whirlwind, and a ftorm ;
- " With Mammon, Satan, and perdition,
- " And Belzebub to help the difh on;
- " Belial, and Lucifer, and all
- " The nicknames which Old Nick we call.

DEAR FRIEND,

ALTHOUGH Mr. Wefley

was poffeffed of a very great fhare both of natural and acquired abilities, yet I fuppofe it fcarcely neceffary to inform you, that this is by no means the cafe with his preachers in general; for although there are amongft them fome truly fenfible, intelligent men, yet the major part are very ignorant and extremely illiterate: many of thefe excellent fpiritual

293

fpiritual guides cannot even read a chapter in the bible, though containing the deep myfteries which they have the rafhnefs and prefumption to pretend to explain. Many others cannot write their own names. But fo great is the ignorance of Mr, Wefley's people in general, that they often neglect the more rational and fenfible of their preachers, and are better pleafed with fuch as are even deftitute of common fenfe; really believing that the incoherent nonfenfe which they from time to time pour forth, is dictated by the Holy Spirit; for which feveral reafons may be affigned,

It is always obfervable, that the more ignorant people are, the more confidence they poffefs. This confidence, or impudence, paffes with the vulgar, as a mark of their being in the right; and the more the ignorance of the preachers is difcovered, the more are they brought down to their own flandard. Again, the more ignorant preachers having very contracted ideas of real religion and manly virtue, of courfe fupply the want of it with a R 3 ridiculous ridiculous fuss about trifles, which paffes with the ignorant for a more fanctified deportment, and hence arifes much of the mifchief which has been fo justly charged on the methodifts. For by making the path to heaven fo very narrow, and befet with ten thousand bugbears, many defpairing to be ever able to walk in it, have thrown off all religion and morality, and funk into the abyfs of vice and wickednefs. Others have their tempers fo foured as to become loft to all the tender connexions of hufband, wife, father, child, &c. really believing that they are literally to hate father, mother, &c. for Chrift's fake. Many have in a fit of defpondency put a period to their existence, it having become a burthen too intolerable to be borne. Some have been fo infatuated with the idea of fafting to mortify the flesh, that their firict perfeverence in it has been productive of the most ferious confequences: Two inftances of which lately occurred in one family, in the City Road-The mistrefs was deprived of her fenfes, and the maid literally.

Digitized by Google

294

SHEEL OF L. LACE WAS FOR .....

literally fasted herfelf to death ; and Bedlam and private mad-houfes now contain many, very many melancholy inftances of the dreadful effects of religious despondency; not to . mention the hundreds that have died from time to time in fuch places, and the numerous fuicides which have been traced to the fame fource.

Mr. Bentley fays, in his letter to the members of the house of commons, dated May 12th, 1791, that although he had a fortune of one thousand pounds, and naturally liked good living, yet that he lived on horfe and als flefh, barley bread, flinking butter, &c. and when he found that his eating fuch things gave offence to his neighbours, he left off eating als flefh, and only lived on vegetables, as the common fort of food by their dearnefs hurt his confeience.

A few years fince I faw in a field not feven miles from China-hall, a man toffing up his bible in the air. This he often repeated, and raved at a strange rate. Amongst other Built diw R. 4 10 things,

295

things, (pointing to a building at fome diftance) "That (faid he) is the devil's houfe, and it fhall not ftand three days longer!" On the third day after this I faw with furprize an account in one of the public papers of that very building having been fet on fire, and burnt to the ground, and thus the poor itinerant difciples of Thefpis loft the whole of their wardrobe and fcenery.

This religious maniac foon after preached very often in Smithfield and Moorfields; but he did not wholly depend on the operations of the Holy Spirit, as at laft he feldom began to preach until he was nearly drunk, or filled with another kind of fpirit, and then he was " a very powerful preacher indeed." But the good man happening feveral times to exert himfelf rather too much, had nearly tumbled headlong out of his portable pulpit; thefe accidents the mob uncharitably afcribed to the liquor that he had drank, and with mud, stones, dead cats, &c. drove him off every time he came, until at last our preacher took his leave of them with faying " that he

297

he perceived it was in vain to attempt their conversion, as he faw that God had given them over to the hardness of their hearts."

But although this holy man deferted them, yet other spiritual knights-errant were not wanting, fo that a little time before the heaps of stones which lay for years in Moorfields were removed for the purpose of building on the fpot, I have feen five or fix in a day preaching their initiation fermons from those elevated fituations, until they could collect a fufficient fum of money to purchase pulpits. Some of thefe excellent preachers received the whole of their divine education and took up their degrees in Moorfields, and in due time, after having given ample and fatisfactory proofs of being properly qualified, have been admitted to professorfhips in the noble College fituated on the fouth fide of those fields, generally known by the name of Bedlem. You must know, Sir, that many of the lazy part of the community fet up stalls in Moorfields to buy and fell apples, old iron, &c. feveral of these having heard fuch fuch edifying difcourfes frequently repeated as they fat at their stalls, and observing the fuccefs which those kind of preachers met with, boldly refolved to make trial of their fpiritual gifts on the heaps of ftones, and have now totally abandoned their stalls, and are gone forth as embaffadors of heaven, though without being furnished with any diplomas as fuch. One of these who cannot read, lately informed me that he had quitted all temporal concerns for the good of poor ignorant finners. However after all, " there is (poffibly) a pleafure in being mad, which none but madmen know." The fubject of methodism is so fertile a one, that were I difpofed to enlarge thereon, my correspondence would be extended to a very confiderable length; but inftead of purfuing it, I think it better to apologize for having fo long digreffed from the main fubject of my narrative,

But before I take my leave of the fubject, I will in few words inform you how the preachers were governed and fupported. Mr.

/ https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google GMT Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.or

MOUDR GOAL IN 90 TRY

299

Mr. Wefley every year ordered the major part of his travelling preachers in great Britain and Ireland, which were upwards of two hundred in number, to meet together, one year at London, the next at Briftol, and the following at Manchester; this meeting he called a conference. At those conferences, the bufinefs of the whole fociety was transacted, new preachers admitted, and fome turned off, or filenced; complaints heard, differences adjusted, &c. Mr. Welley having divided Great Britain into circuits, at those conferences, he appointed the preachers to every circuit for the following year, and as he well knew the general want of abilities among his preachers, he limited their time of preaching in one circuit to a year, and fo in fome measure, made up the want of abilities by variety, most of those circuits had three or four preachers every year, and in many country places, they had but one fermon a week from the travelling preachers, fo that each preacher preached about twelve fermons in the year, (fometimes it may be twenty)

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.har Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

300

twenty) at each place. In every circuit one of the preachers was called the affiftant; to him the various contributions were paid, and of him might be had any of Mr. Wefley's publications. He alfo admitted new members, or turned out any who were judged unworthy of bearing the high appellation of amethodift.

Each itinerant preacher had a horfe found him, which, with himfelf, is maintained by fome brother or fifter wherever they go, as the preachers do not put up at any inn, and yet they have as regular ftages to call at as the coaches have, they having made converts at convenient diffances in most parts of Great Britain and Ireland,

Each travelling preacher was then allowed twelve pounds a year, to find himfelf cloaths, pay turnpikes, &c. befides what they could get privately out of the old women's pockets, But befides those circuit-preachers, there " are in the year 1790, in Europe and America, thirteen or fourteen hundred," of local holdersholdersforth, who do not preach out of their own neighbourhood, and those in general are the most ignorant of all.

Many of the circuit-preachers only travel until they can marry a rich widow, or fome ignorant young convert with money, which has often been the caufe of great unhappinefs, in many refpectable families. The following poetical defcription of the methodift preachers, is fo much to my purpofe, that I muft infert it:

- " Every mechanic will commence
- " Orator, without mood or tenfe;

" Pudding is pudding ftill they know,

" Whether it has a plum or no.

" So, tho' the preacher have no fkill,

" A fermon is a fermon still.

" The Bricklay'r throws his trowel by,

" And now builds manfions in the fky;

" The Cobler, touch'd with boly pride,

" Flings his old shoes and last afide,

" And now devoutly fets about

" Cobbling of fouls, that ne'er wear out;

- " The Baker now a preacher grown,
- " Finds man lives not by bread alone,
- " And now his cuftomers he feeds
- " With pray'rs, with fermons, groans, and creeds ;

s The

302

61 H 10 " The Tinman, mov'd by warmth within, " Hammers the gofpel just like tin; " Weavers infpir'd, their sbuttles leave, " Sermons and flimfy hymns to weave; " Barbers unreap'd will leave the chin, " 'To trim, and thave the man within ; " The Waterman forgets his wherry, " And opens a celefial ferry ; " The Breever, bit by frenzy's grub, " The massing for the preaching tub " Refigns, those waters to explore, " Which if you drink, you thirst no more ; " The Gard'ner, weary of his trade, " Tir'd of the mattock and the fpade, " Chang'd to Apollos in a trice, " Waters the plants of paradife; " The Fifbermen no longer fet " For fifb the methes of their net, " But catch, like Peter, men of fin, " For catching is to take them in." I now take a final leave of methodifm, with affuring you, that in giving a general idea of the tenets and practices of a numerous fect who have excited much public attention, I have invariably had in view to " fpeak of them as they are, nothing to extenuate, nor fet down aught in malice." Should you with to fee the errors of the methodifts parshort and more his all you had, so the acarder , will decrease pressed and are do a ticularly

ticularly exposed, you may read Bishop Lavington's "Enthusias of the methodists and baptists compared." It is effected a very good work, it will amuse as well as instruct you. In my next, I intended to have refumed the account of my own affairs; but an extraordinary publication, will tempt me to add, one letter more on the methodists.

1 am,

Dear Friend,

quained white Mr. Welley an

Rev. T. Coler, LL.B. and Mr. H.

To which is added, " An Amoral

by an ôld Member of the Society." "This of LETTER informs us, that he has been acmonthance to the People diffed

verts in connexion with

Yours.

303

LETTER XXX.

" Religion, faireft maid on earth,

IMENT. MORT

- " As meek as good, who drew her breath
- " From the bleft union when in heaven,
- " Pleafure was bride to virtue given ;
- " Religion ever pleas'd to pray,
- " Poffefs'd the precious gift one day;
- " Hypocrify of cunning born,
- " Crept in and ftole it ere the morn."

CHURCHILL.

DEAR FRIEND,

304

ALTHOUGH I was many years in connexion with Mr. Welley's people, it feems, according to a pamphlet publifhed a few months after the firft edition of my Memoirs, that I was but fuperficially acquainted with Mr. Wefley and his preachers. The pamphlet is entitled, "A Letter to the Rev. T. Coke, LL.D. and Mr. H. Moore." To which is added, "An Appeal and Remonftrance to the People called Methodifts, by an old Member of the Society." This old member informs us, that he has been acquainted quainted with the methodifts twenty-eight years, and if their preachers are but half as bad as he has drawn them, they are a deteftable fet of fly deceiving villains. The letter was occafioned by Dr. Coke and Mr. Moore's propofals for publishing Mr. Wefley's Life, in opposition to that advertised (under the fanction of the executors) to be written by Dr. Whitehead.

305

And we are informed that after Mr. Wefley's manufcripts and private papers had been given up to Dr. Whitehead, and the Doctor appointed to write his Life, and this Life announced to the public by the executors as the only authentic work, on a mifunderftanding taking place between Dr. Whitehead and the preachers, becaufe the Doctor would not fubmit his work to be infpected, altered, &c. and alfo becaufe the Doctor would not confent to give to the preachers at the conference, nearly the whole of the profits derived from his labours, they then fent a circular letter figned by nine of their head preachers, to all their focieties, and advife them to return the fubfcriptions that they had taken for Doctor Whitehead's Life of Mr. Wesley, and to procure all the subscriptions in their power for another Life of Mr. Wesley, to be written by Dr. Coke and Mr. Moore.

S

The following quotations I think will pleafe you, page 8, &c. "That Mr. Wefley was a great man is an undeniable truth; that is comparitively :-Great amongst little people."

"Nothing can exhibit his character as an ambitious man, more than the following anecdote, which I can give from the most authentic authority. When a boy he was in the Charter-House fchool; the Rev. A. Tooke, the author of the Pantheon, was then master, and observing that his pupil, who was remarkably forward in his studies, yet he constantly affociated with the inferior classes, and it was his custom to be furrounded by a number of the little boys, haranguing them. Mr. Tooke, once accidentally broke in upon him when in the middle of an oration, and interrupted him, by defiring him to follow him to the parlour. Mr. Wesley, offended by being thus abruptly deprived prived of an opportunity of difplaying his fuperior abilities, obeyed his mafter very reluctantly. When they had got into the 'parlour Mr. Tooke faid to him : " John, I wonder that you who are fo much above the lower forms fhould conftantly affociate with them, for you fhould now confider yourfelf as a man, and affect the company of the bigger boys, who are your equals." Our hero, who could hardly fliffle his refentment whilft his mafter fpoke, boldly replied :—" Better to rule in hell, than ferve in heaven."

307

"Mr. Tooke difmiffed his pupil with this remarkable obfervation to an affiftant mafter.— That boy though defigned for the church will never get a living in it: for his ambitious foul will never acknowledge a fuperior, or be confined to a parifh.

"That he was fuperior to the prejudices he inculcated to his followers, and with what contempt he fometimes treated the lay-preachers, the following will fhew.—Being at fupper one Sunday night, (a fhort time before his death) with feveral of the preachers, one of them obferved that whenever Mr. Wefley travelled, he was always invited to the houfes of the neighbouring nobility and gentry; but when the preachers travelled, no notice was taken of them, which he could not account for. Mr. Wefley replied, "It was S 2 the

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124

http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

GMT

on 2022-11-11 19:57

Generated at University of Pennsylvania Public Domain, Google-digitized / http

the way of the world to court the great, but I fay, love me love my dog!" enjoying his triumph with a hearty laugh at their expence."

After this old member's letter comes his Appeal and Remonftrance to the Methodifts, which, as coming from an old methodift, contains fome very extraordinary affertions and facts, and letters more extraordinary. I fhall give you fome extracts from it in page 28. "Faith is the ground-work of (methodift) evidence—it precludes the neceffity of every virtue—it is to be feared it has fent more of its votaries to Bedlam than to heaven—is to wife men a flumbling block, an unintelligible jargon of myftical nonfenfe, which common fenfe and common honefty reject."

Page 30, &c. "It has been computed that the contributions raifed among the members of the different focieties in Great-Britain and Ireland for thefe last ten years, has amounted to no less than FOUR HUNDRED THOUSAND POUNDS per annum. It has been further proved that about one eighth part of this fum is appropriated to the purposes

309

pofes for which it was raifed, and the remainder is difpofed of at the difcretion of the conference, the preachers, and the flewards. This calculation does not include the enormous fums known to be raifed privately by the influence of the preachers in their respective circuits, under the various pretensions of diffres, &c.

"However, I do not pretend to vouch for the accuracy of this calculation, yet I think it by no means exaggerated. What has come within my own knowledge I can affert with confidence, and I challenge any one to refute it.

"Of Kingfwood School, I can fpeak with certainty: for this foundation, many thoulands have been raifed which never were, and I believe never were intended to be applied to that charity. During eight years that I was at Kingfwood, it not only fupported itfelf, but produced a confiderable annual furplus.

"One of the mafters of King's School, being deficient in his accounts, he was judged an improper perfon to enjoy any place of truft, and was accordingly difmiffed, and appointed to a circuit as a travelling preacher—but any will do for that, who has but impudence and hypocrify no matter whether he possifies a grain of honesty. Now if this was the case with respect to Kingf-

S

3

Digitized by Google

wood,

the way of the world to court the great, but I fay, love me love my dog !" enjoying his triumph with a hearty laugh at their expense."

After this old member's letter comes his Appeal and Remonftrance to the Methodifts, which, as coming from an old methodift, contains fome very extraordinary affertions and facts, and letters more extraordinary. I fhall give you fome extracts from it in page 28. "Faith is the ground-work of (methodift) evidence—it precludes the neceffity of every virtue—it is to be feared it has fent more of its votaries to Bedlam than to heaven—is to wife men a flumbling block, an unintelligible jargon of myftical nonfenfe, which common fenfe and common honefty reject."

Page 30, &c. "It has been computed that the contributions raifed among the members of the different focieties in Great-Britain and Ireland for thefe laft ten years, has amounted to no lefs than FOUR HUNDRED THOUSAND POUNDS per annum. It has been further proved that about one eighth part of this fum is appropriated to the purpofes

309

pofes for which it was raifed, and the remainder is difpofed of at the difcretion of the conference, the preachers, and the ftewards. This calculation does not include the enormous fums known to be raifed privately by the influence of the preachers in their respective circuits, under the various pretensions of diffres, &c.

"However, I do not pretend to vouch for the accuracy of this calculation, yet I think it by no means exaggerated. What has come within my own knowledge I can affert with confidence, and I challenge any one to refute it.

"Of Kingfwood School, I can fpeak with certainty: for this foundation, many thoulands have been raifed which never were, and I believe never were intended to be applied to that charity. During eight years that I was at Kingfwood, it not only fupported itfelf, but produced a confiderable annual furplus.

"One of the mafters of King's School, being deficient in his accounts, he was judged an improper perfon to enjoy any place of truft, and was accordingly difmiffed, and appointed to a circuit as a travelling preacher—but any will do for that, who has but impudence and hypocrify no matter whether he poffeffes a grain of honefty. Now if this was the cafe with refpect to Kingf-

S 3

wood,

Digitized by Google

veller

wood, may we not conclude that the fame iniquitous principle pervaded the administration of the finances in all the different departments?

Page 33, &c. " O how long, ye fheep, will ye be the prey of wolves who fleece and devour you at pleafure ! and, ye fools, be the dupes of knavery and hypocrify?

" Open your eyes, and behold the villain and hypocrite unmafked, in inftances of the moft flagitious crimes, and deeds of the blackeft dye! perpetrated by wretches, whom you tamely fuffer to devour your fubftance, and whom you cheerfully contribute to fupport in idlenefs and luxury, which brings into contempt the gofpel, and whofe example has done more harm to religion, than that of the moft abandoned and profligate open finner: admitting at the fame time that there may be, and I hope there are, fome honeft and fincere men amongft them.

"To begin then with the late Rev. J. Wefley. As the founder and head, he muft be confidered as the primum mobile, or first mover of this mighty machine of hypocrify, froud, and villainy! Yet were his motives originally laudable in their intention, virtuous in their object, but unhappy in their confequences. This I will endeavour to make appear, by an impartial review of his life, character, and conduct. I flatter myfelf that I am in fome measure qualified, being totally divested vefted of prejudice, and having no intereft either in reprefenting him as a faint or a devil.

" From what I have observed during near twenty-eight years that I have known him, I have uniformly found him ambitious, imperious, and politive even to obstinacy. His learning and knowledge various and general, but fuperficial; his judgment too hafty and decifive to be always just-his penetration acute; yet was he conftantly the dupe to his credulity and his unaccountable and univerfal good opinion of mankind. Humane, generous, and juft. In his private opinions liberal to a degree inconfistent with strift Christianity ; in his public declarations rigid almost to intolerance. From this observation of the inconfiftency of his private opinions and public declarations, I have often been inclined to doubt his fincerity, even in the profession of the Chriftian faith. In his temper impetuous, and impatient of contradiction; but in his heart, a franger to malice or refentment; incapable of particular attachment to any individual; he knew no ties of blood or claims of kindred; never violently or durably affected by grief, forrow or any of the paffions to which humanity is fubject; fufceptible of the groffelt flattery, and the most fulfome panegyric was conflantly accepted and rewarded. In his views and expectations, fanguine and unbounded, but though often difappointed,

S 4

never

311

never dejected; of his benevolence and charity. much has been faid ; but it is to be observed, benevolence is but a paffive virtue, and his charity was no more than bribery; he knew no other ule of money but to give it away, and he found out that an hundred pounds would go farther in half crowns than in pounds; fo that his charity was little more than parade, as he hardly ever effentially relieved an object of diffrefs : in fact his charity was no more than putting his money to intereft, as the example excited his followers to the practice of the fame virtue, and doubled their fubfcriptions and contributions. In his conftitution, warm, and confequently amorous; in his manner of living luxurious and firictly epicurean and fond of difhes highly relified, and fond of drinking the richeft wines, in which he indulged often, but never to excefs. He was indebted more to his commanding, politive, and authoritative manner, than to any intrinfically fuperior abilities.

"Having thus given the outlines of his character, I fhall only obferve, that he appears to have been more a philofopher than a chriftian: and fhall then proceed to fome anecdotes and circumftances which will corroborate my affertions, and juffify my conclusion.

As the work of God, as it is called, was the fphere of action in which he was more particularly and and confpicuoufly engaged, and as I have ventured to question the fincerity of his professions, it is proper that I should state my reasons for fo doing. 'First then of conversion : in the methodistical fense of the word, for in the true fense, I apprehend to be neither more or lefs, than forfaking vice and practifing virtue; but however, the methodiftical sense imports quite a different thing, and it is in that fenfe we fhall view it. I have made it an invariable observation, that Mr. Wefley, although he was often in the company of fenfible men, who were capable of forming an opinion, and prefumed to judge for themfelves by the light of nature, the evidence of the fenfes, and the aid of reafon and philofophy; but of fuch, he never attempted the conversion. In his own family and amongst his relations, he never attempted, or if he did attempt, he never fucceeded : except now and then with a female, in whom he found a heart fusceptible of any impreffion he pleafed to give. It is remarkable, that even the children of Mr. C. W. were never converted-because they, and most of his relations, poffeffed fenfe enough to difcover hypocrify, and honefty enough to reject the advantage they might have derived from affuming it. But what is ftill more extraordinary, is, that out of fo many hundred, who have been educated at King [wood, in the most rigid discipline of methodism, hardly any have embraced their tenets, or become members.

313

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 use#pd-google nia on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / h http://www.hathitrust.org/access Pennsylvania University of Penns n, Google-digitized Generated at Un Public Domain, members of the fociety. The reafon is pretty obvious, they were taught too much to imbibe the ridiculous prejudices the founder wished to be inftilled into their minds: philosophy and methodism, are utterly incompatible. When the human mind is informed by the study of philosophy, it expands itself to the contemplation of things.

" It is true indeed, the work was fometimes attended with power among the children at Kingfwood. Conversions were frequent; but never durable. I myfelf was converted fome ten or a dozen times; but unluckily, my class leader was detected in having stolen a pair of silver buckles. This was a dreadful stroke to the wark, and a glorious triumph to the wicked one. The whole store of faith, grace, and all its concomitant vices, as hypocrify, &c. &c. experienced a total overthrow! The ferious boys, as they were called by way of eminence, fell into the utmost contempt, and ever after, the leader of a class was stilled Captain of the Gang: a convert and a thief, were fynonimous terms.

"A general conversion among the boys, was once effected, by the late excellent Mr. Fletcher: one poor boy only excepted, who unfortunately refisted the influence of the Holy Spirit; for which he was feverely flogged, which did not fail of the defired effect, and impressed proper notions

Digitized by Google

of 315

of religion on his mind. Unhappily these operations of the Spirit, though violent, were but of fhort duration.

" As the conversion of men and women, is a more ferious concern than that of children, I will defcribe one, to which I was an eye witnefs among the poor Colliers at King fwood. One of those prefumptuous and impious fanatical wretches, who affume the character of ministers of God, and take upon them in his most holy name, to denounce his curfes and vengeance against those who are far less guilty than themfelves : a fellow of this defcription, of the name of Sander lon, preaching to a congregation of igno. rant, but harmless people; this fellow, took upon himfelf in the name of God, to condemn them all to eternal damnation, painting their deplorable state in the most dreadful colours: fome of his hearers were foon evidently affected by this difcourfe, which he took care to improve, and taking the advantage of the kindling fpark, addreffed himfelf more particularly to them, whom he foon "made roar for the difquietude of their fouls." The whole congregation were quickly. affected in the like manner, one and all exclaimed "What shall I do to be faved? Oh! I'm damned! I'm damned! I'm damned to all eternity! What fhall .I do? Oh! Oh! Oh! Our performer observing to what a flate he

316

he had reduced his audience, redoubled his threats of divine wrath and vengeance, and with a voice terrible as thunder, demanded, " Is there any backfliders in the prefence of God ?" A dead and folemn paufe enfued-till he exclaimed " Here is an old grey-headed finner:" at the fame time firking with his hand violently on the bald pate of an honeft old man who fat under the defk ; the poor man gave a deep groan ; whether from conviction, or from the pain of the blow, I know not, for it was far from being gentle. The farce was not yet concluded : when they were ftrongly convulsed with these convictions, he fell down upon his knees, and with the greatest fervency, accompanied with abundance of tears, he intreated the Lord in mighty prayer, to have compaffion on the poor defponding finners whom he had brought to a proper fenfe of their danger : the prayer continued about ten minutes, accompanied by the fighs and groans of the converted and alarmed finners, in concert making a most divine harmony: when fuddenly ftarting up, he pretended to have received a gracious answer to his prayer, and with a joyful and fmiling countenance, pointing towards the window, exclaimed : -Behold the Lamb! Where! Where! Where! was the cry of every contrite and returning finner, (and they were all of that description) There ! (continued the preacher, extending his arms towards the window where he pretended first to have have efpied the Lamb.) In Heaven! In Colo! making interceffion for your fins! And I have his authority to proclaim unto you-" your fins are forgiven-depart in peace."-O, my dearest brethren, how fweet is the found of those extatic words. "Behold the lamb of God, who taketh away the fins of the world!" But could you but feel the peculiar energy, the divine force, the rapturous and cheering import of the original, your mouths would be filled with praife, and your hearts with divine joy, holy exultation, and unfpeakable gratitude .--- Only mark the found of the words, even that will convey an inexpreffible pleasure to your fouls, " Hecca Hangus Dei ! Ki dollit pekkaltus Monday !" The school-boys (who were feated in a pew detached from the congregation on account of their prophane and contemptuous behaviour during fervice) immediately burft into a loud laugh, on one of the congregation faving, "O the bleffed man ! We fhall fee him again on MONDAY."

317

In fome pages following we have an account of the methodift preacher's first converting his benefactor's daughter, and then debauching her; also of a preacher at Beverly, in Yorkshire, that collected fifteen pounds for a poor man in great diffres, and gave https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.har igitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Google-digitized Generated at University Public Domain, Google-di gave him only fifteen shillings, referving to himself fourteen pounds five shillings for the trouble of collecting it, with which, and twenty pounds more he was entrusted with, he decamped the next day, to the astonishment of the simple on whom he had imposed.

I wish the author as he proposes may foon give us a more particular account of the methodists, preachers, and people, and also of fome of Mr. Wesley's private opinions, &c.

This pamphlet concludes with very curious letters written by Mr. J. Wefley, and he informs us in a note that the publisher has his address in order to direct any person to the author where they may see the original letters. I here give you the whole of these extraordinary letters.

Page 50, &c.

" DEAR SIR,

FOR your obliging letter which I received this morning, I return you thanks.

"Our opinions for the most part perfectly coincide respecting the stability of the connexion, after

319

after my head is laid in the dust. This, however, is a fubject, about which I am not fo anxious as you feem to imagine; on the contrary, it is a matter of the utmost indifference to me; as I have long forefeen that a division must necessarily enfue, from caufes fo various, unavoidable and certain, that I have long fince given over all thoughts and hopes of fettling it on a permanent foundation. You do not feem to be aware of the most effective cause that will bring about a divifion. You apprehend the most ferious confequences from a ftruggle between the preachers for power and pre-eminence, and there being none among them of fufficient authority or abilities to fupport the dignity, or command the reffpect and exact the implicit obedience which is fo neceffary to uphold our conflitution on its prefent principles. This is one thing that will operate very powerfully against unity in the connexion, and is, perhaps, what I might poffibly have prevented, had not a ftill greater difficulty arifen in my mind: I have often wifhed for fome perfon of abilities to fucceed me as the head of the church I have with fuch indefatigable pains, and aftonifhing fuccels established; but convinced that none but very fuperior abilities would be equal to the undertaking, was I to adopt a fucceffor of this description, I fear he might gain fo much influence among the people, as to usurp a fhare, if not the whole of that abfolute and uncontrolable power power, which I have hitherto, and am determined I will maintain fo long as I live: never will I bear a rival near my throne.-You no doubt, fee the policy of continually changing the preachers from one circuit to another at fhort periods: for fhould any of them become popular with their different congregations, and infinuate themfelves into the favour of their hearers, they might poffibly obtain fuch influence, as to eftablish themselves independently of me, and the general connexion. Befides the novelty of the continual change, excites curiofity, and is the more neceffary, as few of our preachers have abilities to render themfelves in any degree tolerable, any longer than they are new. PART IN

The principal cause which will inevitably effect a diminution and division in the connexion after my death, will be the failure of fubfcriptions and contributions towards the fupport of the caufe, for money is as much the finews of religious, as of military power. If it is with the greateft difficulty that even I can keep them together, for want of this very neceffary article, I think no one elfe Another caufe, which with others will can. effect the division, is the disputes and contentions that will arife between the preachers and the parties that will espoufe their feveral causes, by which means much truth will be brought to light, which will reflect fo much to their difadvantage, that the eyes eyes of the people will be opened to fee their motives and principles, nor will they any longer contribute to their fupport, when they find all their pretensions to fanctity and love are founded on motives of interest and ambition. The confequence of which will be, a few of the most popular will eftablish themselves in the respective places where they have gained fufficient influence over the minds of the people; the reft muft revert to their original humble callings. But this no way concerns me : I have attained the object of my views, by eftablishing a name that will not foon perifh from the face of the earth; I have founded a fect which will boaft my name, long after my discipline and doctrines are forgotten.

321

" My character and reputation for fanctity is now beyond the reach of calumny; nor will any thing that may hereafter come to light, or be faid concerning me, to my prejudice, however true, gain credit.

" My unfoil'd name, th' aufterenefs of my life, Will vouch against it, And fo the accufation overweigh, That it will stiffe in its own report, And fmell of calumny."

Another caufe that will operate more powerfully and effectually than any of the preceding, is the rays of philofophy which begins now to pervade all ranks, rapidly difpelling the mifts of T ignorance,

power, which I have hitherto, and am determined I will maintain fo long as I live : never will I bear a rival near my throne.—You no doubt, fee the policy of continually changing the preaachers from one circuit to another at fhort periods : for fhould any of them become popular with their different congregations, and infinuate themfelves into the favour of their hearers, they might podfibly obtain fuch influence, as to effabliff themfelves independently of me, and the general commension. Befides the novelty of the continual change, excites curiofity, and is the more neceffiany, as few of our preachers have abilities to render themfelves in any degree tolerable, any longer tham they are new.

The principal caufe which will inevitably effective a diminution and division in the connective my deak, will be the fait outbuildons towards of financy power. If it is is that even is as much the its that were the its that will be the fit their mans mi will refie

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google GMT 19:57 Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 Google-digitized of University Domain, Generated at eyes of the people will be opened to fee their motivess and principles, nor will they any longer contribute to their fupport, when they find all their prenenfons to facility and love are founded on matives of interest and antition. The confequence of which will be, a few of the nost gapular will establish themfelves in the respective places where they have gained fufficient influence over the minds of the people ; the reft mult revert to their original humilie callings. But this no way concerns ne : I have attained the oligist of my views, by establishing a more that will not foun perifficient in the same, long after my difficient and dofinitions are forgotten.

Digitized by Google

Original from UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN

1000

** My charafter and reputation for fasifity is now beyond the reach of calumny; nor will any thing that may bereafter come to light, or he "til concerning me, to my prejudice, however e, gain crudit.

My articit's anne, th'adderraft of any life,
 Will could against it,
 Built's the acceletion overweight,
 That is will fifterin its non-report,
 Built'inell of colorma."

and effectually than any of the preceding, mys of philolophy addet degins new to fe all ranks, experity difficiling the milliof T ignorance,

Digitized by Google

ignorance, which has been long in a great degree the mother of devotion, of flavish prejudice, and the enthusiastic bigotry of religious opinions: the decline of the papal power is owing to the fame irresistible cause, nor can it be supposed that methodism can stand its ground, when brought to the test of truth, reason, and philosophy.

I am, &c.

I. W."

City Road, Thurfday Morn.

Our Author informs us that the following was written to a very amiable and accomplifhed lady, fome years ago. The lady was about three and twenty years of age.

" MADAM,

" IT is with the utmost diffidence I prefume to addrefs fuperior excellence: emboldened by a violent, yet virtuous paffion, kindled by the irrefistible rays, and encouraged by the fweetly attractive force, of transcendent beauty, the elegant fimplicity of your manners, the fascinating melody of your voice, and above all, the inexpressible fire of an eye, that the extravagance of the Muses has given to the goddefs of love: but which Nature has bestowed on you alone.

" They fparkle with the right Promethean fire!"

" Believe

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT n, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/ac Domain, Generated at Public Domain

Digitized by Google

323

" Believe me, my dear Madam, this is not the language of romance ; but the genuine exuberant effusions of an enraptured foul. The impression of your charms was no lefs inftantaneous than irrefiftible: when first I faw you, fo forcibly was I ftruck with admiration and love of your divine perfections, that my foul was filled with fenfations fo wild and extravagant, yet delightful and pure! -But I will not indulge in declaring what are my real fentiments, left I should incur a sufpicion of flattery. Your mind, fuperior to fulfome panegyric, unfusceptible of the incense of affected adulation, would, with just indignation, fpurn at those impertinent compliments, which are commonly offered with a view to impose upon the vanity and credulity of the weaker part of your fex: I will not attempt it; but confine myfelf to the dictates of fincerity and truth, nor fhall a compliment escape my pen, that is not the fentiment of a devoted heart.

"As beauty has no politive criterion, and fancy alone directs the judgment and influences the choice, we find different people fee it in various lights, forms, and colours, I may therefore, without a fuspicion of flattery declare, that in my eye you are the most agreeable object, and most perfect work of created nature: nor does your mind feem to partake lefs of the divinity than your perfon.

T 2

" I view

324

" I view thee over with a lover's eye; No fault haft thou, or I no fault can fpy."

"The reafon I did not before declare myfelf, was the profound and refpectful diftance I thought it became me to obferve, from a confcious fenfe of my own comparative unworthinefs to approach, much lefs to hope for favour from, the quinteffence of all female perfection.—Forgive me, my dear Eliza, and compaffionate a heart too deeply impreffed with your divine image, ever to be erafed by time, nor can any power, but the cold hand of death, ever obliterate from my mind the fond imagination and fweet remembrance of Eliza's charms! Nor can even death itfelf divide the union that fubfifts between kindred fouls.

"Yesterday, my dear Eliza, the charms of your conversation detained me too late to meet the penitents, as I had promifed to do; but

> "With thee converfing, I forget All times, all feafons, and their change."

" I hope however, the difappointment of my company did not deprive them of a bleffing.

"This being my birth-day, reflexions on the revolution of years and the fhortnefs of life, naturally intrude on my mind. I am now eighty-one years of age, and I thank God I enjoy the fame vigor of conflictution I poffeffed at twenty-one! None

None of the infirmities that ufually accompany years, either corporal or mental; and I think it not impoffible that I may fulfil my hundred years, the refidue of which fhall be devoted to love and Eliza.

I. W."

325

I fent a perfon to the author of the above pamphlet, to defire him to give me a fight of the original of the preceding letters; but he returned for anfwer, that he had fent them back to the perfons to whom they were written.

I am,

Dear Friend,

3

Yours.

LETTER

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.har Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

LETTER XXXI.

" Paffion, 'tis true, may hurry us along;

" Sometimes the just may deviate into wrong." VOLTAIRE by Franklin.

DEAR FRIEND,

326

My new wife's attachment to books was a very fortunate circumftance for us both, not only as it was a perpetual fource of rational amufement, but alfo as it tended to promote my trade : her extreme love for books made her delight to be in the fhop, to that the foon became perfectly acquainted with every part of it, and (as my flock increased) with other rooms where I kept books, and could readily get any article that was afked for. Accordingly, when I was out on bufinefs, my fhop was well attended. This conftant attention, and good ufage, procured me many cuftomers; and I foon perceived that I could fell double and treble the quantity of books if I had a larger flock. But how how to enlarge it, I knew not, except by flow degrees, as my profits fhould enable me; for as I was almost a stranger in London, I had but few acquaintances, and these few were not of the opulent fort. I also faw that the town abounded with cheats, fwindlers, &c. who obtained money and other property, under false pretences, of which the credulous were defrauded, which often prevented me from endeavouring to borrow, left I should be fuspected of having the same bad designs.

327

I was feveral times fo hard put to it, for cafh to purchafe parcels of books which were offered to me, that I more than once pawned my watch, and a fuit of cloaths, and twice I pawned fome books for money to purchafe others; but I foon was tired of pawnbrokers, and at that time they were not fo reftricted, as now, in refpect to intereft, and thinking myfelf impofed on, by being charged more than was reafonable, I never redeemed the laft parcel at all; for, indeed, they were books that I had had bought extremely cheap, fo that I borrowed more money on them than they coft me, and in fo doing repaid myfelf what I had been overcharged. "I confefs we were poor; but, while that is the worft our enemies can fay of us, we are content."

T 4

Soon after I commenced bookfeller, I became acquainted with what Pope calls "the nobleft work of God," an HONEST man. This was Mr. JOHN DENIS, an oilman in Cannon-ftreet (father of the prefent Mr. John Denis, bookfeller.) This gentleman had often vifited me during my long illnefs, and having feen me tranquil and ferene when on the very point of death, he formed a favourable conclusion that I too must be an honeft man, as I had fo quiet a confcience at fuch an awful period. Having retained these ideas of me after my recovery, and being perfectly well acquainted with my circumftances, he one day offered to become a partner in my bufinefs, and to advance money in proportion to my flock. This confidential

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.har Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google 19:57

Digitized by Google

329

confidential offer I foon accepted; early in 1778 he became partner; and we very foon laid out his money in fecond-hand books, which increased the flock at once to double.

I foon after this proposed printing a fale catalogue, to which, after making a few objections, Mr. Denis confented. This catalogue of twelve thousand volumes (fuch as they were) was published in 1779. My partner's name was not in the title-page, the addrefs was only " J. LACKINGTON and Co. No. 46, Chifwell-ftreet." This our first publication produced very opposite effects on those who perused it; in some it excited much mirth, in others an equal proportion of anger. The major part of it was written by me, but Mr. Denis wrote many pages of it; and as his own private library confifted of fcarce old myffical and alchymical books, printed above a century ago, many of them were in bad condition ; this led him to infert neat in the catalogue to many articles, which were were only neat when compared with fuch as were in very bad condition; fo that when we produced fuch books as were called neat in our catalogue, we often got ourfelves laughed at, and fometimes our neat articles were heartily damned. We had alfo a deal of trouble on another fcore; Mr. Denis inferted a number of articles without the authors names, and affured me that the books were well known, and to mention the authors was often ufelefs. The fact was, Mr. Denis knew who wrote those articles: but was foon convinced that many others did not, as we were often obliged to produce them merely to let our cuftomers fee who were the authors : we however took twenty pounds the first week the books were on fale, which we thought a large fum. The increase of our flock augmented our cuftomers in proportion; fo that Mr. Denis, finding that his money turned to a better account in bookfelling than in the funds, very foon lent the flock near two hundred pounds, which I still turned to a good account.

330

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/ac

331

account. We went on very friendly and prosperously for a little more than two years; when one night Mr. Denis hinted that he thought I was making purchases too faft, on which I grew warm, and reminded him of an article in our partnership agreement by which I was to be fole purchafer, and was at liberty to make what purchases I should judge proper. I also reminded him of the profits which my purchases produced, and he reminded me of his having more money in the trade than I had. We were indeed both very warm; and on my faying, that if he was difpleafed with any part of my conduct, he was at liberty to quit the partnership, he in great warmth replied that he would. The above paffed at Mr. Denis's house in Hoxton-square, I then bade him good night. When Mr. Denis called at the . shop the next day, he asked me if I continued in the fame mind I was in the preceding night? I affured him that I did. He then demanded of me whether I infifted on his keeping his word to quit the partnership? I replied,

I replied, I did not infift on it, as I had taken him a partner for three years, nearly one third part of which time was unexpired; but, I added, that, as I had always found him firictly a man of his word, I fuppofed he would prove himfelf fo in the prefent instance, and not affert one thing at night and another in the morning. On which he obferved, that as he was not provided with a shop, he must take fome time to look for one. I told him that he might take as long a time as he thought neceffary. This was in March 1780. He appointed the twentieth of May, On that day we accordingly following. diffolved the partnership ; and, as he had more money in the trade than myfelf, he took my notes for what I was deficient. We parted in great friendship, which continued to the day of his death; he generally called every morning to fee us, and learn our concerns, and we conftantly informed him of all that had paffed the preceding day; as how much cash we had taken, what were the profits, what purchases we had made, what bills

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.ha Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

333

bills we had to pay, &c. and he fometimes lent me money to help to pay them.

At his death he left behind him in his private library the beft collection of fcarce, valuable, myftical, and alchymical books, that ever was collected by one perfon. In his lifetime he prized thefe kind of books above every thing; in collecting them he never cared what price he paid for them. This led him to think, after he became a bookfeller, that other book-collectors fhould pay their money as freely as he had done his, which was often a fubject of debate between him and me, as I was for felling every thing cheap, in order to fecure thofe cuftomers already obtained, as well as increafe their numbers.

Mr. Denis was, at the time of his death, about fifty years of age. He informed me that in his childhood and youth he was weakly to an extreme, fo that no one who knew him ever thought he could live to be twenty

inia on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Generated at University of Pennsylvania on Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://

twenty years of age; however he enjoyed an uninterrupted flate of health for nearly the laft thirty years of his life; this he afcribed to his flrictly adhering to the rules laid down by Cornaro and Tryon in their books on Health, Long Life and Happinefs. His unexpected death was in confequence of a fever caught by fitting in a cold damp room.

> O'er the fad reliques of a friend fincere, The happieft mortal, fure, may fpare a tear.

> > I am,

Dear Friend,

15 31 Hauser

Digitized by Google

Yours.

LETTER

Contraction and the same

LETTER XXXII.

SAMPLEY THE AND SUCTOR AND ADDRESS

" There is a tide in the affairs of men,

" Which taken at the flood leads on to fortune,

" Omitted, all the voyage of their life

" Is bound in fhallows and in miferies;

" On fuch a foul fea are we now afloat,

" And we must take the current when it ferves,

" Or lofe our ventures."

SHAKESPEARE'S Julius Cæfar.

Daiuan

335

DEAR FRIEND,

T was fome time in the year feventeen hundred and eighty, when I refolved from that period to give no perfon whatever any credit. I was induced to make this refolution from various motives: I had obferved, that where credit was given, moft bills were not paid within fix months, many not within a twelvemonth, and fome not within two years. Indeed, many tradefmen have accounts of feven years ftanding; and fome bills are never paid. The loffes fuftained by the intereft of money in long credits, and by thofe bills that were not paid at all;

all; the inconveniences attending not having the ready-money to lay out in trade to the best advantage, together with the great lofs of time in keeping accounts, and collecting debts, convinced me, that if I could but eftablish a ready-money business, without any exceptions, I should be enabled to fell every article very cheap. When I communicated my ideas on this fubject to fome of my acquaintances, I was much laughed at and ridiculed; and it was thought, that I might as well attempt to rebuild the tower of Babel, as to eftablish a large business without giving credit. But notwithstanding this discouragement, and even You, my dear friend, expreffing your doubts of the practicability of my fcheme, I determined to make the experiment; and began by marking in every book the loweft price that I would take for it; which being much lower than the common market prices, I not only retained my former customers, but foon increased their numbers. But, my dear Sir, you can scarce imagine what difficulties I encountered for feveral years

Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

years together. I even fometimes thought of relinquishing this my favorite scheme altogether, as by it I was obliged to deny credit to my very acquaintance; I was also under a neceffity of refusing it to the most respectable characters, as no exception was, or now is made, not even in favour of nobility; my porters being strictly enjoined, by one general order, to bring back all books not previoufly paid for, except they receive the amount on delivery. Again, many in the country found it difficult to remit fmall fums that are below bankers notes, and others to whom I was a stranger, did not like to fend the money first, as not knowing how I should treat them, and suspecting by the price of the articles, there must certainly be fome deception. Many unacquainted with my plan of bufinefs, were much offended, until the advantages accruing to them from it were duly explained, when they very readily acceded to it. As to the anger of fuch, who though they were acquainted with it, were still determined to deal on credit

U

337

Digitized by Google

dit only, I confidered that as of little confequence, from an opinion that fome of them would have been as much enraged when their bills were fent in, had credit been given them.

I had also difficulties of another nature to encounter; when first I began to fell very cheap, many came to my fhop prepoffeffed against my goods, and of course often faw faults where none existed; fo that the best editions were merely from prejudice deemed very bad editions, and the beft bindings faid to be inferior workmanship, for no other reafon, but becaufe I fold them fo cheap; and I often received letters from the country, to know if fuch and fuch articles were REALLY as I stated them in my catalogues, and if they REALLY were the best editions, if REALLY in calf; and REALLY elegantly bound; with many other reallys. Oh my friend! I really was afraid for fome years that I should be really mad with vexation. But these letters of reallys have for years happily ceafed, and the public are now really and and thoroughly convinced that I will not affert in my catalogues what is not really true. But imagine, if you can, what I must have felt, on hearing the very best of goods depreciated, on no other account whatever, but because they were not charged at a higher price.

339

It is also worth obferving, that there were not wanting among the bookfellers, fome who were mean enough to affert that all my books were bound in fheep; and many other unmanly artifices were practifed, all of which fo far from injuring me, as basely intended, turned to my account; for when gentlemen were brought to my fhop by their friends, to purchase some trifling article, or were led into it by curiofity, they were often very much furprifed to fee many thoufands of volumes in elegant and fuperb bindings. The natural conclusion was, that if I had not held forth to the public better terms than others, I fhould not have been fo much envied and mifreprefented. So that whether I am righteous or not, all these afflictions U 2 have have worked together for my good. But I affure you, that my temporal falvation was not effected without "conditions." As every envious transaction was to me an additional fpur to exertion, I am therefore not a little indebted to Meffrs. ENVY, DETRACTION, and Co. for my present prosperity; though I affure you, this is the only debt I am determined not to pay. Green fays,

340

- " Happy the man who innocent,
- " Grieves not at ills he can't prevent :
- " And when he can't prevent foul play,

" Enjoys the follies of the fray."

SPLEEN.

1 am,

Dear Friend,

Yours.

LETTER

341

LETTER XXXIII.

" Conftant at fhop and Change, his gains were fure :

" His givings rare ; fave half-pence to the poor."

DEAR FRIEND.

N the first three years after I refused to give credit to any person, my bufinefs increafed much, and as the whole of my profit (after paying all expences) was laid out in books, my flock was continually enlarged, fo that my Catalogues in the year feventeen hundred and eighty-four, were very much augmented in fize. The first contained Twelve thousand, and the fecond Thirty thousand volumes: this increase was not merely in numbers, but alfo in value, as a very great part of these volumes were better, that is, books of an higher price. But notwithstanding the great increase of my businefs, I still met with many difficulties on account of my felling books cheap; one of these I confess I did not foresee: as the more convinced the public were of my act-U 3

ing

ing firictly conformable to the plan I had adopted, the more this objection gained ground, and even to the prefent day is not entirely done away. This difficulty was, in making private purchafes of libraries and parcels of books, many of my cuftomers for feveral years had no objection to buying of me becaufe I fold cheap, but were not equally inclined to fell me fuch books as they had no use for, or libraries that were left them at the death of relations, &c. They reafoned (very plaufibly, it must be confessed) thus: " Lackington fells very cheap; he therefore will not give much for what is offered him for fale. I will go to those who fell very dear; as the more they fell their books for, the more they can afford to give for them."

This mode of reafoning, however fpecious it feems at first, will on due reflection appear nugatory and erroneous, for the following reafons:

I believe no one ever knew or heard of a covetous man that would fell his goods cheap: But

But every one has heard of fuch characters felling very dear; and when a covetous perfon makes a purchase, is it likely that he should offer a generous price? Is he not when buying influenced by the fame avaritious difposition as when felling? And on the other hand, I cannot help thinking (I am aware of the inference) that one who has been conftantly felling cheap for a feries of years must poffers fome degree of generofity; that this difposition has prevailed in me when I have been called to purchafe, and when libraries or parcels of books have been fent to me, thousands in the three kingdoms can witnefs. And however paradoxical it may appear, I will add, that I can afford to give more for books now, than I could if I fold them much dearer. For, were I to fell them dear, I should be ten times longer in felling them; and the expences for warehoufe-room, infurance from fire, together with the intereft of the money lying long in a dead ftock, would prevent my giving a large price when books were offered for fale.

U4

But

343

Digitized by Google

Original from UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN

But it did not appear in this point of view to the public in the more early ftages of my bufinefs, until being often fent for after other bookfellers had made offers for libraries, and finding that I would give more than they had offered, it was communicated from one to another until it became publickly known; and the following method which I adopted fome years fince has put the matter beyond the fhadow of a doubt.

When I am called upon to purchafe any library or parcel of books, either myfelf or my affiftants carefully examine them, and if defired to fix a price, I mention at a word the utmoft that I will give for them, which I always take care fhall be as much as any bookfeller can afford to give : but if the feller entertains any doubts respecting the price offered, and choofes to try other bookfellers, he pays me five per cent. for valuing the books; and as he knows what I have valued them at, he tries among the trade, and when he finds that he cannot get any greater fum offered, on returning to me, he not only only receives the price I at first offered, but also a return of the five per cent. which was paid me for the valuation.

But to fuch as fix a price on their own books I make no charge, either taking them at the price at which they are offered to me, or if that appear too much, immediately declining the purchase.

This equitable mode I have the pleafure to find has given the public the utmost fatisfaction.

I am,

Dear Friend,

Yours.

LETTER

Digitized by Google

LETTER XXXIV.

- " Behold, Sir Balaam, now a man of fpirit,
- " Afcribes his gettings to his parts and merit."

POPE.

- " Weak truth cannot your reputation fave,
- " The knaves will all agree to call you knave:
- " Wrong'd shall he live, infulted, o'er opprest,
- " Who dares be lefs a villain than the reft."

Satyr against Man.

DEAR FRIEND,

346

W HEN I was first initiated into the various manoeuvres practifed by bookfellers, I found it customary among them, (which practice still continues) that when any books had not gone off fo rapidly as expected, or so fast as to pay for keeping them in flore, they would put what remained of such articles into private stales, where only bookfellers are admitted, and of them only such as were invited by having a catalogue sent them. At one of these fales I have frequently seen seventy or eighty thoufand volumes fold after dinner, including books books of every defcription, good, bad and indifferent; by this means they were diffributed through the trade.

When first invited to these trade fales, I was very much surprised to learn, that it was common for such as purchased remainders, to destroy one half or three fourths of such books, and to charge the full publication price, or nearly that, for such as they kept on hand; and there was a kind of standing order amongst the trade, that in case any one was known to fell articles under the publication price, such a person was to be excluded from trade states; so blind were copy-rightholders to their own interest.

For a fhort time I cautioufly complied with this cuftom, but I foon began to reflect that many of these books so deftroyed, posfeffed much merit, and only wanted to be better known; and that if others were not worth fix shillings, they were worth three or two, and so in proportion for higher or lower priced books.

From

347

From that time I refolved not to deftroy any books that were worth faving, but to fell them off at half, or a quarter of the publication prices. By felling them in this cheap manner, I have difposed of many hundred thousand volumes, many thousands of which have been intrinfically worth their original prices. This part of my conduct, however, though evidently highly beneficial to the community, and even to bookfellers, created me many enemies among the trade; fome of the meaner part of whom, inftead of employing their time and abilities in attending to the increafe of their own bufinefs, aimed at reducing mine; and by a variety of pitiful infinuations and dark inuendoes, ftrained every nerve to injure the reputation I had already acquired with the public, determined, (as they wifely concluded) thus to effect my ruin; which indeed they daily prognofficated, with a demon-like fpirit, must inevitably very speedily follow. This conduct, however, was far from intimidating me, as the effect proved directly opposite to what they wished for and expected, expected, and I found the refpect and confidence of the public continually increasing, which added very confiderably to the number of my cuftomers : It being an unqueftionable fact, that before I adopted this plan, great numbers of perfons were very defirous of poffeffing fome particular books, for which however (from various motives) they were not inclined to pay the original price; as fome availed themfelves of the opportunity of borrowing from a friend, or from a circulating library, or having once read them, though they held the works in efteem, might deem them too dear to purchase; or they might have a copy by them, which from their own and family's frequent use (or lending to friends) might not be in fo good a condition as they could wifh, though rather than purchase them again at the full price, they would keep those they had; or again, they might be defirous to purchase them to make prefents of; or they might have a commission from a correspondent in the country, or abroad, and wish to gain a fmall fmall profit on the articles for their trouble, not to mention the great numbers that would have been given to the poor.

349

Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

Thoufands of others have been effectually prevented from purchasing, (though anxious fo to do) whofe circumftances in life would not permit them to pay the full price, and thus were totally excluded from the advantage of improving their understandings, and enjøying a rational entertainment. And you may be affured, that it affords me the most pleafing fatisfaction, independent of the emoluments which have accrued to me from this plan, when I reflect what prodigious numbers in inferior or reduced fituations of life, have been effentially benefited in confequence of being thus enabled to indulge their natural propenfity for the acquisition of knowledge, on eafy terms: nay, I could almost be vain enough to affert, that I have thereby been highly inftrumental in diffufing that general defire for READING, now fo prevalent among the inferior orders of fociety; ciety; which most certainly, though it may not prove equally instructive to all, keeps them from employing their time and money, if not to bad, at least to lefs rational purposes.

Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

351

How happy fhould I have deemed myfelf in the earlier stage of my life, if I could have met with the opportunity which every one capable of reading may now enjoy, of obtaining books at fo eafy a rate : Had that been the cafe, the Catalogue of my juvenile library, with which I prefented you in a former letter, would have made a more refpectable appearance, and I might poffibly have been enabled when I purchafed Young's Night Thoughts for a Christmas dinner, to have at the fame time bought a joint of meat, and thus enjoyed both a mental and corporeal feaft, as well as pleafed my wife, (which I need not inform you the ladies fay every good hufband ought to do.) But after all. quere, Whether if I had enjoyed fuch an advantage, fhould I ever have thought of commencing bookfeller? If not, fhould I have have been the great man I now feel myfelf, and hope you acknowledge me to be? In my next I will make a few obfervations on purchasing manufcripts, bookfeller's liberality, author's turning publishers, &c. in the mean time,

I am,

Dear Friend,

Yours.

TER

/ https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.han Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

LETTER XXXV.

" High in the world of letters, and of wit,

" Enthron'd like Jove behold opinion fit !

" As fymbols of her fway, on either hand

" Th' unfailing urns of praise and censure stand;

" Their mingled freams her motley fervants fhed

" On each bold author's felf-devoted head."

HAYLEY.

2. 11-1214

353

DEAR FRIEND,

Promifed in my laft to give you a few remarks on purchafing manufcripts; and as I feldom make fuch purchafes, and but rarely publifh any new books, I think you may fairly credit me for impartiality. Nothing is more common than to hear authors complaining againft publifhers, for want of liberality in purchafing their manufcripts. But I cannot help thinking that most of these complaints are groundless; and that were all things confidered, publishers (at least many of them) would be allowed to possible more liberality than any other fet X of of tradefmen, I mean fo far as relates to the purchasing manufcripts and copy-right.

354

Not to trouble you with a long enumeration of inftances in confirmation of this affertion, I shall barely mention the following :

It is owing to the encouragement of bookfellers that the public is poffeffed of that valuable work Johnfon's Dictionary; and the fame liberality to the doctor in refpect to that publication, his edition of Shakefpeare, and the English Poets will always reflect honour on the parties. So fensible was the doctor of this, that he afferted bookfellers were the best Macaenas's.

The late Sir John Hawkins, Dr. Cullen, the prefent Dr. Robertson, Mr. Gibbon, Dr. Knox, &c. &c. are all striking instances of the truth of my observation.

As I feel a pleafure in mentioning acts of liberality wherever they occur, fuffer me to quote quote the following paffage from Sir John Hawkins's Life of Dr. Johnfon.

355 .

" The bookfellers with whom Mr. Chambers had contracted for his dictionary, finding that the work fucceeded beyond their expectations, made him a voluntary prefent of, I think, 500l. Other inftances of the like generofity have been known of a profeffion of men, who, in the debates on the question of literary property, have been defcribed as fcandalous monopolizers, fattening at the expence of other men's ingenuity, and growing opulent by oppreffion."

It is confidently afferted, that the late Dr. Hawkefworth received fix thoufand pounds for his compilation of Voyages, if fo (and I have never heard it contradicted) I leave it to any confiderate perfon to judge, whether in paying fo enormous a price, the publishers did not run a great rifk, when it is confidered how great the expences of bringing forward fuch a work, must have been. I have alfo been been informed that David Mallet, Efq. was offered two thousand pounds for Lord Bolingbroke's Philosophical Works, which he refused.

X 2

356

It ought alfo to be confidered, that frequently the money which is paid for the copy, is but trifling, compared with the expence of printing, paper, advertifing, &c, and hundreds of inftances may be adduced of publifhers having fuftained very great loffes, and many have been made bankrupts, through their liberality in purchafing manufcripts and publifhing them; and on the other hand, it must be acknowledged that fome publifhers have made great fortunes by their copy rights, but their number is comparatively fmall.

It should also be remarked that authors in general, are apt to form too great expectations from their productions, many instances of which I could give you, but I will only produce one.

A gen-

inia on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Generated at University of Pennsylvania on Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://

357

A gentleman a few years fince shewed a manufcript to a publisher, which he refused to purchase, but offered to be the publisher if the gentleman would print it, &c. at his own expence, which he readily agreed to do, the publisher then defired to know how many copies thould be printed, on which the gentleman began to compute how many families there were in Great Britain, and affured the publisher that every family would at least purchase one copy, but the publisher not being of the fame opinion, our author then faid that he would print fixty thousand copies only, but added, he was afraid that another edition could not be got ready as foon as it would be wanted. However, after a long debate, the publisher prevailed on him to print only twelve hundred and fifty, instead of fixty thousand, but promised in case another edition should be wanted in haste, to make the printers work night and day in order not to difappoint the public. This work was foon afterwards published and advertifed X 3

358

vertifed at a great rate and for a long time, but to the infinite mortification of our author, not one hundred copies were fold, not even enough indeed to pay for the advertifements. In the preceding inftance I am perfuaded the publisher did his best to promote the fale of the work; but in general where authors keep their own copy-right they do not fucceed, and many books have been configned to oblivion, through the inattention and mifmanagement of publishers, as most of them are envious of the fuccess of fuch works as do not turn to their own account ; very many just complaints are made on this head, fo that I am fully of opinion that for authors to fucceed well they fhould fell their copy-rights, or be previoufly well acquainted with the characters of their publifhers.

As I have before obferved, there are fome authors who become their own publishers, but that mode will feldom or never answer, as fifty to one might be fold by being exposed posed to view, and recommended in bookfellers fhops, where ladies and gentlemen are continually calling to purchase fome books, and to turn over others, and often by dipping into publications are led to purchase fuch as they had no intention to buy. But authors should be reminded that there are many who would not go to private houfes to look over books when they are not certain to purchafe, and where, if they do purchafe, they are to take them home in their pockets, or be at the trouble of fending for them, which is not the cafe when they purchase at a bookfeller's fhop. And all authors fhould be fure to give the full allowance to the trade, or their works can never have a great fale, as no bookfeller can reafonably be expected to promote the fale of a work in which he is abridged of his usual profits, and the more liberality authors exercise towards the trade, the greater will be their profits in the end. For it is inconceivable what mifchief bookfellers can and often will X 4 do https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 (nia on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.han http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Pennsylvania on at University of Penns main, Google-digitized Generated at Un Public Domain,

359

360

Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

do to authors, as thoufands of books are yearly written for to London that are never fent; and in these cases many plausible reafons are assigned by them for such omissions, and in such cases, what redress can an author have for so effential an injury?

to object put

Dear Friend,

wells light one orig

OI.

I am,

Digitized by Google

Yours.

LET

ER

LETTER XXXVI.

" Those who would learning's glorious kingdom find,

- " The dear-bought treasure of the trading mind,
- ** From many dangers must themselves acquit,

" And more than Scylla and Charybdis meet.

- " Oh ! what an ocean must be voyaged o'er,
- " To gain a profpect of the fhining flore !

" Refifting rocks oppose th' enquiring foul,

" And adverfe waves retard it as they roll.

" The little knowledge now which man obtains,

- " From outward objects and from fenfe he gains;
- " He like a wretched flave muft plod and fweat,
- " By day must toil, by night that toil repeat,
- " And yet, at last, what little fruit he gains,
- " A beggar's harvest glean'd with mighty pains!"

POMFRET.

361

DEAR FRIEND,

ALTHOUGH the refult of the plan which I adopted for reducing the price of books, as mentioned in my laft, was a vaft increase of purchasers, yet at the same time I found a prodigious accumulation of my expences; which will not appear ftrange, when I inform you that I made proproportionably large purchases, fuch as two hundred copies of one book, three hundred of another, five hundred of a third, a thoufand of a fourth, two thousand of a fifth, nay, fometimes I have purchased fix thoufand copies of one book, and at one time I actually had no lefs than TEN THOUSAND COPIES of Watts's Pfalms, and the fame number of his Hymns in my poffession. In addition to thefe, I purchased very large numbers of many thousand different articles, at trade fales of all forts, as bankrupt fales, fales of fuch as had retired from bufinefs, others caufed by the death of bookfellers, fales to reduce large ftocks, annual fales, &c. that you may form fome idea, I must inform you that at one of the above fales, I have purchased books to the amount of five thoufand pounds in one afternoon. Not to mention those purchased of authors, and town and country bookfellers, by private contract, &c. to a very confiderable amount. My expences were also exceedingly increased by the neceffity I was under of keeping each article in a variety

363

a variety of different kinds of bindings, to fuit the various taftes of my customers : Befides paying my bills for the above, I was always obliged to find ready money to pay for libraries and parcels of fecond-hand books, which after a while poured in upon me from town and country. So that I often look back with aftonishment at my courage (or temerity, if you pleafe) in purchasing, and my wonderful fuccefs in taking money fufficient to pay the extensive demands that were perpetually made upon me, as there is not another inftance of fuccefs fo rapid and constant under fuch circumstances. Some indeed there have been, who for two or three years, purchased away very fast, but could not perfevere, as they were unable to fell with equal rapidity: for no one that has not a quick fale can poffibly fucceed with large numbers. For fuppofing that a bookfeller expends a thoufand pounds in the purchafe of four articles (I have often done that in only one article) and thefe are bought at a quarter the usual price, the interest of the money

Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

money is fifty pounds a year ; befides which fome allowance muft be made for warehouferoom, infurance from fire, &c. fo that granting he might fell a few of each article every year at four times the price he firft paid for them, yet if he does not fell enough to pay the intereft and other expences of those that remain, he is, after all, on the losing fide ; which has been the cafe with the major part of fuch as have purchafed a large number of one book, and I have known many inftances of bookfellers purchafing articles at a quarter the price, and felling them at the full price, and yet have not had two per cent. for their

For feveral years together I thought I fhould be obliged to defift from purchafing a large number of any one article; for although by not giving any credit I was enabled to fell very cheap, yet the heavy flock of books in fheets often difheartened me, fo that I more than once refolved to leave off purchafing all fuch articles where the number was very large. But, fomehow or other, a torrent of bufinefs

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google GMT Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 ted at University of Penns Domain, Google-digitized Generated a Public Doma

365

bufinefs fuddenly poured in upon me on all fides, fo that I very foon forgot my refolution of not making large purchases, and now find my account in firmly adhering to that method; and being univerfally known for making large purchases, most of the trade in town and country, and alfo authors of every defcription are continually furnishing me with In this branch of trade it is opportunities. next to impoffible for me ever to have any formidable rivals, as it requires an uncommon exertion, as well as very uncommon fuccefs, and that for many years together, to rife to any great degree of eminence in that particular line. This fuccefs must be attained too, without the aid of novelty, which I found to be of very great fervice to me ; And should any perfon begin on my plan and fucceed extremely well, he could never fupersede me, as I am still enlarging my bufinefs every year, and the more it is extended the cheaper I can afford to fell; fo that though I may be purfued, I cannot be overtaken, except I fhould (as fome others have

Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 :ized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Generated at University of Penns Public Domain, Google-digitized

ASTTEA

366

have done) be fo infatuated and blinded by profperity, as to think that the public would continue their favors, even though the plan of bufinefs were reverfed. But as the firft king of Bohemia kept his country floes by him, to remind him from whence he was taken, I have put a motto on the doors of my carriage, conftantly to remind me to what I am indebted for my profperity, viz.

" SMALL PROFITS DO GREAT THINGS."

And I affure you, Sir, that reflecting on the means by which I have been enabled to fupport a carriage, adds not a little to the pleafure of riding in it. I believe I may, without being deemed cenforious, affert, that there are fome who ride in their carriages, who cannot reflect on the means by which they were acquired with an equal degree of fatisfaction to that experienced by,

Dear Friend,

Yours.

LETTER

LETTER XXXVII.

BOOKS, of all earthly things my chief delight;
My exercife by day, and dreams by night;
Difpaffion'd mafters, friends without deceit,
Who flatter not; companions ever fweet;
With whom I'm always cheerful, from whom rife,
Improv'd and better, if not good and wife;
Grave, faithful counfellors, who all excite,
Inftruct, and ftrengthen to behave aright;
Admonifh us, when fortune makes her Court,
And when the's abfent, folace and fupport.
Happy the man to whom ye are well known.
'Tis his own fault if ever he's alone."

ANONYMOUS.

367

DEAR FRIEND,

IT has been afked, times innumerable, how I acquired any tolerable degree of knowledge, fo as to enable me to form any ideas of the merits or demerits of books; or how I became fufficiently acquainted with the prices that books were commonly fold for, fo as to be able to buy and fell; particularly books in the learned and and foreign languages. Many have thought that from the beginning I always kept fhopmen to furnish me with instructions necessary to carry on my bufinefs; but you and all my old friends and acquaintances well know that not to have been the cafe ; as for the first thirteen years after I became a bookfeller, I never had one fhopman who knew any thing of the worth of books, or how to write a fingle page of a catalogue properly, much lefs to compile the whole. I always wrote them myfelf, fo long as my health would permit : Indeed I continued the practice for years after my health was much impaired by too conftant an application to that and reading; and when I was at laft obliged to give up writing them, I for feveral catalogues flood by and dictated to others; even to the prefent time I take fome little part in their compilation; and as I ever did, I still continue to fix the price to every book that is fold in my fhop, except fuch articles as are both bought and fold again while I am out of town. I have now many affiftants in my shop, fhop, who buy, fell, and in fhort transact the major part of my business.

369

As to the little knowledge of literature I poffefs, it was acquired by dint of application. In the beginning I attached myfelf very closely to the fludy of divinity and moral philosophy, fo that I became tolerably acquainted with all the points controverted between the divines; after having read the great champions for christianity, I next read the works of Toulmin, Lord Herbert, Tindal, Chubb, Morgan, Collins, Hammond, Woolfton, Annet, Mandeville, Shaftefbury, D'Argens, Bolingbroke, Williams, Helvetius, Voltaire, and many other free-thinkers. I have also read most of our English poets, and the beft translations of the Greek, Latin, Italian and French poets; nor did Iomit to read Hiftory, Voyages, Travels, Natural Hiftory, Biography, &c. At one time I had a ftrong inclination to learn French, but as foon as I was enabled to make out and abridge titlepages, fo as to infert them right in my cata-Vo os, herostin logues.

370

logues, I left off for what appeared to me more pleafing as well as more neceffary purfuits; reflecting that as I began fo late in life, and had probably but a very fhort period to live, (and I paid fome regard to what Helvetius has afferted, viz. that " No man acquires any new ideas after he is forty-five years of age.") I had no time to befow on the attainment of languages. I therefore contented myfelf with reading all the tranflations of the claffics, and inferting the originals in my Catalogues as well as I could; and when fometimes I happened to put the Genitive or Dative cafe instead of the Nominative or Acculative, my customers kindly confidered this as a venial fault, which they readily pardoned, and bought the books notwithstanding.

As I have indefatigably used my best endeavours to acquire knowledge, I. never thought I had the smallest reason to be assumed on account of my deficiency, especially as I never made pretensions to erudition, or affected to posses what I knew I was was deficient in. Dr. Young's couplet, you will therefore think equally applicable to many others as well as myfelf :

" Unlearned men of books affume the care,

" As eunuchs are the guardians of the fair."

Love of Fame.

371

I had like to have forgot to inform you, that I have also read most of our best plays, and am fo fond of the Theatre, that in the winter feafon I have often been at Drury-Lane or Covent-Garden four or five evenings in a week. Another great fource of amufement as well as knowledge, I have met with in reading almost all the best novels ; by the best, I mean those written by Cervantes, Fielding, Smollet, Richardson, Miss Burney, Voltaire, Sterne, Le Sage, Goldsmith, and fome others. And I have often thought, with Fielding, that fome of those publications have given us a more genuine hiftory of Man, in what are called Romances, than is fometimes to be found under the more respectable titles of History, Biography, &c.

Y 2

In

Digitized by Google

In order to obtain fome ideas in Aftronomy, Geography, Electricity, Pneumatics, &c. I attended a few lectures given by the late eminent Mr. Fergufon, the prefent very ingenious Mr. Walker, and others; and for fome time feveral gentlemen fpent two or three evenings in a week at my houfe, for the purpofe of improvement in fcience. At these meetings we made the best use of our time with globes, telescopes, microscopes, electrical machines, air pumps, air guns, a good bottle of wine, and other philosophical inftruments—

The mention of which revives in my memory the lofs I fuftained by the premature death of a worthy philofophical friend, whom you have met, when you occafionally did us the honor of making one of the evening party, and benefiting us by your inftructions. I could fay much in his praife, but fhall forbear, as another friend, who was alfo one of this (I may truly fay) rational affembly has composed what I think a juft character of him, free from that fulfome panegyric

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google 19:57 GMT Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitr

panegyric which too often degrades those it is meant to celebrate, and conveys to all who knew the parties, the idea of having been defigned as a burlesque instead of an encomium; however, as you may not have feen it (though in print) and it will engross but a very little of your time to peruse, I shall here beg leave to infert it.

" On Sunday, May 24, 1789, died at his " house in Worship-street, Moorfields, aged " 50, Mr. Ralph Tinley; one who had not " dignity of birth or elevated rank in life to " boaft of, but who poffeffed what is far fu-" perior to either, a folid understanding, " amiable manners, a due fense of religion, " and an industrious disposition. Inftead of " riches, Providence bleffed him with a good " fhare of health, and a mind contented with " an humble fituation. Those hours which " he could fpare from a proper attention to " the duties of a hufband and a father, and " manual labour as a fhoemaker, were incef-" fantly employed in the improvement of <sup>66</sup> his mind in various branches of fcience; " in Y 3

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 hid on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.har http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Pennsylvania on Generated at University of Penns Public Domain, Google-digitized

Digitized by Google

Original from UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN

373

" in many of which he attained a profici-" ency, totally divefted of that affectation of " fuperiority which little minds affume. " Thefe qualities rendered him refpected by " all who knew him, as an intelligent man, " and a most agreeable companion. Among " other acquifitions, ENTOMOLOGY was his " peculiar delight. Thus far the prospect is " pleafing. It is a painful talk to add, that " this amiable perfon fell a victim to an un-" happy error in taking a medicine. The " evening previous to his decease he fpent in " a philosophical society, of which he had " many years been a member, and where " his attendance had been conftant; but " finding himfelf indifpofed, he in the " morning early had recourfe to a phial of " antimonial wine, which had long been in " his poffeffion, and of which only a fmall " part remained. This, most unfortunately ! " he fwallowed; and it having by long ma-" ceration, acquired an extraordinary degree " of ftrength, and being rendered turbid by " mixing with the metallic particles, it pro-" duced

/ https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/ac

375

" duced the effect of a violent poifon, occa-" fioning almost inftantaneous death. May " his fate prove a warning to others to be " careful how they venture to confide in " their own judgment in fo intricate a fcience " as medicine !—His valuable cabinet of in-" fects, both foreign and domestic, supposed " to be one of the completest (of a private " collection) in the kingdom, all scientifi-" cally arranged with peculiar neatness, and " in the finest prefervation, will (if it falls " into proper hands,) remain a monument of " his knowledge and application."—But to proceed.

I cannot help regretting the difadvantages I labor under by having been deprived of the benefits of an early education, as it is a lofs that can fcarcely be repaired, in any fituation. How much more difficult then was it for me to attain any degree of proficiency, when involved in the concerns of a large bufinefs ?

Without a genius learning foars in vain,
And without learning, genius finks again;
Their force united, crowns the fprightly reign."
ELPHINSTON'S Horace.
Y 4

376

The inftructions that I received from men and books were often like the feeds fown among thorns, the cares of the world choked them. So that although I understand a little of many branches of literature, yet my knowledge is, after all, I freely confefs, but fuperficial; which indeed I need not have told you. However, fuperficial as it is, it not only affords me an endlefs fource of pleafure, but it has been of very great use to me in bufinefs, as it enabled me to put a value on thousands of articles, before I knew what fuch books were commonly fold at : 'tis true I was fometimes miftaken, and have fold a very great number of different articles much lower than I ought, even on my own plan of felling very cheap, yet that never gave me the fmalleft concern; But if I difcovered that I had (as fometimes was the cafe) fold any articles too dear, it gave me much uneafinefs; for whether I had any other motives I will leave to fuch as are acquainted with me to determine, but I reafoned thus; If I fell a book too dear, I perhaps lofe that cuftomer

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT Google-digitized Domain,

377

cuftomer and his friends for ever, but if I fell articles confiderably under their real value, the purchafer will come again and recommend my fhop to his acquaintances, fo that from the principles of felf-intereft I would fell cheap; I always was inclined to reafon in this manner, and nine years fince a very triffing circumstance operated much upon my mind and fully convinced me my judgment was right on that head. Mrs. Lackington had bought a piece of linen to make me fome fhirts ; when the linen-draper's man brought it into my fhop, three ladies were prefent, and on feeing the cloth opened, afked Mrs. L. what it coft per yard ; on being told the price, they all faid it was very cheap, and each lady went and purchafed the fame quantity, to make fhirts for their hufbands, those pieces were again difplayed to their acquaintances, fo that the linen-draper got a deal of cuftom from that very circumstance; and I refolved to do likewife. However trifling this anecdote may appear, you will pardon me for introducing ducing it, when you reflect that it was productive of very beneficial confequences, and that many great effects have arisen from as trivial caufes. We are even told that Sir Ifaac Newton would probably never have studied the system of gravitation had he not been under an apple tree, when fome of the fruit loofened from the branches and fell to the earth, and it was the question of a fimple gardener that led Galileo to ftudy and discover the weight of the air.

with the high I am,

andward study o

Dear Friend,

A WALL AND A VIEW DALD STUDIES SHA

Yours.

113-225-53

LETTER

/ https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124

http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/ac

LETTER XXXVIII.

" Like England only, and its tafte applaud.

" Strife still fubfist, which yields the better gout ;

" Books or the world, the many or the few.

" True taile to me is by this touchftone known,

" That's always beft that's nearest to my own."

Man of Tafte,

DEAR FRIEND,

T has been long fince remarked, that a perfon may be well acquainted with books, or in other words, may be a very learned man, and yet remain almost totally ignorant of men and manners, as Mallet remarks of a famous divine;

" While Bentley, long to wrangling fchools confin'd,

" And but by books acquainted with mankind,

" Dares, in the fulnefs of the pedant's pride,

Tho' no judge decide."

Verbal Criticifm,

Hence many fine chimerical fystems of law, government, &c. have been spun out of 280

of the prolific brains of the learned, which have only ferved to amufe others as learned and as unacquainted with mankind as the authors, and have frequently produced a number of remarks, replies, obfervations, fevere (not to fay fcurrilous) criticifms, and new fyftems and hypothefes; thefe again gave birth to frefh remarks, rejoinders, &c. ad—(infinitum, I was going to fay—but I beg pardon, having promifed to give you no more Latin.) Thefe learned men, after tiring themfelves and the public, have generally left them juft as wife on the fubject as when they began, nay often

" From the fame hand how various is the page?

" What civil war their brother pamphlets rage?

" Tracts battle tracts, felf-contradictions glare."

YOUNG.

The reading and fludying of Hiftory, Voyages, Travels, &c. will no doubt contribute much to that kind of knowledge, but will not alone be fufficient. In order to become a proficient in that useful branch of knowledge, knowledge, "MAN KNOW THYSELF !" was a precept of the antient philosophers. But I can fcarce think it poffible for any man to be well acquainted with himfelf, without his poffeffing a tolerable degree of knowledge of the reft of mankind. In the former part of my life I faw a deal of what is called low life, and became acquainted with the cuftoms, manners, difpolitions, prejudices, &c. of the labouring part of the community, in various cities, towns, and villages; for years paft, I have fpent fome of my leifure hours among that class of people who are called opulent or genteel tradefmen; nor have I been totally excluded from higher circles; but among all the fchools where the knowledge of mankind is to be acquired, I know of none equal to that of a bookfeller's shop, especially if the master is of an inquisitive and communicative turn, and is in a confiderable line of bufinefs; His fhop will then be a place of refort for men, women, and children, of various nations, and more of various capacities, difpofitions, &c.

To

38r

Digitized by Google

Original from UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN

To adduce a few inftances by way of illuftration :- Here you may find an old bawd inquiring for "The Counters of Huntingdon's Hymn-book ; an old worn-out rake, for "Harris's Lift of Covent-garden Ladies;" fimple Simon, for " the Art of writing Loveletters;" and my lady's maid, for " Ovid's Art of Love;" a doubting Christian, for "The Crumbs of Comfort;" and a practical Antinomian, for " Eton's Honeycomb of Free Justification ;" the pious Church-woman, for " the Week's Preparation ;" and the Atheift, for "Hammond's Letter to Dr. Prieftley;" the Mathematician, for " Sanderfon's Fluxions;" and the Beau, for "The Toilet of Flora ;" the Courtier, for " Machiavel's Prince," or "Burke on the Revolution in France ;" and a Republican, for " Paine's Rights of Man;" the tap-room Politician, wants " The Hiftory of Wat Tyler," or of "The Fifherman of Naples;" and an old Chelfea Penfioner, calls for " The Hiftory of the Wars of glorious Queen Anne;" the Critic calls for "Bayle's Historical Dictionary -Blair's

383

-Blair's Lectures-Johnson's Lives of the Poets, and the laft month's reviews ;" and my Barber wants " the Seffions Paper," or " the Trial of John the Painter :" the Free-Thinker alks for "Hume's Effays, and the young Student, for " Leland's View of Deiftical writers;" the Fortune-teller wants "Salmon's Soul of Aftrology," or "Sanderfon's Secrets of Palmiftry;" and the Sceptic wants " Cornelius Agrippa's Vanity of the Arts and Sciences;" an old hardened finner, wants " Bunyan's Good News for the vileft of men;" and a moral Christian wants " The whole Duty of Man;" the Roman Catholic wants " The Lives of the Saints ;" the Protestant wants " Fox's Book of Martyrs;" one afks for "An Account of Animal . Magnetifm;" another for "The victorious Philosopher's Stone discover'd; one wants " The Death of Abel;" another defires to have " The Spanish Rogue ;" one wants an " Ecclefiaftical Hiftory;" another, " The Tyburn Chronicle ;" one wants " Johnfon's Lives

384

Lives of the Highwaymen;" another wants "Gibbons's Lives of pious Women;" Mifs W——h calls for "Euclid in Greek;" and a young divine for "Juliet Grenville, a novel;" whilft the venerable philosopher,

> " Drinks large draughts of the Pyrenean fpring, " And likes a tafte of every THING."

But it would be an endlefs tafk to fet down the various and oppofite articles that are conftantly called for in my fhop. To talk to thefe different purfuers after happinefs, or amufement, has given me much pleafure, and afforded me fome knowledge of mankind, and alfo of books: and to hear the debates that frequently occur between the different purchafers is a fine amufement; fo that I have fometimes compared my fhop to a ftage. And I affure you that a variety of characters, ftrongly mark'd conftantly made their appearance.

Would my health permit my conftant attendance, I should prefer it, to every thing in life (reading excepted) and you may recollect lect that for fome years I fought no other amufement whatever.

385

Having been long habituated to make remarks on whatever I faw or heard, is another reafon why I have fucceeded fo well in my bufinefs. I have for the last feven years fucceffively told my acquaintances before the year began, how much money I should take in the course of it, without once failing of taking the fum mentioned. I formed my judgment by observing what kind of flock in trade I had in hand, and by confidering how that flock was adapted to the different taftes and purfuits of the times ; in doing this I was obliged to be pretty well informed of the state of politics in Europe, as I have always found that bookfelling is much affected by the political state of affairs. For as mankind are in fearch of amufement, they often take the first that offers; fo that if there is any thing in the news-papers of confequence, that draws many to the coffee-house, where they chat away the evenings, inftead of vifiting the shops of bookfellers (as they ought to do, no Z doubt)

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.hav Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

386

doubt) or reading at home. The beft time for bookfelling, is when there is no kind of news ftirring; then many of thofe who for months would have done nothing but talk of war or peace, revolutions, and counter-revolutions, &c. &c. for want of other amufement will have recourfe to books; fo that I have often experienced that the report of a war, or the tryal of a great man, or indeed any fubject that attracts the public attention, has been fome hundreds of pounds out of my pocket in a few weeks.

Before I conclude this letter, I cannot help obferving, that the fale of books in general has increafed prodigioufly within the laft twenty years. According to the beft effimation I have been able to make, I fuppofe that more than four times the number of books are fold now than were fold twenty years fince. The poorer fort of farmers, and even the poor country people in general, who before that period fpent their winter evenings in relating ftories of witches, ghofts, hobgoblins, &c. now fhorten the winter nights by hearing their their fons and daughters read tales, romances, &c. and on entering their houfes, you may fee Tom Jones, Roderick Random, and other entertaining books fluck up on their bacon racks, &c. If John goes to town with a load of hay, he is charged to be fure not to forget to bring home "Peregrine Pickle's adventures;" and when Dolly is fent to market to fell her eggs, fhe is commiffioned to purchafe "The hiftory of Pamela Andrews." In fhort all ranks and degrees now READ. But the moft rapid increafe of the fale of books has been fince the termination of the late war.

A number of book-clubs are alfo formed in every part of England, where each member fubferibes a certain fum quarterly to purchafe books; in fome of thefe clubs the books after they have been read by all the fubferibers, are fold among them to the higheft bidders, and the money produced by fuch fale, is expended in fresh purchafes, by which prudent and judicious mode, each member has it in his power to become poffeffed of the work of any particular author he may judge deferving a fuperior degree of attention; and the members at large enjoy the advantage of a continual fucceffion of different publications, inftead of being reftricted to a repeated perufal of the fame authors; which muft have been the cafe with many if fo rational a plan had not been adopted.

22

his

387

I am informed that when circulating libraries were first opened, the bookfellers were much alarmed, and their rapid increase added to their fears, and led them to think that the fale of books would be much diminished by fuch libraries. But experience has proved that the fale of books, so far from being diminished by them, has been greatly promoted, as from those repositories, many thousfand families have been cheaply supplied with books, by which the taste for reading has become much more general, and thoufands of books are purchased every year, by fuch as have first borrowed them at those libraries, https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google GMT 19:57 Pennsylvania at University of Penn main, Google-digitized Generated at Un Public Domain, libraries, and after reading, approving of them, become purchasers.

The Sunday-Schools are foreading very faft in most parts of England, which will accelerate the diffusion of knowledge among the lower claffes of the community, and in a very few years exceedingly increase the fale of books.—Here permit me earnessly to call on every honess bookfeller (I trust my call will not be in vain) as well as on every friend to the extension of knowledge, to unite (as you I am confident will) in a hearty AMEN.

Let fuch as doubt whether the enlightening of the understandings of the lower orders of fociety, makes them happier, or be of any utility to a state, read the following lines (particularly the last twelve) by Dr. Goldsmith, taken from his Traveller.

- " Thefe are the charms to barren ftates affign'd,
- " Their wants are few, their wifhes all confin'd;
- " Yet let them only fhare the praifes due,
- " If few their wants, their pleafures are but few ;
- " Since every want that ftimulates the breaft,
- " Becomes a fource of pleafure when redreft. -

Z 3

" Hence

389

inia on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Pennsylvania on Generated at University of Penns Public Domain, Google-digitized

Digitized by Google

" Hence from fuch lands each pleafing fcience flies,

" That first excites defires, and then supplies.

390

" Unknown to them, when fenfual pleafures cloy,

" To fill the languid paufe with finer joy ;

" Unknown those powers that raise the foul to flame,

" Catch every nerve, and vibrates thro' the frame;

" Their level life is but a mould'ring fire,

" Nor quench'd by want, nor fann'd by ftrong defire ;

" Unfit for raptures, or if raptures cheer,

" On fome high festival of once a year,

" In wild excess the vulgar breaft takes fire,

" 'Till buried in debauch, the blifs expire.

" But not their joys alone thus coarfely flow,

" Their morals, like their pleafures, are but low :

" Nor, as refinement ftops, from fire to fon,

" Unalter'd, unimprov'd their manners run;

" And love's and friendship's finely pointed dart

" Fall blunted from each indurated heart ;

" Some sterner virtues o'er the mountain's breast,

" May fit like falcons low'ring on the neft,

" But all the gentler morals, fuch as play

" Thro' life's more cultivated walks, and charm our way;

" Thefe far difpers'd, on timorous pinions fly,

" To fport and flutter in a kinder fky."

It is worth remarking that the introducing hiftories, romances, ftories, poems, &c. into fchools, has been a very great means of diffufing a general tafte for reading among all ranks ranks of people, while in fchools, the children only read the bible (which was the cafe in many fchools a few years ago) children then did not make fo early a progrefs in reading as they have fince, they have been pleafed and entertained as well as inftructed; and this relifh for books, in many will laft as long as life.

I am,

Jeel nomens

5 103

Dear Friend,

ocise by what means I have been make good all my payments :

ett ding Mooft

Z4

Digitized by Google

Yours.

ER

she trace

391

LETTER XXXIX.

" Happy the man that has each fortune try'd,

" To whom the much has given, much deny'd,

" With abstinence all delicates he fees,

" And can regale himfelf with toast and cheefe."

Art of Cookery.

" One folid difh his week-day meals affords,

" And added Pudding confectates the Lord's."

Line!

DEAR FRIEND,

392

HE Public at large, and bookfellers in particular, have beheld my increasing flock with the utmost aftonishment, they being entirely at a loss to conceive by what means I have been enabled to make good all my payments; and for feveral years, in the beginning of my business, fome of the trade repeatedly afferted, that it was totally impossible that I could continue to pay for the large numbers of books that I continually purchased; and ten years fince, being induced to take a journey into my own country, with a view to the restoration of

Digitized by Google

my

393

my health, which had been materially injured by intenfe application to cataloguemaking, too much reading, &c. during the fix weeks that I retired into the weft, Mrs. Lackington was perpetually interrogated refpecting the time that I was expected to return. This was done in fuch a manner as evidently fhewed that many thought I never intended to return at all. But how great was their furprize, when as a prelude to my return, I fent home feveral waggon loads of books which I had purchafed in the country.

As I never had any part of the mifer in my composition, I always proportioned my expences according to my profits; that is, I have for many years expended two thirds of the profits of my trade; which proportion of expenditure I never exceeded. If you will please to refer to Dr. Johnson's "Idler" for " the progress of Ned Drugget," you will there see much of the progress of your humble fervant depicted. Like Ned, in the peginning I opened and shut my own shop, and and welcomed a friend by a fhake of the hand. About a year after, I beckoned acrofs the way for a pot of good porter. A few years after that, I fometimes invited my friends to dinner, and provided them a roafted fillet of veal; in a progreffive courfe the ham was introduced, and a pudding was the next addition made to the feaft. For fome time a glafs of brandy and water was a luxury; a glafs of Mr. Beaufoy's raifin wine fucceeded; and as foon as two thirds of my profits enabled me to afford good red port, it immediately appeared: nor was fherry long behind.

- " Wine whets the wit, improves its native force,
- " And gives a pleafing flavour to difcourfe,
- " By making all our fpirits debonair,
- " Throws off the fears, the fedement of care."

My country lodging by regular gradation was transformed into a country boufe; and the inconveniences attending a flage coach were remedied by a chariot. For four years, Upper Holloway was to me an elyfum; then Surry appeared unqueftionably the moft beautiful county county in England, and Merton the moft rural village in Surry. So now Merton is felected as the feat of occasional philosophical retirement.

- " Here on a fingle plank thrown fafe ashore,
- " I hear the tumult of the diftant throng,
- " As that of feas remote or dying ftorms.
- " Here like a fhepherd gazing from his hut,
- " Touching his reed, or leaning on his ftaff,
- " Eager ambition's fiery chace I fee;
- " I fee the circling hunt of noify men,
- " Burft law's inclosure, leap the mounds of right,
- " Purfuing and purfu'd, each other's prey."

Young.

395

• But I affure you, my dear friend, that in every ftep of my progrefs, envy and malevolence has purfued me clofe.

When by the advice of that eminent phyfician, Dr. Lettfom, I purchafed a horfe and faved my life by the exercise it afforded me, the old adage, "Set a beggar on horfeback and he'll ride to the devil," was deemed fully verified; but when Mrs. Lackington mounted another, "they were very forry to fee people fo young in bufines run on at fo great great a rate !" The occafional relaxation which we enjoyed in the country was cenfured as an abominable piece of pride; but when the carriage and fervants in livery appeared, "they would not be the first to hurt a foolish tradesman's character; but if (as was but too probable) the docket was not already struck, the gazette would foon settle that point."

396

" Bafe Envy withers at another's joy,

" And hates that excellence it cannot reach."

THOMPSON.

But I have been lately informed that thefe good natured and compaffionate people have for fome time found it neceffary to alter their ftory. It feems that at laft they have difcovered the fecret fprings from whence I drew my wealth; however they do not quite agree in their accounts, for although fome can tell you the very number of my fortunate lottery ticket, others are as politive that I found bank-notes in an old book, to the amount of many thousand pounds, and if they pleafe, can even tell you the title of the very fortunate tunate old book that contained this treafure. But you fhall receive it from me, which you will deem authority to the full as unexceptionable, I affure you then upon my honour that I found the whole of what I am poffeffed of, in—SMALL PROFITS, bound by INDUSTRY, and classed by OECONOMY.

397

Read this, ye covetous wretches, in all trades, who when you get a good cuftomer are for making the moft of him ! But if you have neither honour nor honefty, you fhould at least posses a little common sense. Reflect on the many cuftomers that your over-charges have already driven from your shops ! do you think that you can find cuftomers enough fo deficient in penetration as not to difcover your characters ? no fuch thing. Your exorbitant charges are a general fubject of conversation and diflike : you cannot with confidence look your own cuftomers in the face, as you are confcious of your meannefs and imposition, and your fordid difposition is evidently the reafon, that fome gentlemen are led to look with contempt and difdain on tradefmen. But

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.har tized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Generated at University of Penns Public Domain, Google-digitized

398

But when men in trade are men of honour, they will in general be treated as fuch; and were it otherwife,

POPE.

" One felf-approving hour whole years outweighs,

- " Of thupid ftarers, and of loud huzzas :
- " And more true joy Marcellus exil'd feels,
- " Than Cæfar with a fenate at his heels."

I pity from my foul many poor wretches which I observe bartering away their conftitutions, and what few liberal fentiments they may poffels; rifing early and fitting up late, exerting all the powers of body and mind, to get what they call a competency, no matter by what means this is effected; thousands actually deftroy themfelves in accomplishing their grand defign : others, live to obtain the long-wifhed for country retreat. But, alas ! the promifed happiness is as far from them as ever, often farther. The bufy buftling fcene of bufinefs being over, a vacuity in the mind takes place, fpleen and vapors fucceed, which encrease bodily infirmities, death stares them in the face. The mean dirty ways by which much of their wealth has been obtained make retrofpect

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google 19:57 GMT Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 Google-digitized Generated at University Domain, retrospect reflections intolerable. Philosophy stands aloof, nor ever deigns to visit the fordid soul. Gardens and pleasure grounds become dreary deferts; the miserable posfessions linger out a wretched existence, or put a period to it with a halter or pistol.

399

" Were this not common would it not be ftrange? " That 'tis fo common, this is ftranger ftill."

The profits of my bufinefs the prefent year 1791, (as near as can be computed before the expiration of it) will amount to FOUR THOUSAND POUNDS. What it will increase to I know not; but if my health will permit me to carry it on a few years longer, there is very great probability, confidering the rapid increafe which each fucceeding year has produced, that the profits will be double what they now are; for I here pledge my reputation as a tradefman, never to deviate from my old plan of giving as much for libraries as it is poffible for a tradefman to give, and felling them and new publications alfo, for the fame SMALL PROFITS that have been attended with fuch aftonishing fuccess for for fome years paft. And I hope that my affiftants will also perfevere in that attentive obliging mode of conduct which has so long diftinguished No. 46 and 47, Chiswell-street, Moorfields; confcious, that should I ever be weak enough to adopt an opposite line of conduct, or permit those who act under my direction so to do, I should no longer meet with the very extraordinary encouragement and support which I have hitherto experienced; neither should I have the sperienced; neither specification specification specification specification is not a continuance of it under specification specif

400

ils ganabil I am, tilidadara marginerar

the Carry of an a Taw years longer there

Dear Friend,

Yours.

LETTER

Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

Digitized by Google

LETTER XL.

" But by your revenue measure your expence,

the of the finishes is the every and

" And to your funds and acres join your fenfe."

Young's Love of Fame.

401

" Learn what thou ow'ft thy country and thy friend,

" What's requifite to fpare, and what to fpend."

DRYDEN's Perfius.

DEAR FRIEND,

HE open manner of flating my profits will no doubt appear ftrange to many who are not acquainted with my fingular conduct in that and other refpects. But you, Sir, know that I have for fourteen years paft kept a ftrict account of my profits. Every book in my poffeffion, before it is offered to fale is marked with a private mark, what it coft me, and with a public mark of what it is to be fold for; and every article, whether the price is fix-pence or fixty pounds, is entered in a day-book as it is fold, with the price it coft and the money it fold for: and each night the profits of the day are caft

A a

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT Google-digitized Generated at University Public Domain, Google-di

Digitized by Google

up

up by one of my fhopmen, as every one of them understands my private marks. Every Saturday night the profits of the week are added together and mentioned before all my shopmen, &c. the week's profits, and also the expences of the week are then entered one opposite the other, in a book kept for the purpofe: the whole fum taken in the week is alfo fet down, and the fum that has been paid for books bought. Thefe accounts are kept publickly in my fhop, and ever have been fo, as I never faw any reason for concealing them, nor was ever jealous of any of my men's profiting by my example and taking away any of my bufinefs, as I always found that fuch of them as did fet up for themfelves came to my fhop and purchafed to the amount of ten times more than they hindered me from felling. By keeping an account of my profits, and alfo of my expences, I have always known how to regulate the latter by the former; and I have done that, without the trifling way of fetting down a halfpenny-worth of matches, or a penny

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.hau tized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Generated at University of Penns Public Domain, Google-digitized

403

a penny for a turnpike. I have one perfon in the fhop whofe conftant employment it is to receive all the cafh, and difcharge all bills that are brought for payment, and if Mrs. Lackington wants money for houfe-keeping, &c. or if I want money for bobbyhorfes, &c. we take five or ten guineas, pocket it, and fet down the fum taken out of trade as expended; when that is gone we repeat our application, but never take the trouble of fetting down the items. But fuch of my fervants as are entrufted to lay out money are always obliged to give in their accounts to fhew how each fum has been expended.

It may not be improper here to take a little notice of fome very late infinuations of my old envious friends. It has been fuggefted that I am now grown immenfely ricb, and that having already more property than I can reafonably expect to live to expend, and no young family to provide for, I for thefe reafons ought to decline my bufinefs, and no longer engrofs trade to myfelf that A a 2 ought ought to be divided into a number of channels, and thus fupport many families. In anfwer to which I will obferve, that fome of thefe objectors were in trade before me, and when I firft embarked in the profession of a bookfeller, despised me for my mean beginning. When afterwards I adopted my plan of felling cheap, and for ready-money only, they made themselves very merry at my expence, for expecting to fucceed by fo ridiculous a project, (as they in their confummate wisdom were pleased to term it) and predestined my ruin, fo that no doubt I ought to comply with any thing they defire, however unreasonable it may appear to me.

To deny that I have a competence, would be unpardonable ingratitude to the public, to go no higher ;

" I want but little; nor that little long."

But to infinuate that I am getting money for no good purpofe, is falfe and invidious. The great apoftle St. Paul, who was an humble follower of CHRIST, thought that he might be permitted to boaft of himfelf a little ;

/ https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google GMT ted at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57
Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.or Generated at Public Domain

405

tle; after which I fuppofe it will not be thought very prefumptuous in me, if I should state a few facts, merely to justify my conduct in carrying on my trade beyond the time that certain perfons would prefcribe to me.

It is now about five years fince I began to entertain ferious thoughts of going out of bufinefs on account of the bad ftate of health which both Mrs. Lackington and myfelf have laboured under; but it was then fuggested by feveral of my friends, that as I had about fifty poor relations, a great number of whom are children, others are old and nearly helplefs, and that all had juftly formed fome expectations from me : therefore to give up fuch a trade as I was in poffession of, before I was abfolutely obliged to do it, would be a kind of injustice to those whom by the ties of blood I was in fome measure bound to relieve and protect. These and other confiderations induced me to wave the thoughts of precipitating myfelf out of fo extensive and lucrative a bufinefs; and in the mean time time I apply a part of the profits of it to maintain my good old mother, who is alive at Wellington in Somerfetfhire, her native place. I have two aged men and one aged woman, whom I fupport : and I have alfo four children to maintain and educate, three of thefe children have loft their father, and alfo their mother, (who was my fifter) the other child has both his parents living, but they are poor; many others of my relations are in the fame circumftances, and ftand in need of my affiftance.

Aa 3

- " If e'er I've mourn'd my humble, lowly flate,
  - " If e'er I've bow'd my knee at fortune's fhrine,

" If e'er a wish escap'd me to be great,

" The fervent prayer humanity was thine.

" Perifh the man who hears the piteous tale

" Unmov'd, to whom the heart-felt glow's unknown ;

" On whom the widow's plaints could ne'er prevail,

" Nor made the injur'd wretches caufe his own.

" How little knows he the extatic joy,

" The thrilling blifs of cheering wan defpair !

" How little knows the pleafing warm employ, " That calls the grateful tribute of a tear.

" The fplendid dome, the vaulted rock to rear,

" The glare of pride and pomp, be, grandeur, thine !

" To wipe from mifery's eye the wailing tear,

" And foothe the oppreffed orphan's woe, be mine."

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/ac

Digitized by Google

It

407

It has also been frequently faid, that by felling my books very cheap, I have materially injured other bookfellers both in town and country. But I still deny the charge : and here I will first observe, that I have as just a reason to complain of them for giving credit, as they can have for my felling cheap and giving no credit; as it is well known that there are many thousands of people every where to be found who will decline purchafing at a fhop where credit is denied, when they can find fhopkeepers enough who will readily give it; and as I frequently lofe cuftomers who having always been accuftomed to have credit, will not take the trouble to pay for every article as fent home; thefe of courfe deal at those shops who follow the old mode of bufinefs; fo that in fuch cafes, I might fay to the proprietors of these shops, ' You ought not to give any perfon credit : ' becaufe by fo doing you are taking cuf-' tomers from me.' As to my burting the trade by felling cheap, they are, upon the whole mistaken; for although no doubt Aa4 fome fome inftances will occur, in which they may obferve that the preference is given to my fhop, and the books purchafed of me on account of their being cheap, they never confider how many books they difpofe of on the very fame account. As, however, this may appear rather paradoxical, I will explain my meaning farther :

Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

I now fell more than one hundred thoufand volumes annually; many who purchafe part of these, do so folely on account of their cheapnefs; many thoufands of thefe books would have been deftroyed, as I have before remarked, but for my felling them on those very moderate terms; now when thousands of these articles are fold, they become known by being handed about in various circles of acquaintances, many of whom wifhing to be poffeffed of the fame books without enquiring the price of their friends, step into the first bookfeller's shop, and give their orders for articles which they never would have heard of, had not I, by felling them cheap, been the original caufe of their being difperfed abroad ;

abroad; fo that by means of the plan purfued in my thop, whole editions of books are fold off, and new editions printed of the works of authors, who but for that circumftance would have been fcarce noticed at all.

But (fay they) you not only fell fuch books cheap, as are but little known, but you even fell a great deal under price the very firft-rate articles however well they may be known, or however highly they may be thought of by the literary world. I acknowledge the charge, and again repeat that as I do not give any credit, I really ought to do fo, and I may add, that in fome meafure I am obliged to do it; for who would come out of their way to Chifwellftreet to pay me the fame price in ready money, as they night purchafe for at the firft fhop they came to, and have credit alfo.

And although first-rate authors are very well known, yet I well know that by felling them cheaper than others, many are purchafed of me that never would have been purchafed purchafed at the full price, and every book that is fold tends to fpread the fame of the author, and rapidly extends the fale, and as I before remarked, fends more cuftomers to other fhops as well as to my own.

409

410

I could relate much more on this fubject, but will not unneceffarily take up your time, as I truft what is here advanced will convey full conviction to your mind, and as I believe it is univerfally known and allowed that no man ever promoted the fale of books in an equal degree, with,

Dear Friend,

Digitized by Google

Yours,

LETTER

LETTER XLI.

" — This is a traveller, Sir; knows men and manners; and has plough'd up fea fo far, 'till both the poles have knock'd; has feen the fun take coach, and can diffinguish the colour of his horfes, and their kinds, and had a Flanders mare leap'd there,"

BEAUMONT and FLETCHER's Scornful Lady.

411

DEAR FRIEND,

AMONGST the variety of occurrences with which I have endeavoured to entertain you, perhaps not all equally interefting (and the most material of them, I am duly fenfible, not entitling me to the claim of being efteemed a writer poffeffed of the very first abilities this age or nation has produced,) I recollect my not yet having given you an account of my principal TRA-Poffibly you might very readily par-VELS. don that omiffion, as from what has already appeared it must be evident, the engagements which from time to time have fully engroffed my attention, have not furnished me with

412

with any opportunity of making the tour of Europe, or tracing the fource of the river Nile, much lefs circumnavigating the globe. And even fuppoling I had been poffeffed both of the time and inclination for fuch extensive undertakings, the difadvantages which I labour under for want of having received a proper education, would have difqualified me from making fuch remarks and obfervations as naturally prefent themfelves to those who have been fortunate enough to poffefs that advantage, and of courfe are qualified to. prefent the world with a variety of fubjects equally curious and inftructive : 'though it is not without reluctance I think it neceffary here to observe, that some of these gentlemen, not content with giving a true account of what actually occurred to them, and fuppofing that plain matter of fact would not be fufficiently interesting to excite that fuperior degree of attention and admiration which they were ambitious as authors to acquire, they have thought proper to intermix fo much of the marvellous into their narrations, https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google GMT 19:57 Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 at University of Penns main, Google-digitized Generated at Un Public Domain,

Digitized by Google

as

413

as has been the occasion of many perfons reading them with fuch diffidence, as to doubt the truth of many relations, which though really firictly confiftent with veracity, yet being novel and uncommon, they were unwilling to credit, left they should incur the cenfure of being poffeffed of a fuperior degree of weakness and credulity. This I am alfo confident has induced many a modeft author to omit paffages, which though really true, he was cautious of publifhing, from a fear of being fubjected to the fame fevere animadverfions, or what is ftill worfe, being fuspected of wilfully imposing on his readers. Recent inftances of which, were it neceffary, I could adduce; but I shall proceed with cautioning you from being alarmed left I should fall into either of these errors; nothing very marvellous will occur in what I mean to prefent you with; though I fhall not be intimidated from relating real facts, from the apprehension of not being credited. As an additional recommendation. (no doubt) the hiftory of my travels will be inter-

Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

414

intersperfed with such remarks on men and manners as have prefented themfelves to me during my peregrinations; and this I previoufly warn you, will be done in my " accuftomed defultory manner," from which as Mr. Pennant fays in his-" Of London," (there is a concife title-page for you) " I am too old to depart," that is, as Dr. John/on might poffibly have explained it, "Sir, you are then too old to MEND." But you, my dear friend, are not fo fastidious a critic: although you may find the whole very dull, it shall not be very long; fo that if it does not act as a cordial to enliven your fpirits, it may (if read in the evening) prove a powerful narcotic, and afford you fome pleafing dreams, when an and the base of the

> " Tir'd nature's fweet reftorer, balmy fleep, " His ready vifit pays."

I fhall therefore not trouble you with a detail of bad roads, the impositions of innkeepers, what food I partook of, how many bottles of wine were drank, the height of steeples, &c. a fufficiency of this, I trust, has already appeare peared in different writers. Thus much by way of preparation for my journies. I now fet out.

415

In September, Seventeen hundred and eightyfeven, I fet off for Edinburgh; and in all the principal towns through which I paffed, was led from a motive of curiofity, as well as with a view towards obtaining fome valuable purchafes, to examine the bookfellers fhops for fearce and curious books; but although I went by the way of York, Newcaftle-upon-Tyne, &c. and returned through Glafgow, Carlifle, Leeds, Lancafter, Prefton, Manchefter, and other confiderable places, I was much furprifed, as well as difappointed, at meeting with very few of the works of the most efteemed authors; and those few confifted in general of ordinary editions, befides an affemblage of common trifling books, bound in sheep, and that too in a very bad manner. It is true, at York and Leeds there were a few (and but very few) good books; but in all the other towns between London and Edinburgh nothing but trafh was

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/ac

416

was to be found : in the latter city indeed, a few capital articles are kept, but in no other part of Scotland.

In feventeen hundred and ninety, I repeated my journey, and was much mortified to be under a neceffity of confirming my former observations. This remarkable deficiency in the article of books, is however not peculiar to the northern parts of England; as I have repeatedly travelled into the western parts, and found abundant cause for diffatisfaction on the fame account, fo that I may venture without fear of contradiction to affert, that London, as in all other articles of commerce, is likewife the grand emporium of Great Britain for books, engroffing nearly the whole of what is valuable in that very extensive, beneficial, and I may add lucrative branch of trade. As to Ireland, I fhall only observe, that if the bookfellers in that part of the empire do not fhine in the poffeffion of valuable books, they must certainly be allowed to poffefs fuperior industry in reprinting the works of every English author

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google GMT 19:57 2022-11-11 uo Pennsylvania Generated at University of Penn Public Domain, Google-digitized

417

thor of merit, as foon as published, and very liberally endeavouring to diffeminate them, in a furreptitious manner through every part of our island, though the attempts now generally proves abortive, to the great loss and injury of the ingenious projectors.

At Newcastle, I passed a day or two in the year 1787, where I was much delighted with viewing a fingular phœnomenon in natural history, namely the celebrated crows neft affixed above the weather cock, on the upper extremity of the steeple, in the market-place. In the year 1783, as I was well informed, the crows first built this curious neft, and fucceeded in hatching and rearing their young. In the following year they attempted to rebuild it : but a contest enfuing among fome of the fable fraternity, after a fierce engagement they were obliged to relinquish it, and the nest was demolished by the victorious party before it was finished. This bad fuccefs, however, did not deter the original builders and poffeffors from return-ВЬ ing

Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 :ized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Generated at University of Penns Public Domain, Google-digitized

ing in the year 1785, when they took quiet poffeffion of their freehold, rebuilt the premifes, and reared another family. This they repeated the three following years with equal. fuccefs, and when I was there in the year 1790, much of the neft remained, but the crows had forfaken it. The above occurrence, though to many it may appear incredible, is an undoubted fact. That crows fhould come into the center of a populous town to build their nefts, is of itfelf remarkable; but much more fo, that they fhould . prefer a weathercock to any other fituation, where the whole family, and their habitation turned round with every puff of wind, though they were perfectly fecured from falling, by the fpike of iron which rofe above the fane, around which the whole made their revolutions; and as on one fide the neft was higher than on the other, that part being always to windward, by this ingenious contrivance of the feathered architects, the infide of the neft was conftantly kept in a proper degree of warmth. I never recollect thefe various various circumstances, without being lost in admiration at the extraordinary fagacity of these birds.

Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

In this town however, I met with a greater curiofity, as well as a more amiable fubject of it than a crows neft, to excite my aftonifhment.

In my first journey, Mr. Fifter the bookfeller introduced me to his daughter, a charming young lady, who being unfortunately born deaf, was confequently dumb, till a gentleman a few years fince taught her to understand what was faid to her by the motion of the lips. I had the pleafure of conversing with her feveral times, and found that fhe had much of the Scotch accent, which as Mr. Fisher informed me, she acquired of the gentleman who taught her not only to understand the conversation of others but to speak, he being a native of that country; he remarked alfo, that fhe never had fpoken the Newcastle dialect. This young lady, I was also informed, dances exceedingly Ent. Bb 2 well, well, keeping exact time with the mulic, whether it is played flow or quick. When it is confidered what an intenfe application must have been used, both on the part of the teacher and his fair pupil, to produce such a happy effect, it furely reflects great credit on each of the parties.

đ

In the year 1790, when I again vifited Newcaftle with Mrs. Lackington, this young lady became the first object of inquiry, and we were both introduced to her.

I have lately been informed of a lady now in London, who although the is deaf, takes great delight in mufic, and when afked how the is affected by it, the antwers that the feels it at her breaft and at the bottom of her feet.

Being on the fubject of Curiofities, and having just related the pleafure I experienced on account of a lady acquiring the use of speech, permit me now to present you with another rarity indeed !—fomewhat connected with the former, no doubt, but intended as an effectual remedy (temporary, at least) for an

an opposite complaint of the fame organs, viz. too great a volubility of speech, with which, (as it is faid) many females are fo infected, as fometimes to lead them to exceed the bounds of due moderation and female decorum, and even display itself in the utterance of fuch harsh (though frequently inarticulate) terms, as tend too much to disgrace the unhappy patient, and violently affect the auditory nerves of all perfons within a confiderable distance.—To quit metaphor.

At the town-hall I was fhewn a piece of antiquity called a brank. It confifts of a combination of iron fillets, and is faftened to the head by a lock fixed to the back part of it; a thin plate of iron goes into the mouth, fufficiently flrong however, to confine the tongue, and thus prevent the wearer from making any use of that reftles member. The use of this piece of machinery is to punish notorious fcolds. I am pleased to find that it is now confidered merely as a matter of curiofity, the females of that town happily having not the fmallest occasion for the appli-

Bb3

42I

422 application of fo harfh an inftrument : whether it is that all females apprehenfive of being included in that defcription, have travelled fouthward, to avoid the danger of fo degrading an exhibition, or whatever other reafon is affigned, I forgot to enquire. It however affords me pleafure to reflect, that the ladies of Newcaftle are left at liberty to adopt a head-drefs of their own cheofing, confident that they poffefs a more refined tafte than to fix upon one by no means calculated to difplay their lovely countenances to advantage, as I am perfuaded the brank would caft fuch a gloom on the faireft of them, as would tend much to diminish the influence of their charms, and give pain to every beholder. It may be prudent, notwithstanding, still to preferve it in terrorem, as who knows what future times may produce? As I efteem it a very ingenious contrivance, and as there may be parts of the country still to be found, where the application of fuch a machine may be useful in some christian families (I will not fay in all, having fufficient grounds for afferting afferting the contrary) I here prefent you with an accurate sketch of it, together with the manner of its application : that if any ingenious artift fhould be applied to, he may not be at a lofs how it is to be made. I would, however, advife fuch a one to be cautious in offering them to public fale, and by no means to advertife them (efpecially if a married man, or having any views towards matrimony).

423

I am, dear Friend,

Yours.

Soris

LETTER XLII.

- " O, land of cakes ! how oft my eyes
- " Defire to fee thy mountains rife ;
- " How Fancy loves thy fleeps to climb,
- " So wild, fo folemn, fo fublime."
- " All the ftage-coaches that travel fo faft,
- " Muft get now and then an unfortunate caft."

DEAR FRIEND,

424

IN my first journey to Scotland I fometimes travelled post, but often entered the different, stage-coaches, &c. for a stage or two, when I happened to see any setting out to as to fuit my time and inclination : but at last I had pretty nearly paid dear for it, as the driver of the diligence from Darlington to Durham happened to be much inebriated and before his quitting Darlington had almost overset us ; not observing the man was drunk, we attributed the fault to the horses, we were however very speedily undeceived in that respect by many concurrent circumstances, so that

425

that we were one minute nearly in the ditch on the right hand, and the next but just escaping that on the left; at other times we experienced Ariking proofs of the inability of our conductor against the numbers of onehorfe coal-carts, not to mention their frequently running foul of us for being on the wrong fide of the road; (for drivers of coaches and carts can be to the full as favage towards each other in the country, as in London) : however notwithstanding all these " hair-breadth efcapes," we retained our feats, till we arrived within three quarters of a mile of Durham, when at lengh the fpecific gravity of the driver's head preponderating over all the other parts of his frame united, precipitated him with violence from the elevated flation he had, till then (though with difficulty) poffeffed to his parent earth. There were three unfortunate paffengers in the carriage, left to the diferetion of the horfes, viz. a gentleman, an innkeeper's wife, and your humble fervant : the lady in strict compliance with the practice of her fex in fimilar fituations, https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.hav Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

426

tions, on feeing the rapid defcent of our charioteer, immediately honoured us with a loud and fhrill fhriek ; the quadrupeds, not accustomed to this pretty female note fo much as the fonorous voice of a coachman, miftook for a fignal to mend their pace, and they, habituated to pay all due obedience to the commands of their fuperiors of the biped creation, when underftood by them, and finding no check, inftantly proceeded to a, full gallop; and we, however reluctantly, followed them down a gentle descent, not at a gentle rate, but with prodigious velocity. As I was quite calm and collected, I coolly, reconnoitred the road before us, and obferving that it was perfectly clear, as for half a mile not a coal-cart was to be feen, although we had lately paffed feveral fcore, I began to reafon with my companions, and they fpeedily became calm enough to affift in holding a council what was beft to be done in our critical fituation. Our debates were quickly ended, as we were unanimous in opinion that if we once entered the city of Durham, the carriage RUGHS

/ https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google GMT Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57
Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.or carriage must inevitably be torn to pieces, owing to the variety of turnings and obstructions we fhould have to encounter, we therefore entered into an immediate refolution, nem. con. that to open the doors, and exhibit our agility by leaping out, was, of "two evils, choosing the least :" this we instantly did, in as careful a manner as poffible; we first alighted on our feet, and next complimented the ground with our nofes, without receiving much injury. Our female companion indeed, by being rather too precipitate, alighted in a manner which on any other occafion would not have appeared frictly decent, of which she, poor lady ! was fo fenfible, that fhe immediately "hoped as how we were both married gentlemen;" which was quickly replied to by both in the affirmative ; and thus we faved our fair one the trouble of exerting herfelf in another fcream, and ourfelves the punifhment of hearing it.

ALL 2112 AUXIONN

Being

427

inia on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Pennsylvania on Generated at University of Penns Public Domain, Google-digitized

Digitized by Google

Original from UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN

Being no longer parties concerned in the danger, it afforded us fome entertainment to obferve the progrefs of our vehicle now confiderably lightened by our escape from it, and becoming every moment ftill lighter by the exclusion of fmall trunks, boxes, parcels, great coats, &c. they, in imitation of our example making leaps, fome from the infide of the carriage, and others from the boot; whether occasioned by the repulsion of the carriage and its appendages, or the attraction of the earth, I am not fufficiently verfed in philosophy to decide. Posterity when they peruse my labours, no doubt will determine this weighty point, and transmit it to the remotest period of time, properly dignified by F. R. S. in Phil. Tranf.

The horfes finding themfelves lefs incumbered and urged on by the noife of the door, continually flapping, increafed their fpeed: happily however the carriage was flopped before it entered the city, and no damage was fuftained either by the horfes or the carriage. Before ted at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Generated a

420

Before we left the inn, our careful fon of the whip arrived, not in the leaft injured, but rather benefited by his difafter, being fuddenly transformed into a flate of perfect fobriety; after him followed two countrymen laden with the feveral articles which had been fo violently ejected. As I reflected that this unguarded man might not always be equally fuccefsful, either to himfelf or his paffengers, as in the prefent inflance, I obtained a promife from the innkeeper never to permit him to drive any carriage in future, in the management of which he had any concern.

It is aftonifhing what a number of fatal accidents continually happen from careleffnefs and the want of fobriety in this thoughtlefs race of beings. I was informed that only two days previous to my arrival at Durham, a coachman quitting his box to ftep into an adjacent houfe, in his abfence the horfes began to move gently, and a lady in the carriage giving a loud fcream, the noife occafioned

inia on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Pennsylvania on Generated at University of Penns Public Domain, Google-digitized

430

fioned the horfes to fet off full gallop, in confequence of which a lady of Durham, happening unfortunately at that inftant to be croffing the way, was thrown down, and the wheels paffing over her, fhe died on the fpot. —One of the many melancholy effects refulting from the ridiculous practice of fcreaming. But I crave pardon of the ladies; when I begin paffing cenfure on them, it is high time to clofe my epiftle (which if not very long will perhaps be deemed fufficiently impertinent) with,

1 am,

Dear Friend,

Yours.

LETTER

confefs I do not like to blot what-ance weitten, tearful left when

LETTER XLIII.

" O that the too cenforious world would learn

" This wholefome rule, and with each other bear!

" But man, as if a foe to his own fpecies,

" Takes pleafure to report his neighbour's faults,

" Judging with rigour ev'ry fmall offence,

" And prides himself in fcandal."

month to afront thom, will

HAYWOOD'S D. of Brunfwick.

" A nation fam'd for fong, and beauty's charms ;

" Zealous, yet modest, innocent, though free :

" Patient of toil; fincere amidft alarms;

" Inflexible in faith : invincible in arms."

BEATTIE's Minftrel.

Aunt's Filston

431

DEAR FRIEND,

T is reported of a very eminent author, that he never blotted a line of what he had once written: on which it has been remarked, that it was a pity he had not blotted a thousand. Now though my extreme modesty will not permit me to put myself on a level with that great man as an author, whatever the impartial world may think of our comparative merits, I must confess confess I do not like to blot what I have once written, fearful left when I begin, (another proof of my modefty,) I should deface the major part of my manufcripts, and thus deprive the public of the great advantages which may refult from them. What I allude to, is an unfortunate flip of the pen in my last; however, as " confeffion of a fault makes fome amends," and I immediately checked myfelf, craved pardon, abruptly clofed my letter, and threw the offending pen from me with fome degree of anger, I hope those lovely fair ones, who might think I meant to affront them, will with their accustomed benignity forgive, and indulge me with a fmile on my future labours; and as a convincing proof how fenfible I am of their kind condefcention, I here engage never more to express my diflike of their screaming, except they should omit purchafing books of me, which I am fure every - candid fair (and what fair one is not candid?) will think fufficiently provoking.

432

finer I estimative merite, I muit

/ https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/ac

Digitized by Google

abition.

433

But in order to remind them that every great character does not always conduct himfelf with equal politeness towards the ladies, I beg permiffion to introduce a very great man to them: no lefs a perfonage than Doctor JOHNSON. Of whom indeed fo much hath already been fung and faid, that the fubject may be fuppofed to be nearly exhausted; which is, however, fo far from being the cafe, that notwithstanding two quarto volumes of his life by Mr. Bofwell are juft published, we are taught to expect another life by a different hand. Indeed until fome other great man makes his exit (myfelf out of the question) we are likely to be entertained with fresh anecdotes of him; but when that period once arrives, then farewel Johnfon ! ..... bart oil as

The Doctor, whole extreme fondnels for that agreeable beverage tea, is well known, was once in company with a number of ladies affembled to partake with him of the fame refreshment. The lady of the house happened to be one of those particularly at-Cc tentive tentive to punctilio, and had exhibited her finest fet of china for the entertainment of her guefts; the Doctor, who drank large quantities, and with confiderable expedition, could not always wait with becoming patience ceremonioully to alk for and receive in due form the addition of a lump of fugar when neceffary; he therefore without permiffion put his finger and thumb into the fugar-difh, tumbling the contents over, till he met with a piece of the proper fize; the lady kept her eye fixed on him the whole time, and deeming his conduct a great breach of decorum, refolved to make him fenfible of it, by immediately ordering the fervant to change the fugar-difh. The Doctor, tho' apparently attentive only to his tea, noticed it, and as foon as he had emptied the cup, put it together with the faucer under the fire-place, with due care, however, not to break them. This was too fevere a trial for the poor lady, who, apprehensive for the fate of her dear china, after a decent scream, with warmth demanded the reafon of his treating

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/ac

treating her in fo rude a manner. "Why, "my dear madam, (replied he) I was " alarmed with the idea that whatever I " touched was thereby contaminated, and " imprefied with anxious defire to contri-" bute towards your felicity, I removed the " object fo defiled from your prefence with " all poffible expedition." This reply, tho' it extorted a fmile from all the company prefent, did not fatisfy the lady to whom it was addreffed, who notwithftanding fhe exerted herfelf to appear in good humour, was too much offended to forget the affront .--This anecdote has been related to me with fome addenda which heighten the flory, though more to the difadvantage of the Doctor; but I believe as here related, it may be depended on as the real fact.

During my continuance in Scotland, which was about three weeks the first time, and about a month the last, I often reflected with pain on the illiberal, not to fay brutal treatment the inhabitants received from the Doctor. At Edinburgh I heard various anecdotes

Cc2

435

436

dotes related of him, which were perfectly novel to me, and in all probability will be fo to you. I fhall therefore give you a fpecimen.

Being one day at a gentleman's houfe in Edinburgh, feveral ladies and gentlemen came in to pay their refpects to him; and among others the then Lord Provoft went up to the Doctor, bowing repeatedly, and expreffing the higheft refpect for him; to all which the Doctor paid not the leaft attention. Exceedingly hurt at fo flagrant a mark of difrefpect, he turned round, and put a fhilling into the hand of the gentleman of the houfe. On being afked what the fhilling was intended for, he replied, "Have not I feen your bear?"

The Doctor being drinking tea at another gentleman's houfe, the lady afked him if he did not choofe another cup: It feems fhe had forgot her having before afked him the fame queftion; and on her repeating it he replied, "Woman, have I not already told you you that I had done?" On which the lady anfwered him in his own gruff manner. During his continuance in her houfe fhe always talked to him without ceremony, and it was remarked that fhe had more influence with him than any other perfon in Scotland.

437

I was much pleafed with the politenefs of the gentleman who related to me this ftory of the Doctor, as he appeared anxious to excufe him for his want of due decorum, and thus to palliate a most obvious blemiss in the character of one of the most eminent of my countrymen. I could wish the compilers of the biographical department of that truly great and useful work, the "Encyclopoedia Britannica" would observe the fame politenefs and impartiality. And I hope that this hint will also induce them in some subsequent edition, when I am gone to

" That Bourne from whence no traveller returns," to do juffice to my great and aftonifhing merits, by way of compensation for having fal-C c 3 len len fhort in fpeaking of other great men; and fhould I happen to be out of print by the time the editors of the Biographia Britannica arrive at letter L. (which feems extremely probable, according to the very deliberate progrefs of that work,) I hope they will not flightly pafs me over. If they fhould, let them take the confequence; as I here give them fair and timely notice, and they have not to plead as an excufe, the want of materials.

I will give you one anecdote more of the great Doctor, becaufe it relates to a Scotchman very eminent in the literary world. I had it from Mr. Samuel, who was one of the party.

Dr. Johnfon being one afternoon at the houfe of Mr. Samuel's uncle, (whofe name I have forgot) who lived in one of the ftreets that leads from the Strand to the Thames, a number of gentlemen being prefent, they agreed to crofs the water and make a little excursion on the other fide; in stepping into the

439

the boat one of the company faid, Mr. Hume, give me your hand. As foon as they were feated, our Doctor asked Mr. Samuel if that was Hume the Deift. Mr. Samuel replied, that it was the great Mr. Hume, the deep metaphysician and famous historian. Had I known that (faid the Doctor) I would not have put a foot in the boat with him. In the evening they had all agreed to fup together at a houfe near St. Clement's Church in the Strand, and Doctor Johnson coming in after the reft of the company had. fometime been met, he walked up to Mr. Hume, and taking him by the hand, faid, " Mr. Hume, I am very glad to fee you," and feemed well pleafed to find him there; and it appeared to Mr. Samuel, that the Doctor had thus chose to atone for his hafty expresfion before related.

As I do not recollect any thing being recorded refpecting the Doctor's pugilistri abilities, (excepting his knocking down Ofborn the bookfeller, be confidered as fuch) I fhall beg leave to relate another anecdote which I C c 4 received received from the gentleman who favoured me with the preceding one.

440

Dr. Johnfon being at the water fide when fome ladies had just quitted a boat and were endeavouring to fettle the fare with the waterman, this fon of the Thames, like too many of his brethren, infifted on much more than his due, accompanying his demand in the ufual file of eloquence, with abufive language, the Doctor kindly interfering, furnished the ladies with the opportunity of retreating, and transferred the whole abufe to himfelf, who finding that argument had made no impreffion on the waterman, tried what he could effect by the ftrength of his arm, and gave the refractory fellow a hearty drubbing, which had the defired effect.

One word more concerning our great Lexicographer. It must be allowed by every candid and impartial perfon, that the extreme contempt and prejudice he entertained towards our friends of North Britain, reflected a very

441

a very ftrong shade on his character, which his warmest admirers cannot justify.

Were I, as a South Briton, called upon to give my fair and unprejudiced opinion refpecting the national character of the natives of Scotland and those of England, and I flatter myfelf I have had ample opportunities of obferving the peculiar traits of both countries, I would fay, that if we in England excel them in fome virtues, they no lefs fhine in others; and if the North-Britons poffefs fome peculiar frailties and prejudices, we of the South are not intirely free from ours ; fo that were the virtues and vices of a certain number of each country placed in an hydroftatical balance (it must however be a pretty large one,) I believe it very difficult to prognofticate which of the two would preponderate. It is true, I have met with one very great villain in Scotland, in Mr. S. which only tends to prove there are probably fcoundrels to be found every where, and that without taking the trouble which Diogenes did, in fearch of an boneft man; and I am much afraid, afraid, were I to enquire of fome North Britons, they could without any great difficulty point out to me fome of my own countrymen as bad.

442

I deteft all national prejudices, as I think it betrays great weaknefs in the parties who are influenced by them. Every nation of the habitable globe, nay each particular province of those countries has certainly fome peculiar traits belonging to it which diftinguishes it from its neighbours. But if we are disposed to view one another with the feverity of criticism, how easy, nay how frequent it is to difcover fuperior virtues (as we think) as well as abilities in that particular fpot which gave birth to ourfelves, and equally divested of that strict impartiality which alone can enable us to judge properly, difcover proportionable blemifhes in the natives of other countries.

- " But travellers who want the will
- " To mark the shapes of good and ill,
- " With vacant flare thro' Europe range,
- " And deem all bad, becaufe 'tis ftrange,

" Thro'

" Thro' varying modes of life, we trace

" The finer trait, the latent grace,

" Quite free from fpleen's incumb'ring load,

" At little evils on the road ;

" So while the path of life I tread,

" A path to me with briars fpread;

" Let me its tangled mazes fpy,

" Like you, with gay, good humour eye,

" And be my fpirit light as air,

" Call life a jeft, and laugh at care."

In faying thus much, I do not mean to infer, that we ought not to be infpired with a laudable ambition to excel, not those of other countries only, but even those with whom we are more intimately connected : but that fhould be done without drawing invidious comparisons of the merits or demerits of others. In fhort, let it be the earnest endeavour of each country, and every individual of that country in particular, united under our amiable monarch, to ftrive which fhall have a fuperior claim to the title of being GOOD MEN, useful members of fociety, friends to the whole human race, and peaceable fubjects of a government, which though not abfolutely in a flate of perfection-(and can

443

444

can that man be really deemed wife who expects to meet with perfection in any human eftablishment?) is still happily superior to every other in the known world, not forgetting our neighbours the French, our natural enemies, according to the long adopted language of national prejudice : but I hope that narrow minded difpolition will henceforth ceafe; certainly nature never defigned us as enemies, it has placed our stations near to each other, and furely there is not fo great a diffimilarity in our national traits of character, as to occafion us to be in perpetual enmity! The contrast now is lefs than ever. Like Britons, they have caught the fpark of freedom, and nobly emancipated themfelves from a ftate of abject and degrading flavery, to a diffinguished and honourable rank among nations. Long as time shall last, may they, with us, enjoy the bleffing fo glorioufly obtained, with that due moderation which always properly diffinguishes between liberty and licentiousness ! The friends of liberty merit

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT Generated at University of Penns Public Domain, Google-digitized

Digitized by Google

445

rit the full enjoyment of every advantage attending it; those of licentioufnefs are unworthy the smallest share of it.

But whither am I travelling ? I am imperceptibly got into the road of politics. Coachman ! turn off immediately into another road. -'Tis done, and happy am I to get out of fo dangerous a track unhurt, which has broke the necks of numbers of clever fellows, and deprived many a bright genius of that fuperior part of HIM from whence all his bright effusions for the good of his country were emitted. For patriotifm (as you know) is always the motive which impels those worthies to fuch hazardous expeditions as have fo frequently in the event proved fatal to them. For proofs we need not confult hiftory; inftances are, alas! fresh in our memories: witnefs London, 1780, and Birmingham, 1791.

At all events, it is certainly too rugged a road for a bookfeller to travel, it being already ready crowded with many much abler adventurers. And whilft Mr. Burke, of the " Monarchy" (late of the " Fox") Inn, and Mr. Paine, at the fign of " the RIGHTS of MAN" provide rich and ample entertainment for "men and cattle," let the public take their choice, or if they pleafe (which indeed appears to be the most rational mode) try them both, as fome constitutions find one kind of food more eafy of digeftion, fome the other; and I remain fully fatisfied with the fubordinate character of continuing an humble diffributor of the viands provided by those and other very able caterers, and that upon eafier terms than the admirers of fuch food will meet with elfewhere, according to the elegance or plainnefs of the difbes they are ferved up in. Some preferring rich foreign china, elegantly gilt; others, good fubstantial English porcelain; others, again being pleafed with Queen's ware ; and many more content with a Welch diff, or common earthen ware.

Digitized by Google

3311

I am now fuddenly conveyed again to Edinburgh. The old town, fo called, has not not much to boaft of; but the new town is by far the moft compleat and elegant I ever faw. In various towns of England and Scotland, I have indeed feen fome good ftreets, and many good houfes, but in this the whole is uniformly fine; not one houfe, much lefs a whole ftreet that can be termed indifferent in the whole town.

And here let me do juffice to North-British hospitality, and their very polite attention to such Englishmen who happen to travel to the "land of cakes." I can truly fay, that the polite and friendly behaviour of the inhabitants towards Mrs. Lackington and myself, claims our warmest gratitude and fincerest thanks. This the more civilized part of my countrymen will readily believe; and as to those of another description (happily but a comparatively small number, I trust) are welcome to treat my affertion with that contempt usually attendant on prejudice, which is the result of ignorance.

The

447

Digitized by Google

The fubject I now mean to enter into being a delicate one, permit me here to clofe my letter; thus affording you a fhort respite, and myself a little time for confideration on the propriety of fubmitting my ideas (as you feem determined all those I fend you shall be) to public notice.

I am,

45 Interi of calls

that the police and fri

myself, claims our warm.

Dear Friend,

wir of my construction will of

Yours.

pile that a compensively that which is the wan't of ignorance trinic) and walcome to treat my efferient of that concernet would verendant on prejudice,

to the

and fineereff thanks.

LETTER

Original from

UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.har tized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Generated at University of Penns Public Domain, Google-digitized

392

LETTER XLIV.

" Set woman in his eye, and in his walk,

- " Among daughters of men the faireft found,
- " Many are in each region paffing fair
- " As the noon fky, more like to goddeffes
- " Than mortal creatures ; graceful and difcreet,
- " Expert in amorous arts, inchanting tongues:
- " Perfuafive, virgin majefty, with mild
- " And fweet allay'd, yet terrible to approach;
- " Skill'd to retire, and in retiring, draw
- " Hearts after them, tangl'd in amorous nets;
- " Such objects have the power to foften and tame
- " Severeft temper, fmooth the rugged'ft brow,
- " Enerve and with voluptuous hope diffolve ;
- " Draw out with credulous defire,
- " At will, the manlieft refoluteft breaft."

MILTON's Samfon Agonistes.

With Harsh of anisch St

449

DEAR FRIEND,

IN my laft I expressed fome diffidence respecting the propriety of committing to paper my thoughts on a particular subject; I have fince weighed it with due caution, and the confideration of my having during the long course of my epistolary cor-D d respondence

450

refpondence always declared my fentiments freely on every fubject, foon determined me not to degrade myfelf by fhrinking back, now it is fo near drawing to a conclusion.

The fubject then is—that bright lovely part of the creation, WOMAN !—the fource of all our joys, the affuagers of all our griefs; deprived of whofe powerful and attractive charms, man would be a wretch indeed. But alas ! the utmost efforts of my abilities are far inadequate to do justice to their merits; happily that pleasing theme has engaged the attention of the ablest and worthiest of men, from the remotest period down to the prefent time; and I trust ever will, nay must, fo long as a spark of virtue remains to dwell in the human breast. And when I reflect, that " They are not only FAIR, but just as fair," I have nought to fear.

I therefore proceed with cheerfulnefs to fay, that in Edinburgh, Glafgow, Stirling, ling, &c. there are more really fine women to be found than in any place I ever vifited. I do not mean to infer, we have not as many handfome women in England; but the idea I wish to convey is, that we have not fo many in proportion : that is, Go to any public place where a number of ladies are affembled, in either of the above towns, and then go to any place in England where an equal number are met, and you will notice a greater number of fine women among the former, than among the latter. It must be obvious that in making this declaration, I allude to the genteeler part; for among the lower claffes of women in Scotland, by being more exposed to the inclemency of the weather, the majority are very homely, and the want of the advantages of apparel, (which those in a higher sphere can avail themselves of, and know how to apply) together with their fluttish and negligent appearance, does not tend in the least to heighten their charms.

Dd2

Having

451

inia on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Pennsylvania on University of Penns n, Google-digitized Generated at Un Public Domain,

Digitized by Google

Original from UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN

452

Having both read and heard much related of the manner of washing their linen, which I must confess I would not credit without having ocular demonstration, during my continuance at Glafgow, curiofity led me to the mead by the river fide. For the poor women here, inftead of the water coming to them, as in London, are obliged to travel loaded with their linen to the water; where you may daily fee great numbers walking, in their way; which if feen by fome of our London prudes, would incline them to form very unjust and uncharitable ideas of the modefty of these Scottish lasses. Many of them give a trifle to be accommodated with the ufe of a large wash-house near the water, where about a hundred may be furnished with every convenience for their purpofe. But by far the greatest part make fires, and heat the water in the open air, and as they finish their linen, they spread it on the grafs to dry; which is the univerfal mode of drying throughout Scotland. Here the " Maidens bleach their fummer fmocks."

I had

inia on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Pennsylvania on Generated at University of Penns Public Domain, Google-digitized

Digitized by Google

453

I had walked to and fro feveral times, and began to conclude that the cuftom of getting into the tubs and treading on the linen, either never had been practifed, or was come into difufe; but I had not waited more than half an hour, when many of them jumped into the tubs, without fhoes or flockings, with their fhifts and petticoats drawn up far above the knees, and flamped away with great composure in their countenances, and with all their ftrength, no Scotchman taking the leaft notice, or even looking towards them, conftant habit having rendered the fcene perfectly familiar.

On conversing with some gentlemen of Glasgow on this curious subject, they affured me that these singular laundresses (as they appeared to me) were strictly modess women, who only did what others of unblemissed reputation had been accustomed to for a long feries of years; and added, that at any other time a purse of gold would not tempt them to draw the curtain so high. By way of contrast, let me observe that many of our  $Dd_3$  London

/ https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/ac

London fervant-maids, though not always fo nice in other refpects, would not be feen thus habited in public on any terms, left their precious characters fhould be called in queftion. A ftriking inftance of the powerful influence of habit ! Pomfret fays,

" Cuftom's the world's great idol we adore,

" And knowing that we feek to know no more."

Moft of the female fervants in Edinburgh, Glafgow, &c. do all their work, and run about the town the fore part of the day without ftays, fhoes or ftockings; and on Sundays I faw the country-women going to Ward's Kirk, in the fame manner (ftays excepted;) however they do not go into kirk, till they have dreffed their legs and feet; for that purpofe they feat themfelves on the grafs, fomewhere near, put on their fhoes and ftockings, and garter up very deliberately,

" Nor heed the paffenger who looks that way."

Moft of these poor young country-women go without any caps or hats; they have in general

455

general fine heads of hair, many plait it, others let it hang loofe down their backs; and I affure you, my friend, they look very agreeable.

I returned each time through Buxton, where flaying a week or two, I vifited Caffleton, and fpent feveral hours in exploring that flupendous cavern, called The Devil's A— in the Peak. I alfo furveyed Poole's Hole, near Buxton, and purchafed a great variety of petrifactions. In our way home I faw the great marble manufactory at Afton, in the water, fpent fome days at Matlock, the most romantic village that I ever faw, but the fight of it cost me dear; as we were conveyed there in an old crazy post-chaife, in which I caught a violent cold, the lining being very damp.

I am,

siduots of transit tog-bill is aderfail wards, but being now

Dear Friend,

Yours.

Dd4

LETTER

LETTER XLV.

" Good feen expected, evil unforefeen,

" Appear by turns as fortune fhifts the fcene :

" Some rais'd aloft come tumbling down amain,

" Then fall fo hard, they bound and rife again."

DRYDEN's Virgil.

" New turns and changes every day

" Are of inconftant chance the conftant arts;

" Soon fortune gives, foon takes away,

" She comes, embraces, naufeates you, and parts.

" But if the flays or if the goes,

" The wife man little joy or little forrow knows;

" For over all there hangs a doubtful fate,

" And few there be who're always fortunate.

" One gains by what another is bereft :

" The frugal deftinies have only left

" A common bank of happiness below,

" Maintain'd, like nature, by an ebb and flow."

How's Indian Emp.

DEAR FRIEND,

456

Did not intend to trouble you or the public with an account of any more of my wonderful travels, but being now at Lyme, for want of other amusements this rainy rainy morning, I thought that a fhort account of this journey might afford you fome entertainment,

My ftate of health being but indifferent, and Mrs. Lackington's ftill worfe, I was induced to try what effect a journey would produce; it being immaterial what part I travelled to; and as I had not for a long time feen my native place, and perhaps might not be furnished with another opportunity, we refolved to visit it.

- " And many a year elaps'd, return to view
- " Where once the cottage flood, the hawthorn grew,
- ff Rememberance wakes with all her bufy train,
- " Swells at my breaft_____

" I ftill had hopes, for pride attends us ftill,

" Amidst the fwains to shew my book-learn'd skill,

"Yes, let the rich deride, with proud difdain

" The fimple bleffings of the lowly train,

" To me more dear, congenial to my heart,

- " One native charm, than all the glofs of art;
- " Spontaneous joys, where nature has its play,
- * The foul adopts, and owns their first-born fway :
- " Lightly they frolic o'er the vacant mind, ff Unenvy'd, unmolefted, unconfin'd."

GOLDSMITH.

Accordingly

Accordingly in July laft, 1791, we fet out from Merton, which I now make my chief refidence, taking Bath, Briftol, &c. in our way to my native place Wellington.

In Briftol, Exbridge, Bridgewater, Taunton, Wellington, and other places, I amufed myfelf in calling on fome of my mafters, with whom I had about twenty years before worked as a journeyman shoemaker. I addreffed each with, " Pray Sir, have you got any occasion ?" which is the term made use of by journeymen in that useful occupation, when feeking employment. Most of those honeft men had quite forgot my perfon, as many of them had not feen me fince I worked for them: fo that it is not eafy for you to conceive with what furprize and aftonishment they gazed on me. For you must know that I had the vanity (I call it humour) to do this in my chariot, attended by my fervants; and on telling them who I was, all appeared to be very happy to fee me, And I affure you, my friend, it afforded me much real pleafure to fee fo many of my old acquaintances acquaintances alive and well, and tolerable happy. The following lines often occurred to my mind:

/ https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.or

459

- " Far from the madding crowd's ignoble ftrife,
  - " Their fober wifhes never learn'd to ftray :
- " Along the cool fequefter'd vale of life
  - " They keep the noifelefs tenor of their way."

At Taunton and Wellington it feemed to be the unanimous determination of all the poorer fort, that I fhould by no means be deficient in old acquaintance. Some poor fouls declared that they had known me for fifty years (that is, years before I was born ;) others had danced me in their arms a thoufand times; nay, better still, fome knew my grandmother; but, beft of all, one old man claimed acquaintance with me, for having feen me many times on the top of a fix-andtwenty round ladder, balanced on the chin of a merry Andrew ! The old man was however egregioufly miftaken, as I never was fo precarioufly exalted, my ambition, as you well know, taking a very different turn. But that was of no confequence : all the old fellow fellow wanted was a fhilling—and I gave it him. No matter (as Sterne fays) from what motive. I never examine into thefe things. This I obferved, that none of them were common beggars, but poor ufeful labouring people. Giving to common ftrollers is but encouraging idlenefs and every other vice. And as fmall matters made many bappy, I was fupremely fo, to be the means of contributing to their comfort. And indeed who would hefitate at being the means of diffufing happinefs on fuch eafy terms, and with fo little trouble?

The bells rang merrily all the day of my arrival. I was also honoured with the attention of many of the most respectable people in and near Wellington and other parts ; Some of whom were pleased to inform me, that the reason of their paying a particular attention to me was their having heard, and now having themselves an opportunity of observing, that I did not so far forget myfelf, as many proud upstarts had done; that the notice I took of my poor relations and old

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.har Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

old acquaintance merited the respect and approbation of every real gentleman. They were also pleafed to express a wish, that as foon as I could difpose of my bufiness, I would come down and fpend the remainder of my days among them. This reception was the more pleafing, as I have fometimes observed a contrary conduct practifed by fome, who have been pleafed to ftile themfelves gentlemen, and on that fcore think that they have a right to treat men of bufinefs (however refpectable they may be) as by much their inferiors; and it too often happens that one of those petty gentry who poffesses but a hundred or two per annum, will behave in a haughty manner to a man in bufinefs who fpends as many thoufands; but fuch fhould be told, that a real gentleman in any company will never either by word or action, attempt to make the meaneft perfon feel his inferiority, but on the contrary.

They fhould be informed alfo how highly impolitic and unjust it is to attempt to fix a stigma

/ https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.har Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

a stigma on trade and commerce, the very things that have caused England to rise so high in the political scale of Europe.

'Tis true that even in England you may fee great numbers of very opulent tradefmen who have not an idea but what they have acquired behind the counter; but you may alfo find many thousands of the same class of life who are possessed of very liberal ideas, and who would not commit an action that would difgrace a title. For my part, 1 will endeavour to adhere to the advice given by Persius as it is translated:

- " Study thyfelf what rank, or what degree
- " The wife Creator has ordain'd for thee :

" And all the offices of that flate

" Perform ! and with thy prudence guide thy fate."

William Jones, Efq. of Foxdowne, near Wellington, informed me of a remarkable prognoffication in my favour; he told me that when I was a boy, about twelve years of age, Mr. Paul, then a very confiderable wholefale linen-draper, in Friday-ftreet, London, (I believe believe ftill living) paffing by my father's houfe one day, ftopped at the door and afked various queftions about fome guinea-pigs which I had in a box. My anfwers it feems pleafed and furprized him, and turning towards Mr. Jones, faid, "Depend upon it, fir, that boy will one day rife far above the fituation that his prefent mean circumflances feem to promife." So who knows what a great man I may yet be ?-perhaps

463

" A double pica in the book of fame."

Give me leave to introduce another prediction, though not altogether fo pleafing as that juft related. An Italian gentleman, and if we may judge by appearance, a perfon of rank, was fome years fince looking at fome books of palmiftry in my fhop, and at the fame time endeavoured to convince me of the reality of that fcience. In the midft of his difcourfe, he fuddenly feized my righthand, and looking for fome time with great attention on the various lines, he informed me that I had twice been in danger of lofing my my life, once by water, and once by a wound in my head. He was certainly right, but I believe by chance, as I have many other times been in very great danger. He added, that I had much of the goddefs Venus in me, but much more of Mars ; and affured me that I should go to the wars, and arrive at great honour. He likewife informed me, that I should die by fire-arms pointed over a wall.-How far the former part of this gentleman's prediction may be relied on, I will not pretend to decide, but the last part of it was lately very near coming to fuch a decifion as would have proved the fallibility of that part of his prognoffication, though even in that cafe he might have pleaded his being pretty near the matter of fact, only fubftituting gunpowder instead of fire-arms, and I fhould not have had it in my power to contend the point with him. I will endeavour to render this intelligible : On Tuefday the fifth of July, 1791, I very nearly escaped being blown up with the powder-mills belonging to Mr. Bridges, at Ewell, near Merton

/ https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/ac

4.65

ton in Surry. A quarter of an hour before that event took place, I was riding out within one mile of the mills, and having enquired of Mr. Rofe, at Coom-Houfe, for the way that leads round by the mills, I actually rode part of the way, with an intent of visiting them. But somehow or other, I fcarce knew why, I turned my horfe about, and a few minutes after I had done fo, I faw the fatal cataftrophe; which happening by day, refembled a large cloud of fmoke, of a very light colour, and the report reached my ears immediately after. I inftantly concluded, it could be nothing lefs than the powder-mills blown up; and on my return to my house at Merton, I foon learnt that it was the identical powder-mills that in all probability I should have been in, or close by, at the time of the explosion. By this accident it feems four men were killed, fome of whom had large families. The bodies were fo much mangled by the explofion, that they could not be diffinguished Ee from

inia on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Generated at University of Pennsylvania on Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://

from each other, and the head of one of them was thrown to a great diftance.

But to proceed with my journey. I effeem myfelf peculiarly happy, on one account in particular, that I undertook it; and have only to regret it did not take place fooner, as it tended to undeceive me in a matter in which I had long been in an error. The cafe was this : I had for feven years paft fuppofed that the parents of my first wife were dead; and on enquiring after them of Mr. Cash at Bridgewater, he confirmed the report. However, as we paffed through South Petherton, being but a mile from the place where they formerly lived, I could not help ftopping to find out the time when they died, and what other particulars I could learn relative to them, but to my very great furprife, I was informed that they were both living at Newton, two miles diftant. On this information I gave the coachman orders to drive us there, but still could fearcely credit that they really were alive .- But, O my dear Friend,

Friend, it is utterly impossible for me to defcribe the fensations of Mrs. Lackington and myself, on entering

"With ragged wall of mold'ring mud,"

which contained them !

" Then Poverty, grim fpectre, rofe,

" And horror o'er the profpect threw."

AMWELL.

467

There we found-two

" Poor human ruins, tottering o'er the grave !"

The dim light on our entrance feemed a little to flash in the focket, and every moment threatened to disappear for ever ! while their " pale wither'd hands were ftretched out towards me, trembling at once with eagerness and age." Never before did I feel the full force of Shakespear's description,

Laft fcene of all

" That ends this ftrange eventful hiftory,

" Is fecond childifhnefs ; and mere oblivion :

" Sans teeth, fans eyes, fans tafte : fans every thing."

Ee 2

From

From fuch a ftate of poverty and wretchednefs, Good God, deliver every worthy character.

The old man is ninety years of age, and the good old woman eighty. The old man's intellects are much impaired; he for a moment knew me, and then his recollection forfook him. The old woman retained her fenfes and knowledge during the whole of the time we were with them. On inquiry I found, that what little property they had poffeffed had been all expended for fome years.

" How many once in Fortune's lap high fed,

" Solicit the cold hand of Charity !

" To fhock us more-folicit it in vain !"

Dr. Young.

GI THE OI

Amidft this dreary fcene, it was fome alleviation to learn that their pious fon had given them weekly as much as he could afford from his own little family, and I have added enough to render them as comfortable as their great age can poffibly admit of. But for your fake and my own, I will drop this gloomy gloomy fubject; which to me proved one of the most affecting scenes that ever I experienced in the whole course of my life.

469

Rouch Callier three or four union

During our continuance at Wellington, I one morning rode over to Black Down, on purpose to inspect an immense heap of stones on the top of the hill, ftrait before the town, which I remembered to have feen when a . boy. The diftance from Wellington is about Those stones cover about an two miles. acre of ground, and rife to a great height. The country people informed me with great gravity, that " the Devil brought them there in one night in his leathern apron." But the name of it, as well as the form, prove what it was. It is called Symmon's Borough or Barrow; which, you know, fignifies a burial-place. I fhould not have taken any notice of it here, had I ever feen any Barrow of Aones befides this, and five other fmaller Barrows, about half a mile from the large one. The country people informed me that the devil brought the five heaps Ee 3

Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

heaps in his glove. I also observed the remains of a large camp near the spot. Camden has taken notice of a large camp at Roach Castle, three or sour miles from hence; it is strange that neither he nor Gough should take any notice of so singular a Barrow as this certainly is.

1 remain,

Dear Friend,

Yours,

LETTER

Digitized by Google

471

LETTER XLVI.

" Ye who amid this feverifh world would wear

" A body free of pain, of cares the mind,

" Fly the rank city : fhun its turbid air :

" Breathe not the chaos of eternal fmoke

" And volatile corruption from the dead.

" The dying, fickening, and the living world

** Exhal'd : To fully Heaven's transparent dome

" With dim mortality. It is not air

" That from a thoufand lungs reeks back to thine,

" Sated with exhalations, rank and fell,

" The fpoil of dunghills, and the putrid thaw

" Of Nature : when from fhape and texture fhe

" Relapfed into fighting Elements;

" It is not air, but floats a naufeous mafs

" Of all obfcene, corrupt, offenfive things,

" Much moifture hurts : here a fordid bath,

" With daily rancour fraught, relaxes more

" The folids than fimple moifture can."

ARMSTRONG'S Art of Health.

Lyme, Sep. 4, 1791. DEAR FRIEND,

BEING now at one of those places ufually called watering-places, that is, a place where invalids refort in great numbers for the real or pretended purpose of drinking Ee4

/ https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124

/ http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/ac

drinking the waters for which each particular fituation is in repute, and bathing in them with a view to the reftoration of their health ; I shall trouble you with a few observations, which have occurred to me on the fubject. I cannot entertain a doubt but that many by this practice have been highly benefited; but at the fame time I must observe that such relief is only to be reafonably expected where the parties poffefs a fufficient fhare of prudence to conform to those rules which are laid down to them by those who are best acquainted with the nature of the feveral complaints, the ftrength, or weakness of their conflitutions, and the different virtues those feveral waters poffefs, fo as properly to adapt them to each particular cafe, by drinking the waters at proper flated periods, as well as in proper dofes; befides conforming to fuch a regimen as shall co-operate with them in producing the defired effect. But where invalids neglect all, or indeed any of those rules, is it not rather an abfurdity to expect relief ?- I will endeavour to explain myfelf :

Thofe

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 inia on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.har http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Pennsylvania at University of Penns main, Google-digitized Generated at Un Public Domain,

· milling of

473

Those waters either poffess powerful virtues, or they do not. If they do, is it not obvious that fome judgment and caution is neceffary in the use of them ? which must either produce good or bad effects, according to the prudence with which they are applied. If on the other hand, they are of fo infignificant a nature, that they may be used at any time, and in any proportion without injury ; and that too in diforders and conftitutions very much varying from each other, then furely the inference must be, that no dependance is to be placed on them, and confequently it matters not if they are never ufed at all. For what purpose then do fuch numbers put themfelves to the inconvenience, expence, and trouble of travelling (frequently from diftant parts of the kingdom) and that too when many of them are in fo debilitated a state, that their very removal is attended with extreme danger, and fometimes proves fatal ? But that those waters are not inactive, I am well convinced, having feen the bad effects arising from the imprudent go all abrill prudent use of them, in many inflances, as well as the happy confequences attending their being used with due caution.

I was first led into these reflections by having been highly diverted, when I vifited Buxton feveral fummers, with the prepofterous and abfurd conduct of fome of the company who reforted thither for the purpofe of reftoring their health. I remember fix or feven gentlemen informing me, that they were violently afflicted with the gout and rheumatifm, and had undertaken this journey in hopes of receiving benefit by the waters. These gentlemen often rode or walked about the cold dreary hills, in very damp wet mornings, and afterwards drank claret from three o'clock in the afternoon to three the next morning : But I did not continue there long enough to be a witnefs of the happy effects which must inevitably be produced by a perfeverance in fuch a judicious regimen.

I also visited Freestone, near Boston in Lincolnshire: to which place a number of tradesmen

Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 :ized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Generated at University of Penns Public Domain, Google-digitized

475

tradefmen and farmers reforted with their. wives, in hopes of receiving benefit from the use of the falt water, in a variety of complaints; which they had been advifed to do by the faculty, for a month, with particular directions to bathe every other day, and on the intermediate days to drink half a pint of the water in the course of that day. But these wife people on duly confidering the matter, were fully convinced that this would detain them from their families and bufinefs longer than was altogether convenient; and alfo (which they fuppofed their medical friends never thought of) that they could bathe the full number of times, and drink the prefcribed quantity of the water, in a week or a fortnight at farthest, and thus not only expedite the cure, but likewife enable them to return to their families and businefs fo much earlier, as well as fave the neceffary expences attending their continuing for fuch a length of time at the watering place. These united confiderations appeared to them fo confistent with prudence and oeconomy, that

https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 hild on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.hau http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google Pennsylvania University of Penns n, Google-digitized Generated at Un Public Domain, that they refolved to put them into immediate practice. I remonstrated with feveral of these good people on the impropriety of their conduct; but whether they concluded I was a party interefted in detaining them on the fpot, or whether they deemed my judgement inferior to their own, I know not; but I obferved that fome of them bathed feveral times in a day, and drank falt water by the quart, the confequence of which was, that, they left the place when the time expired which they had prefcribed to themfelves, much worfe than they came. Some indeed were fo very weak, that I am perfuaded they could with difficulty reach their homes alive. And in these cases the want of fuccess, inftead of being attributed to the folly of the patients, is generally transferred to the waters, and to the want of judgment in those who advifed the use of them.

476

I affure you, my dear friend, this is pretty much the cafe at Lyme. My rooms commanding a view of the fea, I have this and feveral other days noticed many decent look-

ing

Generated at University of Pennsylvania on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

477

ing men going down the beach three or four times in as many hours, and drinking a pint of water each time. I have made the fame obfervation at Seaton, Charmouth and other places, fo that the obfervation of Crabshaw's nurfe in "the adventures of Sir Lancelot Greaves" has frequently occurred to me: "Bleffed be G— (faid she) my patient is in a fair way! his apozem has had a bleffed effect! five and twenty stools fince three o'clock in the morning!"

Relating thefe particulars to a medical friend, he informed me that fuch fpecimens of ignorance and obftinacy were by no means confined to the watering places; as he had in the courfe of his practice met with repeated inftances, where patients with a view of haftening the cure, and getting out of the doctor's hands (whom the vulgar charitably fuppofe wifh to retain them there as long as poffible) have fwallowed a half pint mixture intended for feveral dofes at once, and a whole box of pills in the fame manner. The confequences of which have been, that from the

the violence of the operations they have remained in bis bands a confiderable time, fome fo long as life (thus foolifhly trifled with) lafted.

But here are many of another clafs; fome of whom, though not all, came on purpofe to bathe, but during the whole of their continuance here, never found time to bathe once. Some haften to the billiard-room as foon as they are out of their beds in the morning, and there they continue until bedtime again. A few of thefe are indeed much benefited, being cured of confumptions in their purfes, while others become proportionably as much emaciated. And a great number, both of ladies and gentlemen devote the whole of their time to dreffing, eating, and playing at whift. Charming exercife it must be! as they frequently fit still in their chairs, for eight or ten hours together.

Here are others again, who, like the gentlemen at Buxton, fit drinking until three or four in the morning; making a delightful noife, noife, to compose those in the same house who are real invalids, and who desirous of obtaining rest, retire early, though frequently to very little purpose.

479

I have also observed, that all the above places are as healthy for borfes, as they are for their masters. For as the innkeepers depend almost entirely on the feason, they take great care, and do all they can to make these places comfortable. So that if gentlemen have fat, lazy, prancing horses, and want to reduce them in fize and temper, they may be fure to have it done in some of the inns and stables at the various watering places: Where such hay is procured as must infallibly answer the purpose even though they be allowed a double portion of corn.

There is yet another very great advantage (which I had like to have forgot) refulting from attending the watering places. Such gentlemen who happen to have fervants too honeft, too industrious, too attentive, too cleanly, too humble, too fober, &c. by taking

480

ing them to any of thefe places, where they have fo much leifure time, and where thefe party-coloured gentry meet together fo often, and in fuch numbers, no one can go away unimproved, except he is a very dull fellow indeed.—This is not merely my own obfervation: for feveral gentlemen of my acquaintance affured me that they had always found their fervants improved prodigioufly after each of thefe excursions.

We purpose fetting out for Weymouth in a day or two: but as I intend that this shall be my last epistle, I will not conclude it until I arrive at Merton.

" If into diffant parts I vainly roam,

- " And novelty from varied objects try,
- " My bufy thoughts refeek their wonted home,

" And ficken at the vain variety."

Merton, Sept. 11th. We arrived here fafe laft night, being my birth-day. At Weymouth we had the honour of walking feveral evenings on the Efplanade, with their majefties and the four princefles. His majefty feems

481

feems in perfect health and fpirits, and diffuses life and spirits to all around him. Long, very long may he continue to enjoy the fame degree of health and happiness! But I could not help pitying Mr. Hughes, the manager of the Theatre there; as the company in general feem to pay but very little attention to plays, while they can partake of the pleafure of walking and breathing the fea air with fo many of the royal family. But his majefty, whofe humanity is by no means the leaft of his many virtues, will no doubt confider Mr. Hughes, who is induftrious to an extreme, as he is fcarce a moment idle. For befides managing his company. performing himfelf fix, fometimes eight characters in a week, he paints all his own fcenes, and attends to many other fubjects; and although he has had a large expensive family (nine children,) the theatre there, and that also at Exeter is his own. Weymouth theatre he rebuilt about four years fince; every thing is very neat; his fcenes are fine, and his company a very good one. I faw them perform four pieces with a deal of inia on 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT / https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google

Generated at University of Pennsylvania on Public Domain, Google-digitized / http://

of pleafure; notwithstanding I had often feen the fame in London, I remarked here as I had long before done at Bath, that the parts were more equally fupported than they often are at Drury-lane and Covent-garden; for although at those places we have many first-rate actors and actress, yet fometimes parts are given to fuch wretched performers as would difgrace a barn, which I never faw done at Bath or Weymouth.

In our road home, within half a mile of Dorchefter, we ftopt and fpent half an hour in looking round the famous Roman Amphitheatre. It is close to the road, on the right hand fide, and covers about an acre of ground. It is judged that ten thousand people might without interruption have beheld fuch exercifes as were exhibited in this school of the ancients; it is called Mambury, and is supposed to be the compleatest antiquity of the kind in England.

I also amused myself, as I travelled through Dorsetsthire and Wiltschire, in surveying many of the numerous camps, fortifications, https://hdl.handle.net/2027/mdp.39015039354124 http://www.hathitrust.org/access use#pd-google 2022-11-11 19:57 GMT University of Pennsylvania on 1, Google-digitized / http:// Domain, Generated at Public Domain tifications, and barrows; which lasting monuments of antiquity are to be seen in abundance in these counties, a great number of them remain in a perfect state.

Nor could I any longer omit the opportunity of feeing that flupendous piece of antiquity on Salifbury Plain, the famous Stonehenge, two miles from Amefbury. We fpent near two hours there in aftonishment; and had not night came on, we fhould not have been able to have parted from it fo foon. We found a very good inn at Amefbury, which proves very convenient to fuch whom curiofity may detain on this wonderful fpot until it is late. It is remarkable, that although fo many able antiquaries have devoted their time and attention to the inveftigation of Stonehenge, it remains fill a matter undecided when and for what purpofe this amazing pile was formed; nor is there lefs caufe of admiration, how ftones of fuch magnitude were brought hither! I shall not presume, either to decide on this curious point, or offer any conjectures of my own.

Ff2

I have

483

I have now, fir, not only given you the moft material circumftances of my life, but have alfo fuper-added a fhort fketch of fome of my travels. And fhould the fine air of Merton preferve the flock of health and fpirits which I have acquired in this laft excurfion, I intend during the fummer to fpend a few hours in the middle of three or four days in every week in Chifwell-ftreet, devoting the mornings and evenings to my rural retreat,

- " Where cheerfulness triumphant fair,
- " Difpels the painful cloud of care,
- " O, fweet of language, mild of mien,
- " O, Virtue's friend, and pleasure's queen !
- " By thee our board with flow'rs is crown'd,
- " By thee with fongs our walks refound ;
- " By thee the fprightly mornings fhine,
- " And ev'ning hours in peace decline."

During the winter I purpose spending most of my time in town; where I hope again to enjoy the company of you, fir, and some others of our old philosophical friends. In the mean time, I am,

Dear friend, yours.

P. S.

P. S. I should deem myself deficient in point of justice to the ingenious artist who painted the portrait from whence the engraving affixed as a frontispiece to this volume is taken, if I did not embrace this opportunity of acknowledging the approbation it has been honoured with by all who have seen it, as a striking likenes.

The following circumftance, though to many it may appear in a ludicrous point of view, yet as it is a fact which does not depend folely on my affertion, I fhall not hefitate to mention it.

Before the portrait was finished, Mrs. Lackington, accompanied by another lady, called on the painter to view it. Being introduced into a room filled with portraits, her little dog (the faithful Argus) being with her, immediately ran to that particular portrait, paying it the fame attention as he is always accustomed to do the original; which made it necessfary to remove him from it, less he should damage it; though this was not accomplished without expressions of disfatisfaction on the part of poor Argus.

Thofe

485

ing them to any of thefe places, where they have fo much leifure time, and where thefe party-coloured gentry meet together fo often, and in fuch numbers, no one can go away unimproved, except he is a very dull fellow indeed.—This is not merely my own obfervation: for feveral gentlemen of my acquaintance affured me that they had always found their fervants improved prodigioufly after each of thefe excursions.

We purpose setting out for Weymouth in a day or two: but as I intend that this shall be my last epistle, I will not conclude it until I arrive at Merton.

" If into diffant parts I vainly roam,

- " And novelty from varied objects try,
- " My bufy thoughts refeek their wonted home,

" And ficken at the vain variety."

Merton, Sept. 11th. We arrived here fafe laft night, being my birth-day. At Weymouth we had the honour of walking feveral evenings on the Efplanade, with their majefties and the four princefles. His majefty feems

481 feems in perfect health and spirits, and diffuses life and spirits to all around him. Long, very long may he continue to enjoy the fame degree of health and happiness! But I could not help pitying Mr. Hughes, the manager of the Theatre there; as the company in general feem to pay but very little attention to plays, while they can partake of the pleafure of walking and breathing the fea air with fo many of the royal family. But his majefty, whofe humanity is by no means the least of his many virtues, will no doubt confider Mr. Hughes, who is industrious to an extreme, as he is fcarce a moment idle. For befides managing his company, performing himfelf fix, fometimes eight characters in a week, he paints all his own fcenes, and attends to many other fubjects; and although he has had a large expensive family (nine children,) the theatre there, and that also at Exeter is his own. Wevmouth theatre he rebuilt about four years fince; every thing is very neat; his fcenes are fine, and his company a very good one. I faw them perform four pieces with a deal Ff of hers

北周

2 60

of pleafure; notwithftanding I had often feen the fame in London, I remarked here as I had long before done at Bath, that the parts were more equally fupported than they often are at Drury-lane and Covent-garden; for although at those places we have many first-rate actors and actreffes, yet fometimes parts are given to fuch wretched performers as would difgrace a barn, which I never faw done at Bath or Weymouth.

In our road home, within half a mile of Dorchefter, we ftopt and fpent half an hour in looking round the famous Roman Amphitheatre. It is clofe to the road, on the right hand fide, and covers about an acre of ground. It is judged that ten thoufand people might without interruption have beheld fuch exercifes as were exhibited in this fchool of the ancients; it is called Mambury, and is fuppofed to be the compleateft antiquity of the kind in England.

I also amused myself, as I travelled through Dorsetsthire and Wiltschire, in surveying many of the numerous camps, fortifications, tifications, and barrows; which lafting monuments of antiquity are to be feen in abundance in these counties, a great number of them remain in a perfect state.

Nor could I any longer omit the opportunity of feeing that stupendous piece of antiquity on Salifbury Plain, the famous Stonehenge, two miles from Amefbury. We fpent near two hours there in aftonifhment; and had not night came on, we should not have been able to have parted from it fo foon. We found a very good inn at Amefbury, which proves very convenient to fuch whom curiofity may detain on this wonderful fpot until it is late. It is remarkable, that although fo many able antiquaries have devoted their time and attention to the inveftigation of Stonehenge, it remains still a matter undecided when and for what purpofe this amazing pile was formed; nor is there lefs caufe of admiration, how ftones of fuch magnitude were brought hither! I shall not prefume, either to decide on this curious point, or offer any conjectures of my own.

Ff2

I have

483

Digitized by Google

Sec.

of pleafure; notwithstanding I had often feen the fame in London, I remarked here as I had long before done at Bath, that the parts were more equally fupported than they often are at Drury-lane and Covent-garden; for although at those places we have many first-rate actors and actreffes, yet fometimes parts are given to fuch wretched performers as would difgrace a barn, which I never faw done at Bath or Weymouth.

In our road home, within half a mile of Dorchefter, we ftopt and fpent half an hour in looking round the famous Roman Amphitheatre. It is clofe to the road, on the right hand fide, and covers about an acre of ground. It is judged that ten thoufand people might without interruption have beheld fuch exercifes as were exhibited in this fchool of the ancients; it is called Mambury, and is fuppofed to be the compleateft antiquity of the kind in England.

I also amufed myself, as I travelled through Dorsetsthire and Wiltschire, in furveying many of the numerous camps, fortifications, tifications, and barrows; which lafting monuments of antiquity are to be feen in abundance in these counties, a great number of them remain in a perfect state.

Nor could I any longer omit the opportunity of feeing that stupendous piece of antiquity on Salifbury Plain, the famous Stonehenge, two miles from Amefbury. We fpent near two hours there in aftonishment; and had not night came on, we should not have been able to have parted from it fo foon. We found a very good inn at Amefbury, which proves very convenient to fuch whom curiofity may detain on this wonderful fpot until it is late. It is remarkable, that although fo many able antiquaries have devoted their time and attention to the inveftigation of Stonehenge, it remains still a matter undecided when and for what purpofe this amazing pile was formed; nor is there lefs caufe of admiration, how ftones of fuch magnitude were brought hither! I shall not prefume, either to decide on this curious point, or offer any conjectures of my own.

Ff2

I have

483

Digitized by Google

Se ale

I have now, fir, not only given you the moft material circumftances of my life, but have also super-added a short sketch of some of my travels. And should the fine air of Merton preferve the stock of health and spirits which I have acquired in this last excursion, I intend during the summer to spend a few hours in the middle of three or four days in every week in Chifwell-street, devoting the mornings and evenings to my rural retreat,

- " Where cheerfulnefs triumphant fair,
- " Difpels the painful cloud of care,
- " O, fweet of language, mild of mien,
- " O, Virtue's friend, and pleafure's queen !
- " By thee our board with flow'rs is crown'd,
- " By thee with fongs our walks refound ;
- " By thee the fprightly mornings fhine,
- " And ev'ning hours in peace decline."

During the winter I purpose spending most of my time in town; where I hope again to enjoy the company of you, fir, and some others of our old philosophical friends. In the mean time, I am,

Dear friend, yours.

P. S.

P. S. I should deem myself deficient in point of justice to the ingenious artist who painted the portrait from whence the engraving affixed as a frontispiece to this volume is taken, if I did not embrace this opportunity of acknowledging the approbation it has been honoured with by all who have seen it, as a striking likenes.

The following circumftance, though to many it may appear in a ludicrous point of view, yet as it is a fact which does not depend folely on my affertion, I fhall not hefitate to mention it.

Before the portrait was finished, Mrs. Lackington, accompanied by another lady, called on the painter to view it. Being introduced into a room filled with portraits, her little dog (the faithful Argus) being with her, immediately ran to that particular portrait, paying it the fame attention as he is always accustomed to do the original; which made it necessary to remove him from it, less he should damage it; though this was not accomplished without expressions of disfatisfaction on the part of poor Argus.

Thofe

485

486

Those who are conversant in history will not doubt the fact; several similar instances being recorded of the fagacity and nice difcrimination of these animals.

A PRAYER.

- " O may my work for ever live !
- " (Dear friend, this felfish zeal forgive :)
- " May no vile mifcreant faucy cook
- " Prefume to tear my learned book,
- " To finge his fowl for nicer gueft,
- " Or pin it on the turkey's breaft.
- " Keep it from paftry bak'd, or buying,
- " From broiling fleak, and fritters frying;
- " From lighting pipe or wrapping fnuff.
- " Or cafing up a feather muff;
- " From all the feveral ways the grocer
- " (Who to the learned world's a foe, Sir,)
- " Has found in twifting, folding, packing,
- " His brain and ours at once a racking :
- " And may it never curl the head
- " Of either living block, or dead.
- " Thus when all dangers they have paft,
- " My leaves like leaves of brafs shall last.
- " No blaft fhall from a critic's breath,
- " By vile infection caufe their death, and obsern
- " 'Till they in flames at last expire, blood of
- " And help to fet the world on fire."

Suga F I N I Sut no notion

+12573

TEWIS

Digitized by Google

Stall